President will detail his Watergate role tonight

ELECTRIFYING MOMENT

A bolt of lightning struck the Seattle First National Bank building as an electrical storm passed through. The photo, taken by photographer Grant Haller, is a two-minute time exposure taken from Seattle's Queen Anne Hill. The space needle is in foreground. The spectacular storm caused scattered power outages in widespread areas.

Vigorous defense expected in TV speech at 6 p.m.

CAMP DAVID, MD. (UPI) — President Nixon goes on television and issues a kind of "white paper" tonight, at the lowest ebb of his public popularity, to counter allegations that he was any way involved in the Watergate scandal.

While expected once again to concede that he might have been more alert sooner to the fact that the scope of the Watergate burglary was wider than he first believed, Nixon was reported planning to make a vigorous defense of his role.

The speech to the nation —nis second on the subject—comes at 6 p.m. PDT on all major television and radio networks, from Nixon's desk in the White House Oval Office.

A new Gallup Poll made public today showed only 31 per cent of those polled Aug. 3-6 by the George Gallup organization approved of the way Nixon was doing his job. That was the lowest approval rating of any President since Harry S. Truman's last month in office, January, 1953, according to the Gallup group.

Another poll conducted by the Oliver Quayle organization for the National Broadcasting Co. showed that Sen. George S. McGovern, victim of a Nixon landslide last fall, might win over Nixon if an election were held now.

The Quayle survey, conducted in the last week of July, gave McGovern a lead of 51 per cent to 49 per cent over Nixon when participants were asked which they would vote for if "another election were being held right now."

Gallup said 1,435 adults in more than 300 localities were polled in its latest survey. Quayle said its poll covered 1,255 persons in 300 localities.

Asked about the current public sentiment today, McGovern said Nixon's low popularity was due to Watergate as well as other factors including failure to "get on top of our economic problems."

McGovern said, "I think the shock of a landslide win followed quickly by the revelations of Watergate ... may be what it took to awaken the American people to the peril we were in."

This will be Nixon's second broadcast speech on the Watergate and his third detailed public statement on the scandal. The first was a broadcast April 30; the second a 4,000-word written statement May 22. Both were strong denials of any knowledge on his part of the burglary of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate or of the cover-up later of high-level involvement of figures in his administration and in his campaign organization.

The President conceded that he possibly might have moved quicker to get to the bottom of the scandal, and indicated that he should not have relied so heavily on reports given him by aides.

The "white paper" to be issued in conjunction with the public speech by Nixon is expected to rebut specific allegations made against Nixon during the Senate Watergate hearings —particularly by his former counsel, John W. Dean.

Dean testified in June that he believed Nixon was aware as early as last September of efforts to cover up involvement in the scandal, and to limit it to seven persons then under indictment. A special grand jury has been frequently reported ready to indict several more persons, including former top Nixon aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Dean.

Nixon has refused to turn over to Senate and federal investigators tape recordings of conversations he had with Dean which, attorneys for the two groups say, could shed light on the veracity of testimony by Dean and some others.

Administration critics have charged that the government is in a state of drift because of uncertainties over Watergate and the threatened constitutional showdown in the Supreme Court between Nixon and Congress over his refusal to provide tapes and White House documents.

McGovern said today on the CBS-TV Morning News program that "we are confronted with a constitutional crisis now" because of administration "wrong-doing."

Longest air war ends

U.S. fliers drop last bombs on Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American warplanes bombed almost up to the minute of their cutoff time in Cambodia today, then left the country's skies for good to let the government fend for itself against rebel forces lying in wait outside Phnom Penh's jungled perimeter.

Ten minutes before the 11 a.m. (midnight Tuesday EDT) bomb halt, which signaled the end of history's longest air war, at least two American planes were still strafing rebel positions. A U.S. air controller was asked if the flights had dropped all their explosives.

"Negative, one more plane has made only one pass." Then moments later: "It looked real good." A pilot answered: "I'm on the way home."

Someone then started whistling "Turkey in the Straw" and an airborne harmonica player picked up the tune.

Then, precisely at 11 a.m., an OV10 observation plane trailing smoke like a skywriter started making victory rolls over Phnom Penh. It then streaked out of sight, marking an on-schedule end to the long U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

As the last B52s unloaded their 30-ton bomb loads and headed back to their bases on Guam, Cambodians in the threatened capital went about their normal workday, taking the end of American air support as just another grim fact of war.

"We'll fight more, I guess." The words were uttered solemnly by a 22-year-old Cambodian who lost a leg in the fighting.

Field reports said all was quiet on most roads leading out of Phnom Penh an hour after the bomb halt. But more fighting was reported 10 miles northeast of the capital at the Mekong River town of Muk Kompul, which has been under rebel siege for more than a month.

Southwest of Phnom Penh, two tiny piston-engined T28's of the Cambodian air force were seen droning toward suspected Communist positions.

UPI reporter Kenneth Englade reported from the field that government troops backed by armored vehicles and 105mm artillery were advancing through rice fields against suspected Communist positions about 10 miles west of the capital.

"The spirit of the troops was good and they were not worried about the lack of American air support," Englade said.

Inside the refugee-swollen capital, schools, shops, restaurants and government offices functioned normally. The tennis courts were filled at Cercle Sportif. The well-stocked central market was bustling with shoppers.

The eerie silence of the bombing halt contrasted sharply with Tuesday night, when a "bombers moon" —aviator's jargon for cloudless skies under bright moonlight to facilitate the strikes—aided pilots in blasting targets around the capital with thousands of tons of bombs.

It was the last time the heavy thunder-like explosions on all sides of the city would shake buildings and rattle windows in the capital.

$55 to $106

Automakers will hike prices on '74 models

DETROIT (UPI) — Price tags on 1974-model cars will average between $55 and $106 more than current models as consumers face higher costs of buying new cars.

The four major automakers have now notified the Cost of Living Council of their intention of boosting prices when they introduce the 1974 models in the middle and end of September. All say they'll make no profit on the increase.

Ford warned it will seek an even higher increase than the $106 it now wants because of expected higher labor and materials costs. GM is seeking a $102 increase while Chrysler wants $71 and American Motors $55.

"Approval of an average of only $106 per unit at this time would leave unrecovered wage and material costs of $180 per unit, excluding any cost increases associated with a new labor contract or further material increases," said John B. Naughton, Ford vice president for sales, Tuesday.

"We cannot continue to absorb economic cost increases and government-mandated product changes of this magnitude without further price increases," he said.

The four automakers say the higher prices are needed to recover the costs of adding safety-related equipment to the new cars.

These include stronger front and rear bumpers, stronger roofs and a new lap-shoulder belt system which prevents the car from being started if front-seat occupants are not buckled up.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler are now negotiating new contracts to cover more than 700,000 United Auto Workers members and their labor costs are sure to rise in September.

In addition, the nation's major steel producers plan to raise sheet and strip steel prices between $8 and $12 a ton. Both items are widely used in the automotive industry.

Under Phase IV guidelines, the automakers must notify the Cost of Living Council of their intention to raise prices. They can put them into effect in 30 days of the Cost of Living Council does not step in and order them held up.

AMC will introduce its cars to the public Sept. 5 while GM, Ford and Chrsyler cars wpll not go on sale until the middle and end of September.

Skylab records first birth in space: minnow

HOUSTON (UPI) — With the need for a possible rescue flight growing more remote, Skylab's astronauts today kept watch over an aquarium which recorded the first birth in spaceflight history—a minnow.

The space agency Tuesday reset the two weeks later than previously announced. Skylab Program Director William C. Schneider said "there is no imminent need for rescue" and the setback would allow for more thorough testing of the Saturn 1B and Apollo command ship at Cape Kennedy.

Claremont youth finds search for 'Lost Continent' wild goose chase

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — An 18-year-old high school senior who disappeared earlier this month while searching for the lost continent Atlantis is home today, safe and getting sounder every day.

Ill from having eaten contaminated food in a Moroccan cafe, and penniless after the expedition had turned sour, Karl Ballman, a lanky 6-footer from North Claremont, was picked up at Los Angeles International Airport earlier this week by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ballman.

What was supposed to be a $2,100 to $3,000 luxury package—a six-week exploration off the southern coast of Spain, complete with credit from Pepperdine College—reportedly shrank to a super-economy operation almost from the outset, and then broke up in confusion when the 50-member search party was kicked out of Spain, two weeks later.

Karl himself seems amused now by the unexpected turn of events, but word of his disappearance from Spain last week had touched off a search in three continents.

Josh Marquis, an investigator working for Craig McManigal, the Ballmans' attorney, said the entire case has been turned over to the consumer protection division of Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch for evaluation and possible charges against those who conducted the trip under the auspices of Pepperdine College.

The expedition was offered and conducted by the American Mediterranean Research Association. Its co-chairmen were Mrs. Maxine Asher, an instructor at Pepperdine, and Dr. Julian Nava, a member of the Los Angeles City Board of Education.

Nava reportedly disassociated himself from the project after the first weekend. Mrs. Asher is now in Galway, Ireland, still looking for the legendary Atlantis there, with what remains of her group of students.

The lost continent was supposed to be off the coast of Spain, and that's where the group had gone first. But when Spanish authorities ejected them for failure to obtain the necessary papers, the search was transferred to Ireland, and the group split up.

Karl Ballman and two of his friends decided to go to Morocco to find a tribe of Berbers—natives of Morocco—and talk to them.

They traveled the length of the Moroccan coast line, pooling what spending money they had—a total of $18—and finally located an interpreter who helped them talk to the native tribesmen.

KARL BALLMAN

The trio stopped at a Moroccan restaurant for some native shish kebab, but according to Karl, the meat must have been contaminated because that night he became very ill.

After three days of sickness, Karl and his friends took a ferry across the Mediterranean back to Spain and, using their roundtrip tickets, caught a plane back to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ballman said Karl, normally 145 pounds, lost 16 pounds during the past five weeks, but is now getting his

Charges bared of Air Force base burying overstocked supplies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Post today reported charges that thousands of dollars worth of usable military supplies were buried in a refuse dump at the Air Force base at Charleston, S. C., so the base wouldn't be accused of overstocking.

The newspaper said the charges were made by civilian and military personnel at the base during interviews. It quoted one civilian employe, Jack Howerton, as saying he hid behind some trees and watched the following supplies being dumped:

Twenty-seven rolls of stainless steel cable for aircraft controls, new and used engine parts, pumps, printed electrical circuits, scores of cans of paint, desks, chairs and file cabinets, new shower stalls, transistors and new GI cans. Howerton is president of the American Federation of Government Employes local at the base.

The Post quoted another civilian employe, Wayne Page, as saying he dumped at least 10 truckloads of supplies into a pond.

The newspaper said the dumping was alleged to have taken place over a period of a month, after the 374th Military Airlift Wing at the base was notified it was going to be the subject of a "commander's facilities inspection" by a team of 7 generals and 38 colonels, the first such inspection at the base.

It said Brig. Gen. Robert L. Moeller, wing commander, emphatically denied the allegations of deliberate waste, but said the charges were being investigated and that some materials, including bags of fertilizer and road scraper blades, had been found in the dump.

Rustlers hit again

FREMONT (UPI) — Frank Ornellas Jr., of San Jose told police Tuesday cattle rustlers took eight head from his herd. He valued them at $450 each.

Paper says Johnson called on agents for convention spying

The FBI: a political tool of presidents?

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Lyndon Johnson dispatched a team of FBI agents to the 1964 Democratic National Convention to conduct a political spying operation on members of his own party, the Chicago Tribune reported today.

Johnson acted out of fear that he might be robbed of the presidential nomination, the Tribune reported.

"Later that year," the Tribune reported, "... Johnson dictated in advance to the FBI what it should include in its report on activities of key White House aide Walter Jenkins," who had been arrested on a morals charge.

The Tribune continued: "These are but two incidents of what former FBI officials describe as the 30-year evolution of the agency as a political tool of presidents, which climaxed with Nixon Administration efforts to curtail the FBI's Watergate investigation."

Some of the more "explosive aspects" of the FBI's political history were detailed recently in a memorandum turned over to the Senate Watergate committee by fired White House counsel John W. Dean, the newspaper said. The Tribune said the author of the memorandum, former assistant FBI director William C. Sullivan, has refused to discuss its contents.

The Tribune's story from Washington, signed by Jim Squires, said there have been many "abuses" of the long proud and trusted agency over the last three decades, from the Nixon administration back to that of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Some of the abuses include:

"An FBI alliance with Sen. Joseph McCarthy under the Eisenhower Administration which 'kept McCarthy going' with information gathered on individuals and fed secretly to McCarthy as ammunition in his now-discredited pursuit of men he alleged were Communist.

"Orders by Presidents Roosevelt, Johnson and Nixon to gather information on groups and individuals who were clearly their political enemies.

"The funneling to several presidents by the late J. Edgar Hoover of "dirty and smutty" personal information about public figures gathered by the FBI and specific orders to field agents to gather such information.

"Request for FBI information by President Johnson on his 1964 opponent Barry Goldwater and the ordering of a 'limited' investigation of Vice President-Elect Spiro Agnew in 1968."

Big steel asks for price hikes

United Press International

Steel manufacturers have asked the government to allow price increases they announced last spring.

The nation's two biggest steel companies, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, said Tuesday they had notified the Internal Revenue Service they plan to raise prices $8 to $12 a ton for sheet and strip steel prices. Under Phase IV rules, major companies must give 30 days notice before raising prices.

Other steel companies, Armco Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Jones Laughlin, Wheeling-Pittsburgh and National Steel, also filed for increases.

The companies had announced increases in May. Major steel buyers, including automakers, said then they would mean higher prices for consumers.

The increases amount to about 4.8 per cent on strip and sheet steel products.

Two more auto companies asked for increases Tuesday on the 1974 models. General Motors asked for an increase of $102, or 2.7 per cent. Ford Motor Co. requested an increase averaging $106, or 2.4 per cent.

GM and Ford both said government safety and emission requirements were a factor in the increases.

Chrysler Corp. and American Motors asked for price increases a day earlier.

A spokesman for the Cost of Living Council said more big companies were expected to file for Phase IV increases this week.

Charles Emeley, spokesman for the Cost of Living Council, said 20 to 25 companies had filed for price increases already. Only companies with sales of $100 million or more a year must notify the government. Other companies can automatically raise prices, but by no more than the increase in their costs.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz repeated his desire for the freeze on beef prices to end immediately, instead of Sept. 12 as the administration has decided.

"It's no secret that I've opposed these price ceilings from the start," Butz said in Madison, Wis. "If I had my druthers, I'd take this beef price ceiling off right now."

In a speech at the University of Wisconsin, Butz called price ceilings a "disincentive to produce."

Mark Kravitz, president of a group of steak restaurants in Connecticut, also called for an end to the beef freeze. He complained that wholesalers were leaving more fat and bone on the steaks.

"We're not getting the trim we normally get," he said.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, released figures showing food prices accounted for 60 per cent of all rises in the consumer price index for the first six months of 1973.

Food prices rose 21.5 per cent, while the consumer price index rose 8 per cent, he said.

U.S. hits Israel action, but will veto sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In a rare criticism of Israel, the United States went before the U.N. Security Council Tuesday to "deplore" last week's Israeli seizure of an Arab jetliner over Beirut.

Despite U.S. Ambassador's John Scali's strong language, however, the United States has indicated it will endorse no Security Council resolution that would impose sanctions on Israel.

The sixth U.S. veto in U.N. history loomed today over just such a measure—an Egyptian resolution calling for an aid cut-off to Israel. Diplomatic sources said the Egyptian-inspired sanctions clause was like "a red flag" to Scali, who could be expected to veto the measure if it is pressed to a vote.

"The United States deplores this violation of Lebanese sovereignty," Scali said. "We deplore this violation of the U.N. charter and of the rule of law in international civil aviation.

Final bombing mission

It was all in a day's work

By BERT OKULEY

U TAPAO AIRFIELD, Thailand (UPI) — The final Cambodian bombing mission from this base today, code-named Lavender, was all in a day's work for the American pilots who ended more than six years of bombing over Indochina.

"It feels good," Maj. Michael J. Cannorozzi, 44, said as he stepped down from his B52 bomber. "It always feels good to get down from any of them."

Reps. Bella Abzug and Joeph B. Adabbo, both New York Democrats, were on the runway to greet the pilots. Mrs. Abzug's yellow print dress and floppy hat, which is her trademark, were a startling contrast to the flight suits of the returning pilots.

"We came here to thank you for everything you've done," Adabbo said. "I'm glad to see you all back."

At Korat Air Base, Thailand, correspondent Robert Kaylor reported a similar anticlimactic atmosphere.

"I'm just doing my job. If they say it's over, it's over. I'm not doing anything special tonight, probably going to the movies. Normal...normal," said Maj. John Hoskins, 37, of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Hoskins dropped the last bombs from his A7 Corsair fighter-bomber at 10:44 a.m. (11:44 p.m. EDT Tuesday), one minute before the 10:45 deadline set by U.S. commanders. The Congressionally mandated halt to the bombing officially came at 11 a.m. (midnight EDT Tuesday).

It was the last bombing mission for Hoskins, a veteran of five combat tours in Southeast Asia since 1965 during which he has flown about 250 missions.

The pilot of the final B52 to return to U Tapao was Capt. Hard W. McCullum, 26, of Ralph, Ala. Like most B52 pilots, McCullum never saw his last target. A forward air controller marked it with a smoke bomb, and McCullum released about 16 tons of bombs —half the normal load of a B52 —which fell beneath the clouds and out of McCullum's sight.

B52s often fly at such great altitudes—30,000 feet or more— that the pilots are unable to see what they are bombing.

Other American soldiers stationed at Korat and U Tapao seemed hardly to notice the end to the longest air war in history. There were no special celebrations planned; only a group telephone calls booked to California by some pilots who planned to talk to their wives.

Brig. Gen. Billy J. Ellis of DeQuincy, La., commander of the B52 squadrons at U Tapao, said the final bombing run was flown by B52s stationed at Anderson AFB, Guam.

Ellis said there were no immediate plans to remove any of the 50 strategic bombers based at U Tapao. He said the B52 crews would continue training programs with the crews here of KC135 jet tankers which have been refueling American planes over Cambodia during the intensive160-day bombing campaign over Cambodia.

As the last plane back from Cambodia landed at U Tapao, thick clouds rolled in from the Gulf of Thailand and enveloped the airfield.

Girl hurt in Kennedy auto crash may never walk again

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — Doctors were not sure today whether a teenage Cape Cod girl who suffered a spinal injury in a car crash involving two sons of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy would ever walk again.

Pamela Kelley, 18, of Centerville, Mass., a Hyannis suburb, is reported in serious but "stabilized" condition at Cape Cod Hospital where she underwent surgery Monday for a spinal fracture.

David Kennedy, also 18, is being treated for a possible back sprain. Another young woman, Mary Schlaff, ?, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., is hospitalized for a pelvic fracture and a fractured femur suffered in the accident.

Police say Joseph P. Kennedy III, 21, was driving an open Toyota vehicle carrying his brother and five girls when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve and flipped over on Nantucket Island Monday afternoon. He has been cited for "driving negligently," a misdemeanor similar to reckless driving, and faces a court hearing on Monday.

Police declined to say whether speed was a principal factor in the auto accident. Conviction on the charge carries a maximum jail term of two years and a $200 fine.

Pamela Kelley was the most seriously injured in the accident. Her sister, Kimberly, a longtime friend of the Kennedy children, escaped with minor bruises.

Other occupants of the car, all of whom escaped serious injury, were identified as Patricia Powers, 22, of Spring Lake, N.J., and Frances De Onis, 18, also of Centerville. Miss Powers wore a neck brace Tuesday as she visited those injured at the hospital.

Torbin Yates, public relations director for the hospital, said three orthopedic surgeons, headed by Dr. Peter Carney of Hyannis, assisted in the three-hour operation on Pamela.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, uncle of the Kennedy boys, requested that two specialists from the Lahey Clinic join Carney in treating Miss Kelley.

Police said all occupants of the open car, except Joseph Kennedy, were thrown out of the vehicle before it landed upside down in brush off a winding road through the center of the island

2 mass murder suspects indicted

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Harris County grand jury Tuesday indicted Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, for murder. The grand jury said the teen-agers took part in a three year sex and sadism spree that led to the nation's worst mass murder of the 20th Century.

Billy Ridinger, who filed to and from the grand jury room with a paper sack over his head, was the principal witness before the jury. Ridinger testified he barely escaped with his life from the torture chamber of Dean Allen Corll, 33.

Henley was indicted on three counts of murder, Brooks one. Each count carried a $100,000 bond attached to it.

weight back.

Karl said that though he was quite ill and quite broke in Morocco, it never entered his mind that he might not eventually get home.

"Somehow, I felt my parents would be there," he said hesitatingly. "I never really worried."

But Mrs. Ballman said that though the exploration had turned sour, the experiences had "realy made a man" out of her son.

He is now better, expects to take on a part time job next week, and looks forward to his last year at the Claremont Collegiate School.

As for Pepperdine College, it is now disclaiming any association with the aborted program. It claims the expedition was never accredited by the college.

But brochures issued in conjunction by the college and statements made by the group sponsors in behalf of the college seem to indicate otherwise, according to Marquis.

"We are making no specific charges," he declared. "We are merely turning what information we have over to the district attorney's office for whatever they want to do about this matter."

Hits pair in L. A. trial

State's obscenity laws held valid in clamp-down decision

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on obscenity made it "possible to clamp the lid down on ...the sewage of hard core pornography," a judge said Tuesday in a ruling against two men on trial for showing the erotic film success "Deep Throat."

Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall ruled that state obscenity laws are specific enough to be constitutional. He turned down a request by Vincent Miranda and Steven M. Hagen to halt their trial in Beverly Hills Municipal Court on charges of exhibiting obscene material.

Miranda is the owner of the Pussycat Theater and Hagen is its manager.

Jury selection had just been completed in their trial when Marshall halted it July 19 while he studied their request to prohibit the prosecution, on grounds the state obscenity laws are unconstitutionally vague, in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's most recent ruling.

Marshall ruled however that California obscenity laws are constitutional.

Nation's economy a disgrace--Maddox

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox says the nation's runaway inflation and food shortages are a disgrace equal to Watergate.

"When the most productive nation in the world reaches the point where its economy is so out of control that traditional abundance becomes scandalous scarcity, then I think it's a disgrace equal to Watergate," he told the International Convention of the Food Service Executives Association Tuesday.

"The Communists got our grain, the administration got credit for the deal, the speculators got the profit—and the rest of us got the bill," he said.

Disabled Veteran of Year to be honored

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Michael Johnson, 25, will be honored Thursday night as the Disabled Veteran of the Year. He lost both legs in Vietnam but still manages to hunt deer, swim and play wheelchair basketball.

Johnson stepped on a landmine in South Vietnam in 1968. He was in and out of military hospitals for more than a year.

"I've had a hard time, but if I had my legs and the war were on, I'd do it all over again, because I believed in what I was doing," Johnson said.

Can't beat Bunker in recognition poll

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UPI) — A survey at the University of Northern Iowa indicates more students recognize Carroll O'Conner, who portrays Archie Bunker in the popular "All in the Family" television series, than Iowa's senior senator.

But Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, said Tuesday if he had as much television exposure as Bunker, he probably would be as familiar to the public.

The poll, taken by 210 students witnessing slides of famous persons, showed O'Conner the landslide winner with 89.5 per cent recognizing him. Hughes, a three-term Iowa governor was recognized by 70.5 per cent.

Cleveland Browns' receiver arrested

SOUTH EUCLID, Ohio (UPI) — Gloster Richardson, the Cleveland Browns' veteran wide receiver, was arrested on a variety of traffic violations and for possession of marijuana, police announced Tuesday.

Richardson, 31, of Chicago, Ill., was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and the drug charge. He was freed on personal bond and is to appear for a preliminary hearing Aug. 21 in municipal court here.

Police Capt. Harold Kopf said Richardson's car struck another car at an intersection Sunday. No one was injured, but Kopf said Richardson sped away from the accident and was arrested shortly afterward.

Nude man attacks officers at station

WHITMAN, Mass. (UPI) — James Partridge, 19, burst into a police station Tuesday and began beating on two officers and a civilian dispatcher. What's more, police said, the 6-foot, 200-pound man was "stark naked."

Partridge was charged with lewd and lascivious exposure, three counts of assault and battery and one count of creating a disturbance. Police say he has offered no explanation for the incident.

Agency moves to curb abuses of tranquilizers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Drug Enforcement Administration moved today to place federal controls over the nation's two largest selling prescription tranquilizers, Librium and Valium, to prevent the drugs from reaching the illicit market.

John R. Bartels Jr., acting administrator of the drug agency, said the move to put the antianxiety drugs under guidelines of the Control Substances Act climaxes a seven-year fight by federal drug enforcement agencies to prevent abuse and diversion of Librium and Valium to the illicit market.

It is estimated that during the first six months of this year wholesale sales of the two drugs to pharmacies totalled $132 million. During that period, 39.6 million prescriptions of both drugs were issued.

In a letter to Dr. Charles C. Edwards, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health Education and Welfare, Bartels asked that HEW make a scientific and medical evaluation of the abuse potential of the tranquilizers based on evidence gathered by his agency.

Bartels also asked that the drugs be placed under the act. If this action is taken, DEA will require records and reports of distribution and sales of the drugs. The schedule also requires tighter security of the drugs to guard against theft or diversion.

Librium and Valium are manufactured solely by Hoffman-La Roche Inc. Bartell said the firm has agreed not to contest the placing of the drugs under the acts.

Under the criminal provisions of the act, illegal manufacture, distribution or dispensing of Librium or Valium would be punishable by up to three years in prison, a fine of $10,000 or both for first offense and double for a second offense. Illegal possession of the drug could result in a year in prison, a fine of not more than $5,000 or both on a first offense.

3 wounded in shootings

CUCAMONGA — West End sheriff's deputies this morning investigated two shooting incidents occurring Tuesday in the old Northtown area here that wounded three persons.

The first incident was reported about 12:45 a.m. Tuesday by a resident who said a number of youths were engaged in a fight and gun battle at 24th and Center streets.

When deputies arrived, the youths allegedly engaged in the fighting had left the area, but another resident told deputies her car window was shot out. At 1:23 a.m. doctors at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland reported they were treating a youth with a gunshot wound of the lower right leg.

The youth, Gabriel Olagues, 17, of Cucamonga told deputies that he was at 24th and Center with a group of friends earlier, when a car containing a number of other youths drove by. Those in the car opened fire on Olagues and his friends, then the car sped away.

The Olagues youth was released after emergency treatment at the hospital.

At 6:24 p.m. Tuesday sheriff's units were again dispatched to the Northtown area in the 8800 block of Center Street on report of another fight and shots being fired. On their arrival they found that another 17-year-old youth and Frank H. Padilla, of 8734 19th St., Alta Loma, had been slightly wounded by small caliber bullets.

Phillip Lujan Sr., 50, and his son Phillip Jr., 24, both of 10386 24th St., Cucamonga, were also injured in a fight.

Deputies said no arrests in either incident have been made, but the cases are under investigation. Deputies believe that both shootings are the result of a long-standing feud between two Cucamonga families.

Padilla and the youth were treated for minor gunshot wounds at the Upland Hospital and released.

Inquest scheduled in youth's death

UPLAND — An inquest "to bring all the facts out before the public" in the July 25 police shooting death of a 17-year-old Fontana youth following a high-speed chase through West End will be held Monday in the San Bernardino County courthouse.

San Bernardino County Coroner Bill Hill said the inquest has been called to piece together the facts surrounding the death of David John Escalera of 17677 Seville Court, Fontana.

Escalera died July 25 of a single gunshot wound of the arm and chest after he led West End sheriff's deputies, Upland police and Ontario police on a high speed chase through Upland, Ontario and Cucamonga.

Hill said the inquest was called because "it involved several different police agencies and we need to bring the facts out before the public. . . .and to make a determination of the facts surrounding the death."

The youth, according to police reports and a coroner's autopsy, was shot once through the right arm and chest by a bullet fired by Upland Police Officer Lewis Morales.

Upland police in the evening of July 25 were called to the 1000 block of Highland Drive on a complaint about a reckless driver. On the arrival of police officers a car drove away from the area at a high rate of speed.

The car was pursued by the Upland police officers and units from the West End Sheriff's Department and Ontario police called to assit.

The pursuit ended at Hawkins Park at Eighth Street and Campus Avenue when a police car rammed the vehicle driven by Escalera, forcing it over a curb and onto the grass. A passenger in Escalera's car jumped out and was arrested by police. Escalera, said police, then made a U-turn on the grass and drove towards a number of police officers who had left their vehicles.

Police said that Escalera tried to run down several officers at the secene with his car.

The officers, after running for safety, opened fire at the vehicle attempting to disable it. In the 10 shots fired by Morales, a West End Sheriff's deputy and an Ontario police officer, one hit the youth. The youth's car traveled another 250 feet and crashed into a block wall in front of a residence.

The youth was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The coroner's jury, after hearing testimony Monday, could rule that the death was an accident or that it came by a means other than by accident.

A coroner's inquest does not result in a determination of civil or criminal liability, or the guilt or innocence of anyone involved.

Cruise liner runs aground

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, Virgin Islands (UPI) — The British cruise liner Canberra ran aground in the harbor on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands Tuesday night and the ship's 1,800 passengers were removed to the town of Charlotte Amalie.

It was the second time in recent weeks that the 44,000-ton liner had run aground in the Caribbean. It ran aground off the island of Grenada slightly more than a month ago.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the Canberra ran aground when high waves generated by 45-mile-an-hour winds caught the vessel as it changed position in Gregory Channel about 8 p.m.

Prosecution rests in murder trial

ONTARIO — The prosecution rested its case Tuesday afternoon in the murder trial for three prison inmates accused of murdering another inmate at the California Institution for Men Dec. 17, 1973.

The trial for inmates Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28; Raymond L. Contreras, 35; and Juan Figueroua, Colon, 29: accused of stabbing inmate Rudolph Cadena to death and wounding another inmate, entered its 23rd day today in West Valley Superior Court.

Inmate Gilbert Sandoval, wounded in the Dec. 17 incident at CIM's Southern-Reception Guidance Center, was the first witness called to the stand for the defense. Sandoval under questioning from Attorney Joe Johnston, defending Mendoza, said he could not recall anything that happened on the day of stabbing. He said that he only remembered waking up and finding that he had stab wounds and a gash in his head.

Sandoval said he considered Cadena his best friend in the prison prior to the incident and they often talked about sports. He said that he never talked to any of the defendants in the case, although he knew who they were.

Testimony in the trial was slightly delayed Tuesday after the three defendants in the case allegedly attacked two sheriff's deputies at the San Bernardino County main jail early in the morning, sending both to the hospital. The defendants were questioned by sheriff's detectives at the main jail for several hours and then taken to the West End courthouse.

Sheriff's department spokesmen said they expect to bring criminal charges against the defendants in the main jail incident.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer rested the prosecution's case after calling CIM Correctional Officers Victor Connell and Robert Breckenridge to the stand. Connell identified a piece of sandpaper found in Mendoza's cell on Dec. 18 and Breckenridge identified a broken chair with a metal brace missing, found in the Southern Reception-Guidance Center's Palm Hall library after the stabbing incident.

Attorney Phillip Plotkin, defending Colon, started the defense portion of the trial by telling the six-man, six-woman jury that the defense will try to prove that his client, and Mendoza were attacked by Cadena and inmate Gilbert Sandoval on Dec. 17. He said their resulting actions were done in "pure self-defense." He said that Contreras, the third defendant in the trial, "like a man possessed" ran over and attacked the fallen Cadena.

Chino Hills should stay open area, say planners

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — The Chino Hills should remain an open area despite a heavy influx of residents to Southern California.

County planners stressed this Tuesday night in reviewing a study being made of the Chino Hills with members of the Chino City Council and city Planning Commission.

The study began last year and has involved a number of meetings with property owners and residents within the study area, said Kenneth Topping, county planning director.

The study area encompasses about 40 square miles and is generally bounded by the Los Agneles, Orange and Riverside county lines, Santa Ana River, and the Corona Expressway.

Communities include Los Serranos, Glenmeade, and Sleepy Hollow, plus the Los Serranos and Western Hills golf courses.

"The majority of respondents to the meetings favor keeping an open character in the Chino Hills, and they also favor the concept of a bedroom area rather than an industrial area," said Topping.

To keep the low density character, officials propose to remove from an existing county plan a proposed freeway corridor, downgrade other roads to scenic routes and delete several secondary highways.

"This will serve the purpose of amking the land use plan feasible," said Topping.

Being realistic, officials must also plan for the future, he added. "This is a major expansion area." Topping estimated a population of between 40,000 and 60,000 in the next 20 to 30 years.

James Tso, a planning staff member, presented a series of slides showing results of the study. These include:

—There are a number of faults in the area, with most being inactive; about 80 per cent of the area is within a high fire hazard area; industries include oil wells, and the Aerojet General Co. testing facility; most residential development is along the Corona Expressay and Carbon Canyon Road; and property values range up to $4,400 an acre.

Two major considerations for the area's development are sewer and water facilities, he added. "We feel the area being served by these public facilities should be developed first. We want to maximize the public facilities."

Tso presented a preliminary land use proposal which indicated a low density use in the south portion. "The area has no major streets. We propose one unit for each 5 to 10 acres.

The map indicated a higher density use in the northern section, with one and two units allowed per acre. This area is more accessible to water and sewer services, he explained.

The county proposes three main commercial areas, which are near major raods and highways. "We don't intend to allow too much commercial use," said Tso.

The county plan did not indicate the proposed Chino Hills Airport. But Tso did provide an overlay indicating the location of the facility and its flight pattern would dissect the southern portion.

Should the airport become a reality, the access to the site would stimulate development, added topping. "You would also need an extension of waster and sewer services to serve the facility. That would also tend to stimulate residential development."

Regarding reported earth faults near the proposed airport site, Toppins said the county had contracted with the state to get a more "definitive" location of al faults in the San Bernardino Valley.

"We hope to get a clearer picture from this study.

Topping said the planning staff plans to hold another community meeting next month, followed by planning commission hearings in October.

Frostbitten toe in heat wave?

LONDON (UPI) — Doctors were astounded.

There, among patients suffering blistered skin and sunburn in a Tuesday heatwave in Britain, was a frostbitten toe.

"The doctor I saw could hardly believe it," said Alan Hirst, owner of the toe.

He said he was marooned for fourteen hours while climbing Mont Blanc in France but didnt seek medical attention until he returned to London.

A hospital spokesman said, "It's the last thing you'd expect. But I'm sure Alan doesn't think it's funny. Frostbide can be painful.

Lots of smoke, little fire at boys' home

LA VERNE — A small fire and lots of smoke sent seven county fire units and a fire truck from the City of La Verne to Le Roys Boys' Home, 233 W. Base Line Road, Tuesday night.

The fire apparently started between the second and third stories of an old building on the boys home grounds which is scheduled to be torn down later this month. No one was injured and no damage was reported.

Stan Keetle, director of the home, said a workman had been using a cutting torch to try to remove a balcony railing on the second floor of the building shortly before the fire started.

The workman was unsuccessful in his attempts and he finally left, firemen said.

Firemen said the old structure was filled with smoke and it was necessary to wear masks to enter the building. The home is located in an unincorporated area of La Verne.

Wrong bombing in Cambodia being probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon reports it is making a formal investigation of the misdirected American bombing strike that killed or wounded more than 400 persons at Neak Luong, Cambodia, 10 days ago.

The strike was made Aug. 5 by a single Air Force B52, which sewed its load of bombs through the center of the little Mekong River town, killing and injuring both Cambodian soldiers and members of their families.

Lt. Gen. Daniel James said Tuesday both human error and mechanical malfunctions were being investigated as possible causes of the Neak Luong incident. The bomb load landed seven to 10 miles off target.

James said the probe is being conducted at Guam, where the plane's crew is based. He said some crew members had requested legal counsel.

No. 10 Downing Street covered up by paint

LONDON (UPI) — Puzzled tourists wandered up and down Downing Street Tuesday looking in vain for number 10, the home of the British prime minister.

Officials explained. The door, which has nothing else to distinguish it from other houses on the street, is being painted, and the number has been removed temporarily.

"We are sorry if it has caused any confusion," a government spokesman said.

Toyota to hike price 5 per cent

TOKYO (UPI) — Toyota Motor Sales Co. said today that the price of Toyota cars exported to the United States will be increased by "about 5 per cent" next summer.

A company spokesman declined to say when the increase would be put into effect.

Toyota raised the prices of cars exported to America by 10 per cent in April, following the devaluation of the American dollar.

Nixon favored 3-1 to survive Watergate crisis

LONDON (UPI)— President Nixon has been given 3-to-1 odds of surviving the Watergate scandal and staying in office by the British bookmaking firm of Ladbrokes and Co., Ltd.

Ladbrokes also offered odds today of 2 to 1 against Nixon's removal from office or resignation before his term ends.

This means persons betting that Nixon will remain in office have to put up $3 to win $1, and persons betting the President will either resign or be removed from office could win $2 for every $1 they wager with Ladbrokes.

"We think that impeachment of an American president would cause such an upheaval that it is very improbable," a Ladbrokes spokesman said Tuesday.

Bid by Reagan to eliminate 'exclusionary rule' rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's controversial proposal to change the rules of courtroom evidence by eliminating the so-called "exclusionary rule" has been rejected by the Senate Finance Committee.

In place of the "exclusionary rule", the bill would establish a procedure allowing persons to sue for damages or suffering as a result of an illegal police search or seizure but still allow the evidence obtained to be used in court.

The measure failed Tuesday on a party line 6-5 vote, with Democrats casting the dissents and Republicans voting "aye." It needed at least seven favorable votes for passage.

Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, author of the bill, asked for and received permission to seek to have the measure's defeat reconsidered.

Even as the committee was considering the bill, Reagan told a news conference he was "a little shocked at the carelessness" with which his proposal had been "interpreted."

He said abolition of the "exclusionary rule" actually had been suggested by Chief Justice of the United States Warren Berger.

"No one is advocating suddenly turning law enforcement loose with no need for a warrant to go ahead with illegal search and seizure," the governor said.

The exclusionary rule has resulted from several court decisions over the years which prohibit evidence from being submitted in court if it was obtained illegally.

Reagan's alternative would allow nearly all types of illegally obtained evidence to be used in court but at the same time government would become liable for damages resulting from the search.

Exempted would be evidence gained by illegal wiretaps or other electronic spying which would remain inadmissible.

Lagomarsino told the committee the rule is "only benefiting the criminal." The measure was opposed by representatives of the California Trial Lawyers Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The bill was included in Reagan's "controlling crime in California" program drafted by his "select" committee on law enforcement problems.

Bill lowering worker share paid into retirement killed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A multimillion-dollar bill reducing the amount government workers pay for retirement benefits has been defeated by the Senate Finance Committee.

Rejected on a 3-8 vote Tuesday, the bill would have cut the amount state and some local workers put into the Public Employes Retirement system from 7 per cent of their wages to 5 per cent at an estimated yearly cost of $19.3 million.

Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, author of the bill (SB1013), contended it was needed in case state workers do not get all of an 11.9 per cent average pay increase voted by the legislature. The raise has been challenged by the federal government as violating anti-inflationary wage guidelines.

The lawmaker said the measure would help state and some local workers in the retirement system "with the cost of living." He said the bill "would stand on its own" even if the full pay hike was approved.

State seeks foster care reimbursement

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has filed to claim $18 million in available federal reimbursements for foster care programs, the chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee says.

In a committee report on foster care in California, chairman Vincent Thomas, DSan Pedro, Tuesday said the unclaimed reimbursement funds occurred because of "inadequate, and in some cases inaccurate, information supplied to the county welfare agencies by the state Social Welfare Department for approximately 2,600 federally eligible children."

To correct the problem, Thomas recommended the department provide county welfare agencies with the needed information and properly identify children qualified for federal reimbursement.

He said the state's failure to claim the $18 million occurred since the inception of the child care program on Jan. 2, 1967, through last June 30.

Thomas also said the reorganization of the state Health and Welfare Department on July 1 to correct department administrative problems and expedite claims for federal funding has been "unsuccessful."

"The reorganization resulted only in minor changes in the relationships among the various agencies for foster care," the assemblyman said.

Thomas said supervision and administration of the state's foster care programs which annually cost $125 million remains "fragmented and causes tremendous fluctuation in payment rates from county to county." He said the programs provide "unequal" services.

Governor wants quiet place for a residence

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, arguing that the governor's mansion should be a quiet residence and not a downtown tourist attraction, said Tuesday two presidents' wives told him they went "stir crazy" after one week in the White House.

Reagan told a news conference that those who advocate building a new governor's mansion in downtown Sacramento "are thinking about a tourist attraction, something they can drive by and point to with pride. They're not thinking about the governors who are going to live here in the future and are going to have children."

Asked if that meant he would not want to live in the White House, which is located in downtown Washington, the potential 1976 presidential contender responded:

"Well, eh, let me answer your question indirectly. I have heard wives of two presidents talk about the problems and how you go stir crazy before the week is out, because you can't even go downstairs and you can't even walk on the grounds.

"You're upstairs, like living above the store, while thousands of tourists all day long, to say nothing of hundreds of employes, are carrying on the business of government downstairs. The White House at one time was intended to be a residence. And it has become an office building. And this is why Camp David came into being."

Reagan wants to build a new governor's mansion on a scenic bluff overlooking the American River east of Sacramento. Asked whether he thought the President should live on a bluff overlooking the Potomac, the governor answered:

"Well, George Washington did."

Panel approves safety measure on hitchhiking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill designed to make hitchhiking safer in California was endorsed recently by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and sent to the full Assembly.

The measure (AB1457) by Assemblyman John Burlap, DNapa, provides for the issuance of state identification cards for hitchhikers with no criminal records. It won committee approval on a 11-0 vote.

Under the bill, the cards would be sold to hitchhikers for a nominal fee. An applicant would be checked by the Department of Motor Vehicles for evidence of any criminal record, which would disqualify him.

1974 governor's race

Governor to back GOP contender

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today he could support any of the five major Republican contenders for governor in 1974.

Reagan also gave Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who has been beset by political problems, another vote of confidence for the job he has done as his understudy.

Asked at a news conference whether he thought Reinecke had fully lived up to his expectations as lieutenant governor and whether he could support him in a gubernatorial race, Reagan replied: "I certainly do."

Reagan then also was asked whether there were any major GOP gubernatorial contenders he could not support. The reporter mentioned the names of former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, Controller Houston I. Flournoy, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, the target of a "draft" movement by some of Reagan's "kitchem cabinet" campaign contributors.

"No," Reagan replied. We've got an abundance of riches on our side. It may turn out to be a problem

Reagan reiterated he was staying neutral in the race, and had so informed the wealthy contributors who were trying to draft Weinberger.

The two-term governor disclosed he met with one group of GOP financiers at a San Francisco airport hotel Aug. 6. Reagan said he called the meeting to discuss financing of this tax limitation initiative campaign, but some in attendance also informed him they were promoting Weinberger for governor.

Those attending the meeting, sources said, included Los Angeles auto dealer Holmes Tuttle, Los Angeles drugstore executive Justin Dart, former Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard of Los Altos Hills and San Francisco industrialist Jacquelin Hume.

Reagan also discussed these topics at his news conference:

Death —He said he would be "inclined" to sign a bill restoring the death penalty for only a few crimes, then seek capital punishment for other crimes later.

Indian —The governor said Timm Williams, his Indian affairs adviser, was fired because he thought "we could get a better rate of achievement" from another Indian.

Future —Reagan reiterated he will not seek a third gubernatorial term next year.

State reward for slaying of officer

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan today posted a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assailants who fatally beat and shot a Los Angeles police officer.

The governor said he believed the state reward offered in the death of officer Fred Early, the father of four children, was unprecedented in magnitude for such a crime.

Early was shot in the leg and beaten while trying to arrest one or more burglar suspects. The assailants vanished and the officer died six months later as a result of head and spinal cord injuries.

"The murder of officer Fred Early must not go unpunished," Reagan said.

The Los Angeles Police Protective League earlier posted a $10,000 reward. Two Los Angeles police department officials appearing with Reagan at a news conference said the Early slaying was the only unsolved killing in the city.

AEC study 'buried'

45,000 would die, 100,000 injuries in nuclear mishap

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg made pubic Monday an Atomic Energy Commission report which indicated a nuclear power plant accident could claim a maximum of 45,000 lives and cause 100,000 injuries.

Denenberg said the 1965 study was buried in "thousands and thousands of pages of documents" at AEC's headquarters and was discovered by Insurance Department investigators.

In remarks prepared for delivery Tuesday, he said the report's obscurity illustrated that the AEC was part of an "atomic estabishment" which uses secrecy and confusion to stifle protest and subvert the pubic's right to know.

Denenberg said the "atomic estabishment" maintains a stranglehold on nuclear energy policy decisions by saying the issues are too technical for public consumption.

Denenberg's remarks were to open three days of hearings sponsored by the state Insurance Department into the insurance risk posed by nuclear power plants.

Ralph Nader along with some of the nation's eading experts on nuclear energy are scheduled to testify.

"The AEC has become a part of the 'atomic establishment,' an unofficial alliance including utility companies, nuclear equipment manufacturers and private insurance companies," Denenberg said.

"Together they make big brotherly decisions as to how much the public should know about nuclear safety and how much financial recovery should be available to the public in case such safety proves an illusion rather than a reality."

"When members of the public have attempted to dig past the rose-colored rhetoric to get at the scientific studies and data... they have run squarely into brick walls labeled 'secret information,'" Denenberg said.

"When, for just this reason, they have elected to oppose the construction and licensing of nuclear reactors in their communities, they have been told that AEC hearings are not proper forums for discussing fundamental doubts about the safety of nuclear power, but only to determine that the proposed plant's nuts and bolts confirm substantially with the AEC's specifications."

"It's a Catch 22 system that works well in keeping the public out," he said.

Devaluation boosted U.S. farm exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Devaluation of the U.S. dollar played a significant role in booming American farm product exports 60 per cent to a phenomenal new record of $12.9 billion in the 1972-73 fiscal year which ended June 30, according to an Agriculture Department report.

The report listed devaluation as one of three major factors in the export surge, along with expanding world food demand from more prosperous consumers and poor 1972 crops in many parts of the world.

Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said in an interview the devaluation was part of a "new monetary situation" which had contributed to skyrocketing demand and prices for many U.S. crops.

The devaluation itself strengthened foreign demand for American foods because it made them cheaper in terms of marks, yen and other currencies, Paarlberg explained. But in addition, he said there has been a worldwide distrust of paper currencies among many investors.

This has produced a growing trend toward investment in gold, real estate and commodities, the economist said.

The Agriculture Department's report said exports of grains alone accounted for more than half the total increase in the value of exports in the 1972-73 season. Another fourth of the gain was posted by soybeans. Among major commodities, there were export declines only for dairy products and vegetable oils. Others which showed increases included cattle hides, cotton, meats, tobacco, poultry products, fruits and nuts and vegetables.

A record $1.1 billion grain deal with the Soviet Union at the opening of the 1972-73 season last fall got nationwide attention. But the new report said nearly every foreign area took a record volume of U.S. farm products during the past year.

Shipments to Japan, for example, leaped to a record $2.3 billion for the year, an increase of $1.1 billion over the previous year as prosperous Japanese consumers reached for increasing supplies of American grains, soybeans, meats, cotton, hides, and fruits and vegetables. In addition, China emerged as a smaller but important market by taking over $200 million worth of U.S. farm products in 1972-73 and placing orders for what likely will be substantially more in the 1973-74 season.

Overall, economists indicated, actual shipments to Russia during 1972-73 amounted to $905 million compared with $135 million the previous year. This gain accounted for 16 per cent in the total increase in U.S. farm exports.

U.S. agricultural imports, the report showed, jumped 20 per cent in the year ending June 30 to a record $5.6 billion. But since the gain in imports was smaller than the export gain, the favorable balance of U.S. farm trade expanded $3.6 billion to a record $5.6 billion. Just four years ago, the favorable balance

$32 million child care funds okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has voted to spend $32 million in state funds to continue child care programs in California until next June if the federal government makes threatened cutbacks later this year.

The bill (AB1244) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, was approved and sent to the Senate Monday on a 65-9 vote after brief debate.

The U.S. Department of Health and Welfare has threatened to implement new regulations Nov. 1 that would sharply reduce the amount of federal funds California receives for child care programs.

Moretti says Gov. Ronald Reagan has agreed to guarantee funding of the threatened programs until at least next June if the new regulations take effect. The regulations originally were to be implemented in February of this year, but they have been delayed several times.

Reagan vetoed $21 million on from the state's 1973-74 budget for child care programs because he said federal funding would be forthcoming.

Moretti's measure would provide $11.7 million for state preschool programs, $6 million for migrant day care centers and $3 million for a two year pilot program for a new state-

IF ONLY IT WERE REAL — If cattle breeders could produce a steer the size of this 15-foot tall monster the nation's beef crisis soon would be over. The plastic steer-on-wheels, giving motorists a mean look at Ortonville, Mich., was positioned to publicize St. Anne Catholic Church's annual roast beef dinner for which the church ordered beef in April and already has in storage.

Mandatory death penalty OK'd

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House has given initial approval Wednesday to legislation that would make the death penalty mandatory for persons found guilty of first degree murder.

The bill was approved on a 130-89 roll call vote after an hour of debate.

Rep. Cornelius F. Kiernan, D-Lowell, House chairman of the Joint Judiciary Committee, said the bill should answer the constitutional questions raised last year by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled that capital punishment — imposed by a judge or jury on a discretionary basis—was cruel and unusual punishment.

Yeah, 3 pounds of hamburger and a rib roast

Anything to declare? border guards ask

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Beef is scarce and expensive in Maine, as in much of the United States, so residents of the Pine State are heading across the border to Canada in increasing numbers to buy meat for their home freezers.

A number of shoppers interviewed this week said they found beef abundant and relatively cheap in Canada.

"They have lots of it over there, and the prices are great," one woman in a small Maine meat market said. "I got ground chuck for 99 cents a pound and T-bones for $1.29."

A UPI poll of several supermarkets, smaller groceries and meat packers in northern Aroostook and Washington Counties found merchandisers reporting not enough beef to supply customer demands.

"Let's put it this way," one meat manager said. "Everybody up here is out of beef no matter where it comes from."

Some Maine residents have found, however, that Canada is the exception. And, because of the $10 limit per person on the amount of beef that can be brought into the U.S., whole families are making trips and returning with $50 or $80 worth of beef at a time.

The Canadian government, in order to insure that U.S. businessmen "raiding" food wholesalers in Canada do not drain the country's supplies, announced temporary controls Monday on the export of beef and pork. But the controls so far are aimed only at Canadian exporters who sell large quantities of dressed meat to U.S. buyers. Individual customers from the states will not be affected by the move, according to Canadian officials.

"Nowadays when they ask you if you have anything to declare," one across-the-border shopper said, "You say, 'Yeah —three pounds of hamburg and a rib roast."

Sponsors, stations shunt abortion rerun

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBSTV says it sold only one of six commercial spots for the rebroadcast of a controversial "Maude" show dealing with abortion and more than two dozen of its affiliates refused to carry the rerun.

CBS said it decided to go ahead with the rerun Tuesday night and a second portion dealing with the same subject next week because to take it off the air would restrict the "creative process."

The shows, originally broadcast last November to an audience estimated by CBS at 30 million, has been criticized by Roman Catholic leaders and antiabortion organizations. In the show Maude, a middle-age housewife played by Bea Arthur, finds out she is pregnant and there follows a debate on whether she should get an abortion, which she does.

A spokesman for the network said that only one of the six 30 second segments reserved for commercials had been sold, indicating a reluctance by sponsors to be involved in a segment of a series normally sold out long before its airing on television.

The CBS spokesman said Tuesday the latest count showed that 25 of its approximately 200 affiliates had turned down the two segments. He added that the affiliates had the right to use or reject the "Maude segments as they saw fit but that in the past the show had been broadcast by as many as 190 affiliates.

In Washington, the United States Catholic Conference reiterated a statement issued ast week by its general secretary Bishop James S. Rausch, which in effect branded the two episodes as advocating abortion.

Rausch said that advocacy may not have been the intention of the producers "but it certainly is the result. He said, "There is room for serious discussion of controversial subjects on television but that was not the issue. The issue is advocacy of one side of a controversy presented under the guise of situation comedy and aired at a time when children make up a substantial part of the audience.

The bishops statement was mailed to 20,000 parishes for public dissemination Aug. 8. The conference spokesman said that "presumably 48 million Catholics were made aware of the statement.

"CBS feels comedy and satire have always been used to treat a wide range of situations, the spokesman said. "If these segments were excluded it would impose restrictions on the creative process and hinder the development of television.

Chrysler predicts '74 sales to top this year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Undaunted by predictions that consumers beset by inflation and gasoline shortages will reject big American cars for smaller imports, Chrysler Corps. top two executives said today 1974 model sales wil better 1973s already successful record.

Opening a preview of new cars and trucks for the nations automotive news media, company president John J. Riccardo said the optimism is based on healthy economic indicators that should overshadow inflation.

Riccardo and Eugene A. Califiero, group vice president, North American Automotive, noted the industry is heading into the end of the third straight year of increased sales.

"While the prospect of another strong year is obviously encouraging to the industry as a whole, I believe it is especially encouraging to Chrysler, Riccardo said in an address prepared for 200 writers and broadcasters.

'Any continuing trend to small cars means more total sales for Chrysler, he said. "We sell more small cars as a percentage of our total volume than either of our major American competitors.

Califiero outlined the changes in 1974 models, including federally required new bumper systems and a sophisticated electronic device to prevent engine startup until seat belts are fastened. Those new features prompted Chrysler to ask the Cost of Living Council Monday for an average $71 increase, or 1.7 per cent, in its new models.

"We havent just met the law in these areas, we have turned them into genuine assets for the consumer, Califiero told the reporters.

Besides more convenient seat belts and better bumpers, Califiero promised their improvements including more front leg room, better air conditioning, a more serviceable

Pensioner's plea to keep 32 dogs denied by board

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Raymond Baiza, a disabled pensioner, has appealed to the county in a last-ditch effort to keep his 32 dogs, which he accumulated during 13 years of befriending strays.

"The dogs are my family, he told the Board of Supervisors, after being turned down by the Animal Control Center in his bid for a kennel license.

An animal control official said Baizas pets pose a public nuisance and have been cause for numerous complaints by neighbors.

Baiza said he was trying to find a proper place for himself and the dogs which he could afford on his $350-a-month pension.

"Grandma is giving Brucie a watch for his birthday," I announced to my husband.

"Why? He still reads books upside down."

"I know. Maybe we should teach him how to tell time."

We sat Brucie down at the kitchen table and said, "Brucie, this is a clock."

"It's five o'clock," he said brightly.

"How did you know that?" smiled my husband, obviously surprised.

"The cartoons are coming on. Then at 5:30, there's 'Gilligan's Island', at 6 'I've Got A Secret', at 6:30 'What's My Line' and at 7 . . . "

"Hold it," said my husband. "The clock has an hour hand and a minute hand."

"You're telling him wrong," I said, grabbing the clock out of my husband's hands. "Brucie, this is a little face with a button nose and two antennae coming out of its head."

"What's an antennae?" he asked.

"Look, Brucie," said my husband, "can you count by fives like five, ten, fifteen . . . "

"You're confusing the child," I said. "Remember the little bumblebee in your coloring book with two little feelers coming out? Those are called antennae. See? One of these antennae is longer than the other one. The long one is the hour antennae and the short one is . . . "

"Brucie, all you have to remember is this side is the after side and this side is the before side."

"Remember it this way, dear," I interjected. "The hand you write with is the after side and the hand you scribble with is the before side."

"What happened to the bumblebee?" asked Brucie.

"You're confusing him," said my husband.

"Does this have anything to do with sex?" asked Brucie.

"When the big antenna is straight up and the little antenna is on your scribble side and looks like a broken chair, it is time for the cartoons," I said.

"Don't strain yourself," said my husband, hanging up the phone. "Your mother just bought him a digital watch."

We both slumped exhausted into a chair. "Remember when we tried to teach him how to tie his shoes?" I asked.

"Wearing loafers the rest of your life isn't the worst thing that can happen to a kid," he sighed.

Philadelphia mayor says he told truth

Polygraph test shows Rizzo lied about patronage deal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A polygraph expert said Tuesday tests show that Mayor Frank L. Rizzo lied about an alleged political patronage deal but the mayor insisted he "unequivocally told the truth.

Warren Holmes, an expert from Miami, Fla., said lie detector tests given Monday to Rizzo, Deputy Mayor Phillip Carroll and Democratic city chairman Peter Camiel showed Rizzo and Carroll lied about the aleged deal tendered in a hotel mens room last February.

Camiel had charged that Rizzo offered to give him the choice of architects for city projects if the mayor could select the partys endorsed candidate for district attorney.

Holmes said he questioned the three men only about the alleged deal in the mens room. He said the tests showed that Rizzo lied on his response to six of 10 questions, Carroll to five of nine questions and that Camiel "told the truth on all 11 questions he was asked.

Holmes report on his finding was carried in todays issue of the Philadelphia Daily News, which arranged for the voluntary lie detector tests.

Rizzo told a news conference shortly after the newspaper came out that "I want to tell you publicly, Rizzo and Carroll told the truth —unequivocally told the truth. We will go before any court in the land and put our hand on the Bible.

Rizzo said he was "sick to my stomach when he learned of Holmes findings and said "my credibility might be affected by the headline Rizzo Lied.

But he termed this a "temporary setback and said "the issue here is who has been corrupt. As a result of this test, I will not back off. We will pursue all facets of corruption in government.

Carroll claimed that a list they showed Camiel in the mens room of the Bellevue Stratford Hotel last February was a list of eight city projects in which City Council President George Schwartz had "excessive involvement.

Rizzo said "I have great confidence in the polygraph. I believe it is an excellent machine. But when I know in my heart I told the truth, then there must be something wrong.

Lumber firms charged with air pollution

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The regional office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency issued notices of violation against eight lumber mills whose tepee burners of wood waste were said to pollute the air.

The mills, located in Sonoma and Mendocino counties, are operated by Georgia Pacific Corp., Louisiana Pacific Lunber Corp., Western Lumber Division of Masonite Corp., Cloverdale Plywood Co. which is a divison of Fibreboard Corp., Redwood Coast Lumber Co. and G&R Lumber Co.

The agency said that if violations continue 30 days beyond the date of notice, an order would be issued requiring compliance within a resonable time. Before such an order, a public hearing would be held.

The EPA said the mills are in violation of county and state regulations, and the state regulations are enforceable by the federal government as well.

Death penalty vote showdown postponed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee with life-or-death power over bills to restore the death penalty in California Tuesday postponed until next week a critical showdown vote on capital punishment legislation.

Chairman Alan Sieroty of the Criminal Justice Committee announced 55 minutes after the panels third hearing was to start that negotiations were under way between proponents and opponents of the death penalty.

Sieroty, a Los Angeles Democrat who opposes restoration of the supreme penalty, adjourned the hearing "to allow those discussions to continue to see whether agreement is possible.

But Assemblyman Frank Murphy Jr. of Santa Cruz, Assembly Republic caucus chairman, protested the action and demanded the issue be decided.

He complained that Republicans were "not cut in on the negotiations and told Sieroty, "I'd prefer to have ous business done in public.

There was a standing room only crowd in the committee hearing room which included a platoon of khaki shirt prison guards who had sponsored last years successful ballot initiative to re-establish capital punishment in California.

Freshman Assemblyman Julian Dixon represented the deciding "swing vote on the seven member committee. He said he would support the bill if it contains the proper ingredients," he told newsmen. He said he waited until Monday to meet with Deukmejian because he could not make up my own mind what the essence of the bill is, and should be."

Food crisis hits schools—cafeteria prices jump

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Increases in salary and food costs, coupled with a scarcity of free government commodities, will hike the cost of school lunches from 45 to 50 cents this fall.

Proportional increases in a la carte items will be made. The adult plate on the elementary and secondary school campuses will go up to 70 cents.

In approving the increase, the Pomona school board Tuesday night revised regulations controlling the serving of free and reduced-price meals by making changes in eligibility requirements and income levels based on inflation factors.

Under the revised regulations, children from a family of five with a monthly gross income of $508 will receive free food. Children from a family of five with a monthly gross income between $509 and $610 will receive reduced-price meals.

As in the past, families will make application for free or reduced-price meals.

In addition to the traditional lunch program, the district this year will serve breakfast for 30 cents.

Free and reduced-price meals are partially financed through agreements the district has with the National School Lunch Program and the School Breakfast Program to receive commodities donated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In another action, the school board gave first reading to a resolution changing the pupil transportation policy to provide bus transportation for Diamond Bar students attending Ganesha High School.

A second reading, and possible board action on the matter, will take place at the Aug. 28 board meeting.

Vice president Ken Pine, chairing the meeting in the absence of vacationing board president Dr. James Bell, maintained control over what could have erupted into an argument on the floor.

A small group of Diamond Bar women urged passage of the resolution so busing could be made available. Three spoke.

A fourth woman urged the board to use the money to restore the sixth period to the high schools. "The transportation bit can be handled by parents. The sixth period cannot," she said.

Pine held the floor and invited those in the audience to return to the Aug. 28 meeting.

Mrs. Elaine Myers, district reading-math specialist, reported on progress made last year in seventh and eight-grade programs and said additional state money is assured to continue programs in 1973-74.

She said the Fremont Junior High School reading project showed the greatest student improvement—1.8 months advancement for each one month instruction—under the reading program.

Board members approved a development plan for inservice training for teachers in history, culture and current problems of racial and ethnic minorities, as mandated by the state code.

Previously set to take effect this fall, the state had set the target date back to fall of 1974 to allow planning time.

Sidney Moses, assistant superintendent of educational services, said that while such inservice training is required for teachers at 22 Pomona schools, "we feel it is worthwhile for all our schools."

The staff is to have its plan ready for board approval next April.

Moses also told the board that the district may receive Compensatory Education funds next year for five additional elementary schools, bringing to 11 the number of Pomona schools receiving such funds.

He said all 11 schools appear to be in compliance with state requirements on the basis of projected enrollments.

Leslie C. Wiese, custodian at Palomares Junior High School since it opened in 1962, who previously had worked at Kellogg, Washington, Kingsley and Harrison schools, was awarded a retirement certificate by the school board.

Tipsters credited in 3 narcotics convictions

Two We Turn In Pushers, Inc., (We T.I.P.), informants have aided Pomona and Montclair police in gaining court convictions of three persons accused of possessing narcotics and drugs for sale in the Pomona-West End area.

Convicted in Pomona Municipal court of possessing barbiturates for sale were Paul Eugene Ham, 24, and Shelly Alcorn, 18, both of 140 Poplar St. in Pomona. Information from We T.I.P. tipster aided police in their investigation which led to the couple's arrest.

Wayne Steven Hale, 23, of 5144 Arrow Highway in Montclair was convicted and sentenced to three years probation on a charge of possession for sales of amphetamines and LSD after his arrest by Montclair police. Police said that information from a We T.I.P. tipster was beneficial in their investigation.

The tipsters have been authorized by the We T.I.P. Board of Directors to pick up their rewards at the prearranged drop point.

Persons with information about suspected drug pushers may call We T.I.P. at 983-9611 or 800-472-7785. Tipsters are instructed not to give their names when calling, guaranteeing their anonymity.

Tipsters are eligible to receive from $100 to $500 reward from We T.I.P., Inc., if their information is partially responsible for the arrest and conviction of a suspected drug pusher.

ACTION LINE

To ask help in solving problems with which you have been unsuccessful, write to Action Line, The Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766. Telephone numbers hard to find in an emergency

I have a booklet titled "In Time of Emergency," put out by the Office of Civil Defense. It is an excellent booklet but like a lot of people, I am sure, I have put off reading it until a "better time." Today I had the time.

On page 2, the booklet has a listing for all emergency phone numbers and therein lies the problem.

I spent considerable time looking up numbers for an amlance, civil defense, my doctors, the Red Cross, etc. What disturbed me is the number of times that I ran into situations like those described below.

I wanted the number for the Red Cross, so I looked up Red Cross. That listing said, see American National Red Cross.

I wanted the Weather Bureau, so I looked under Weather. Nothing! I looked under United States Government. Nothing! Then I found it in the yellow pages. Granted, maybe I should have looked there first.

My point is this. In an emergency, a time of great stress, searching like I have been doing today could make a bad situation turn into a disaster.

I strongly suggest that your readers take the time NOW to look up and list all those phone numbers.—M.M., Claremont.

We carried your search one step further and dialed the number in the yellow pages, since we knew the National Weather Service moved to Riverside last October. A recorded voice informed us that the number no longer was in service.

When we called General Telephone's district manager, he said the listing must have remained in the current phone book through an oversight. Hs promised that those calling the number in the future would be informed of the bureau's change in location and be offered the Riverside number. This promise has been kept.

The American National Red Cross, Pomona Chapter, defends its listing as being the official name of the organization.

In defense of the telephone company, Action Line notes blank spaces on page one of the directory for fire and police numbers, along with the actual numbers of the California Highway Patrol, Federal Bureau of Investigation and U.S. Secret Service. On the same page, fire, police and sheriff's emergency numbers are listed by community.

And on page three, there is a weather listing.

Enclosed you will find many copies of letters I have written to the Michigan Bulb Co. since 1971.

I placed an order on April 19, 1971 and enclosed my check for $15.90. I received my order in May. On Aug. 24, 1971, I wrote to the company complaining of the merchandise. They sent me a "credit certificate." I have tried to get back my money but they have not answered me except for a "letter to preferred customers" including many pictures of their products.

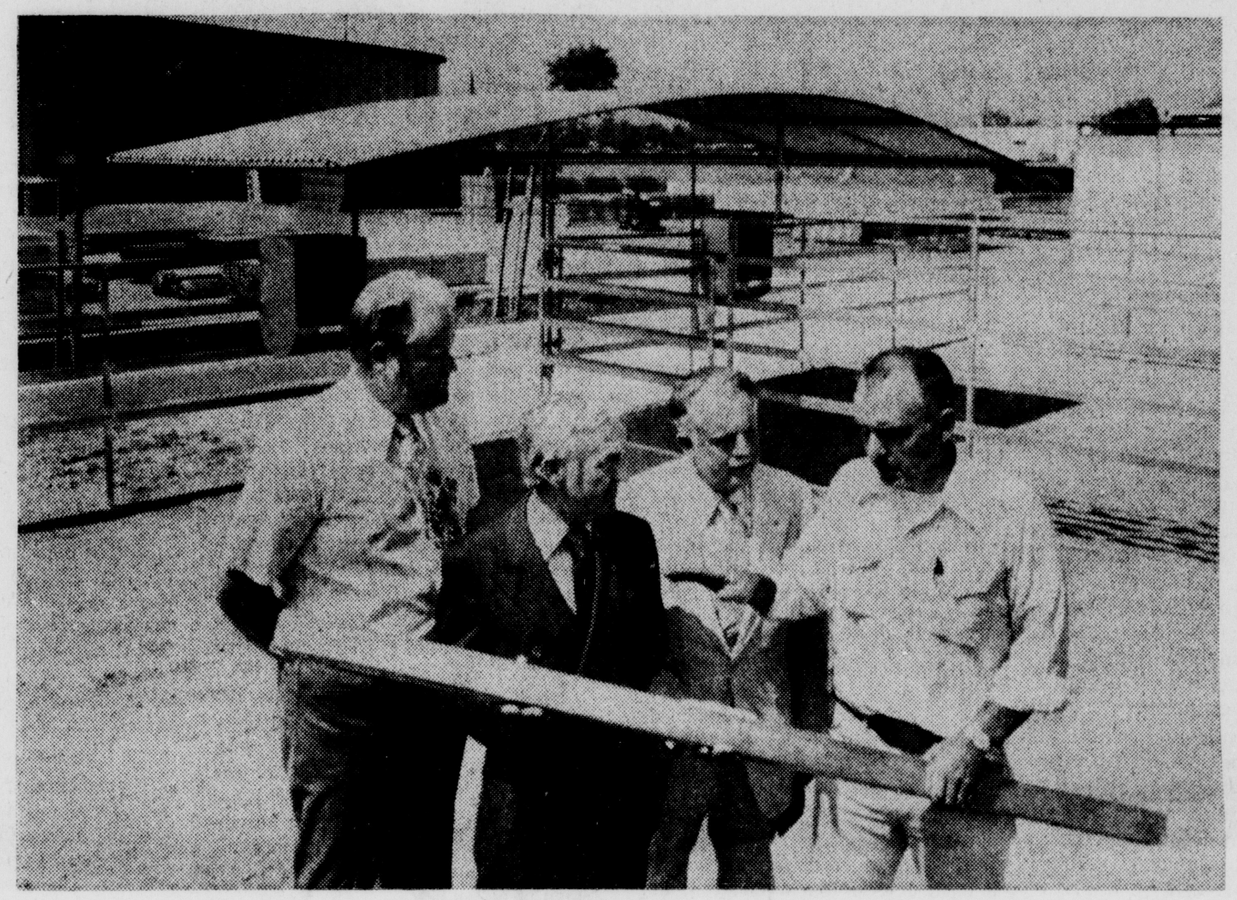
I could not write to you sooner as I have had a heart attack.

Then last January I was taken to the hospital with cirrhosis of the liver. When we received the latest ad from Michigan Bulb my wife was in the hospital.—J.T., Montclair.

A Michigan Bulb advertisement you sent us reveals that the company offers replacement rather than refund for items that do "not develop and flourish to your complete satisfaction."

Nevertheless, the company answered an Action Line letter with a note to us and a copy of a letter sent to you with a refund check.

The firm offered condolences and best wishes in your time of trouble and expressed the hope that your health and your wife's have improved.



NEW INDUSTRY

Shooting incident jails man, 47

POMONA — Police arrested a Pomona man Tuesday afternoon after a neighbor claimed he shot at him with a rifle as the neighbor was driving his car.

Willie James Suggs, 47, of 915 Hyde Ave., was arrested by police on suspicion of attempted murder after Hank Burkes, 33, of 902 Hyde Ave., told police Suggs had shot at him.

According to police, the incident was an outgrowth of a long-standing dispute between the two men over the way Burkes drives on the street.

As Burkes left his residence for work and made a U-turn in the street, police said, Suggs came out of his residence armed with an M-1 carbine and fired one shot at Burkes' car, striking the car's fender.

Mrs. Burkes summoned police who surrounded Suggs' home and called for him to surrender. He was arrested without further incident.

Police confiscated the carbine and 30 rounds of ammunition from Suggs' house.

Pomona plant now open

Corral idea becomes big business

POMONA — Because a rancher grew tired of digging holes for corrals, a new firm was created in Pomona.

John Thornton began to build portable corrals. "It seemed like such a good idea. I wondered if they were saleable, found they were, and have been building them since."

Thornton, 45, of Diamond Bar, started the T. C. Ranch Co. on March 1, 1967, in an old building near the Pomona Mall.

He moved into a new $100,000 building at 2700 Pomona Blvd. last June. City and Chamber of Commerce officials joined him recently in celebrating its grand opening.

The company produces corrals, shelters, feeders and box stall type barns for recreation horses. It also manufactures tent bases, picnic tables and other products for use in semipermanent type camping.

Products are distributed throughout California, Arizona, Oregon and Hawaii.

"We presently employ 20 people in the manufacture, sale and administration, most of whom are residents of Pomona," said Thornton.

Viewing the future, Thornton said he plans to expand the distribution area and also to develop new products. All of this will require an expansion of the existing plant, he added.

"Like any successful company, our growth is based upon the good loyal people who work for us, for without them there is no way we could succeed."

Thornton, married and with three children, is a native of Illinois. He graduated from the University of Illinois with a degree in banking and finance. He served in the Army during the Korean War where he met his future wife, Carol. They were married after he was discharged.

Thornton worked for United California Bank from 1954 to 1960 as a commercial loan officer, specializing in loans to the entertainment industry in Beverly Hills and Hollywood.

He left the bank in 1960 and worked as assistant treasurer and division manager for A J Industries, a company whose stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1962, Thornton "retired" and became a rancher and farmer in Walnut and Diamond Bar. He continues to operate a cattle ranch of about 4,000 acres.

Thornton expressed appreciation received from Pomona officials.

"At this point, I would like to say I have never entertained the idea of moving this company outside the City of Pomona because of our very happy relations with the administration of the city government, including the building department, fire department, police department, as well as elected officials and the city manager's office," he added.

Police chase, nab robbery suspect

POMONA — Police said a Montclair man led them on a foot chase Tuesday afternoon from the scene of an armed robbery in east Pomona.

Officers said that Larry Donaldson, 19, of 4521 Bonnie Brae Ave., Montclair, was arrested on suspicion of the armed robbery of Beck's Cleaners at 1668 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

According to police, the cleaners was robbed shortly after noon by a man who confronted clerk Susan Naquin with a .38-caliber pistol and demanded all the money in the register. The man then fled.

Police, aided by an observer in a police helicopter, converged on the area.

Donaldson was spotted running along Marellen Avenue, police said, where he was stopped and arrested.

A .38 caliber revolver was found in bushes near the arrest scene, along with about $750.

Donaldson was arrested by Claremont police about one month ago on suspicion of burglarizing a house, and in yet another separate incident on Aug. 3 was hospitalized after he was reportedly shot by his twin brother.

Transportation proposal rapped

POMONA — A Southern California Rapid Transit District proposal for a mixed mode mass transportation system was criticized Tuesday night at a meeting of the Community Redevelopment Commission for neglecting needs of the Pomona Valley-Ontario area.

Although the commission took no formal action, members tacitly agreed to a suggestion that the chairman, Charle Stillinger, appear before the City Council to urge a strong position on the proposal.

Although Pomona is a member of the district, the proposal assigns high priorities to cities west of El Monte, which, said Stillinger, "seems to be the edge of the world."

He said it is essential a mass transit system provide improved transportaion for the Pomona Valley and connect Ontario International Airport with Los Angeles International Airport.

Stillinger said, as he understood the proposal, Pomonans and other citizens in eastern Los Angeles County would be paying increased sales taxes to pay for construction but would not receive the same benefits as cities west of El Monte.

Administrator tells Rotarians

PVCH nursing care is 'superior'

POMONA — The quality of nursing care at Pomona Valley Community Hospital is superior to any hospital he has been connected with, administrator Robert Burwell told members of the Rotary Club on Tuesday in the Elks Lodge.

Because the hospital is doing such a good job in this department, Burwell said, the hospital is expanding its service to patients even after they leave. Burwell came to the Pomona hospital more than a year ago from a large hospital in Michigan. He has been in the hospital administration field for more than 10 years.

He said that the hospital now has a customer relations department whose job is to make a courtesy call on the patient after he has returned home and to probe through questioning how the hospital might have improved, if possible, its service while that person was a patient.

Burwell said this kind of service represents a new approach in management examination of how well the hospital is doing its job in terms of patient care, which is the hospital's top priority.

Burwell admitted that hospital costs are high everywhere but the reason is, he said, the high cost of sophisticated medical equipment, specialized medical sections such as the coronary care unit, and the general improvement in pay in the last decade for hospital employes.

He predicted that some kind of national health insurance will emerge from Congress in the next two years and that government involvement in health care will result in deterioration of hospital finances so that hospitals will need to find new ways of generating funds for capital expenses.

According to Burwell, the hospital plans to be more aggressive in soliciting public gifts but no annual fund drive is contemplated. Instead, he said, the hospital will operate similarly to college development programs and selectively seek out donors.

Burwell said that the cost per patient day had not increased the first six months this year as compared to the same period last year and that hospital prices will only increase slightly more than two per cent for the remainder of the year. This is "an achievement that we can be proud of." "Our prime effort," he stated, "is to be efficient and businesslike in our operations but not at the expense of the quality of care."

Evidence suggests, he said, that the number of doctors in the Pomona area may be in short supply in the future. The assistance of the medical staff and the Chamber of Commerce would be necessary, he said, to recruit the needed practitioners and specialists to meet the helath needs of the community.

Another part of the Rotary program was the induction of four new Rotarians, Lewis Manville, Joe Hermosillo, Larry Arcinage, and Bill Klump. Past president Ellson Smith did the inducting.

New approaches to air pollution

According to glowing reports, engineers with the Honda Motor Company of Japan have solved one of two major problems bugging U.S. automakers.

They've done it by developing a "stratified charge" engine, something that has eluded American know-how, which they claim meets the original 1975 emission standards (now postponed to 1976) for carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons.

The stratified charge engine, utilizing dual combustion chambers in each cylinder, would eliminate the need for fuel-consuming add-on devices like the catalytic converters American technology has been pursuing. U.S. automakers are said to be working out licensing agreements with Honda.

There remains the problem of nitrogen oxides, however. To eliminate or reduce these requires recirculating exhaust fumes for further combustion, again at a penalty in driveability and fuel economy.

Just recently, the Environmental Production Agency, at the behest of the auto industry, also postponed this scheduled standard for another year, from 1976 to 1977.

The interesting thing is that the EPA itself has stated that nitrogen oxides are not presently a significant air pollutant in most parts of the nation. This was one of the points touched on by John K. McKinley, president of Texaco, Inc., during testimony before the Senate Air and Water Pollution Subcommittee.

"A single standard for clean air quality on a nationwide basis may not be defensible," he told the senators. In view of the fuel shortage, which he predicted would continue throughout the decade, he recommended relaxing the nitrogen oxide standards for noncritical areas so that exhaust recycling would not be required.

McKinley also suggested that the legislators consider adopting a "two-car strategy"—one type of car meeting more rigid nitrogen oxide standards for California and certain other critical areas, another type for marketing in the rest of the nation.

This, he argued, would be "a simple and practical approach" since neither type of car would require catalysts or special fuels.

The two-car strategy, combined with a noncatalytic solution to carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons (which Honda seems to have accomplished) would save the nation something like three million barrels of petroleum a day by 1985, McKinley testified.

It is, he offered, an idea "worthy of consideration."

Clothes make the student

School administrators around the country are still trying to arrive at an accommodation with the now generation which strikes a balance between absolute individual freedom in the matter of personal dress and some sort of standards, while permitting everyone concerned to get on with the business of teaching and learning.

One midwestern school has come up with a dress code which, it hopes, will achieve that end. At the Crestwood High School in Mantua, Ohio, the following will be frowned upon during the coming school year:

Undershirts (with nothing over them), tank tops (with nothing under them), sweatshirts or jackets with names of gangs or pictures, shorts, sandals without socks and cleated shoes.

For girls, heavy cosmetics, low-cut dresses, sheer blouses or midriff tops and high heels are banned.

Boys must be clean-shaven with sideburns not to extend beyond the jawbone. Jeans and long hair will be permitted but must be kept neat and clean, and shirts must be buttoned and tucked in at all times.

It's pretty rough, but maybe the kids will be able to live with it.

Best interest

There's a lot of talk today about interst rates. . . talk that baffles most of us. But one item in that category need only please us.

Back in 1956 the State's Pooled Money Investment Board was formed to guide the investment of surplus state funds; to put them to work earning the best possible income on behalf of California taxpayers.

With understandable satisfaction. State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest recently announced the higest single-transaction interest earning rate achieved on such investments since the Board's formation. It was a healthy 9.5 per cent on the purchase of $25 million in U.S. Treasury bonds and bills.

This is an especially good indication of the skilled stewardship of the State Treasurer's Office, which invests an average of $250 million a day in surplus state funds. It illustrates why such investments have earned in excess of $110 million for the people of California during the past fiscal year.

People want right to be done

WASHINGTON — Americans have soaked up many a shock lately; no wonder some are punchy. Our leaders have lied to us about war and peace. A 10-year conflict has been lost, all its hopes in ruins. Atrocities have tarnished the image of our military. A dozen congressional figures have been convicted or censured.

Crime rises while law enforcement at the highest levels is subverted; one prominent prosecution after another fails because the jury finds the government more disreputable than the accused. Our dollar has lost almost as much credibility as the White House.

It is a symbol of a world turned upside down that even the late J. Edgar Hoover is now disparaged by superiors. And lest anyone escape the grim news, Watergate dramatizes and compounds it all.

People come to hate those who destroy their faith. They begin to believe that all politicians are corrupt, that the press is incorrigibly venal, that the nation is diseased — all infected by a system that somehow has ceased to work. So persuaded, millions sink into a funk, or rise into a dudgeon, alike vulnerable to the nostrums of political quacks who never fail to come forward.

Must keep writing

Should the muckraker take a sabbatical? No. Until he is ready to concede that America is sick beyond the cure of truth, he must continue to stalk the incriminating memo and the double-entry ledger.

Strangely, enough, he has more confidence in America than most others. In this season of disillusion, when our national spirit is damp and bedraggled, perhaps he can serve by once in a while writing about how his pursuit of grafters and chiselers has taught him to better respect and love his country.

The muckraker's career hangs upon three attributes of our society. First, the relative scarcity of corruption: If it were the norm, it would not be news. Second, the probity of most citizens: If the majority found official corruption undisturbing, the cry of the reformer would become hollow. Third, the ultimate responsiveness to truth, when forced to the wall, of our governmental system: It has demonstrated a unique toleration, however reluctant, of hostile inquiry.

Tough though his hide gets to be, the investigative reporter is as emotionally needful of emphatic response as a clown or an actor. If his public was unmoved by exposures, if his work did not sometimes cause wrongs to be righted, he would soon lose stomach for it and become a speech writer or an ad man at better pay.

People care

He learns in the most intimate way that the people care deeply that right be done. And he comes to know in his bones that though an individual politician, or a government agency, or even a whole administration may be his adversary the American system is his friend.

There is one comforting thing about the nature of crime — its particularity. A Lee Harvey Oswald or a William Calley or a Charles Manson is not representative of a society or an army or a generation. He is an aberrant. We discover this in the peculiarities of his disturbed life; we know it, too, from looking at the rest of America.

Applied to political crimes, the rule of particularity again puts things in balance. Among the affluent and the privileged, crimes are committed by culpable individuals, calculating, for identifiable motives.

Just as the ideologue will excuse the felon in order to indict society as the criminal, the professional patriot bemoans any exposure of flaws because he is not really sure about the strength and goodness of this land and secretly fears it may crumble if the facade is disturbed.

No doubts

The muckraker has no such doubts. He pounces with unholy zeal on any clue of malfeasance precisely because he is secure in his faith that this country is too good and too strong to be hurt by the truth. The pillars will stand; let the dry rot be blasted out.

Perhaps a reporter, like a prize fighter, is in trouble the moment he gets a bit reflective and sentimental. But when I see this nation scourging itself because it must have the truth, I must rise from my wallowings to say and urge others to say, "I love America."

New ideas needed to meet demand

In part, our economic problems are a result of our successes. In part they're due to repeated economic bungling in Russia, China and other Communist lands. (It's truer now than ever that communism and agriculture don't mix.) And in part they're due to the growing ability of the Arab lands to work in tandem when money is involved. (Our own government's contribution to the inflation horror was described in a recent column.)

More people around the world have of late been able to afford meat, automobiles, TVs, motorcycles, houses and services than ever before.

Huge American investments abroad, and the stimulus these have provided to local industry, the sharing of American high technology, the bountiful aid which has enabled a flock of nations to recover from their war and other wounds — have created new jobs and greater earning power worldwide.

West Europeans are riding high. The Japanese too. So, despite the wide prevalence of poverty, are many Latin Americans, Eastern, South and Southeast Asians, Middle Easterners.

This prosperity has created a demand which has outstretched supply—especially in food and processed fuel.

It is interesting to note that this type of prosperity implies that, despite some glaring exceptions, income in many countries is rising for a wider percentage of the people than ever before. The middle class and even the poor are sharing in the larger gross national products now being recorded.

There are more than a handful of countries in the free world in which the incomes of the lower half of the population have risen at a faster pace than the incomes of the upper half.

Somehow the governments of the world and the private producers as well have failed (in part because of unwise regulations and controls, in part because of lack of imagination and in part because of undue caution) to anticipate this growth.

Some of the confusion has arisen because a considerable portion of the increase in demand has been of a different nature than in the past. The increased market for certain types of food may be unprecedented, for example. Other increases have been well below expectations. As a result, investors, managers and government planners have become confused and uncertain.

The men with the power to make decisions in many countries — both officials and in private business — have in too many cases depended on traditional experience, the experience of a different kind of economic world, for their decisions. The result has been chaos in many cases.

In those countries, such as Japan and West Germany, where an attempt was made to look at world economics the way it is today, the rewards have been great.

Super Sam

If the McCarthy Senate Committee to investigate communism was conducted in a more unfair, high-handed manner than the Ervin-Dash for Democrats committee to investigate Republicans, I would be utterly amazed.

And let me there qualify my position that neither Democrats or Republicans can be trusted. They are, without a Constitutional doubt liars, thieves and murderers (legalizers of unborn-baby killing).

But Supercilious Sam and Dandy Dash along with any of the Sanctimonious Senators are allowed to ask or tell any immaterial or irrelevant infomation. But the witness or his counsel are restricted to whatever Silly Sam deems relevant.

If McCarthy was a tyrant, Sam is a clown.

Since Sam is so proud of his ability to read the English language, I wonder how Super Sam would answer that part of the Constitution which states that, "No State shall make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts."

Does his own state of North Carolina pay its debts with gold and silver coin or do they speak a different language than English. If representatives like Ervin (a so-called Constitutional expert) did not condone the stealing of the people's gold and silver by substituting un-redeemable Federal Reserve Notes for the redeemable Certificates, then every State could uphold that "perfectly clear" demand of the U.S. Constitution. — Clayton Stanhope, Pomona.

Gossip for today

Some things never change! As long ago as 1892 the inhabitants of this disturbed planet were worrying about an energy shortage. So much so that in August of that year the London Financial Times stated:

"Coal has had its day. The fuel of the future will be solidified petroleum."

Well, now that future has come and gone and it is beginning to look as though petroleum, solidified or otherwise, is also about to have had its day. So once again the world is worrying about the energy crisis.

Ah yes, some things never change! In that same year, 1892, newspapers throughout the country were reporting:

"The lawyers got $658,000 of the $923,788 paid by the City of New Orleans to the Myra Clark Gaines estate."

So as you can plainly see, "As it was in the beginning it is now and ever shall be." Let's quit worrying and start enjoying life for a change.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon rejected aide's warning

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Concealed in the deluge of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee is this astonishing fact: President Nixon's immediate response to a warning that his chief aide, H. R. Haldeman, might be criminally prosecuted and should be fired was to give him one of the critically important White House Watergate tapes.

That was not Mr. Nixon's only reaction to the visit paid him—and the ominous warning—on April 15 by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen. While recommending immediate dismissal of Haldeman and top domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman, Petersen gave contrary advice concerning White House counsel John W. Dean III: he should be kept on. In less than 24 hours, Mr. Nixon was demanding Dean's resignation.

This chain of events, forged by the testimony of Petersen and other witnesses before the Ervin committee, is unchallenged. It has only two possible explanations.

The first: Mr. Nixon exercised bad judgment out of misguided loyalty to his two closest aides.

The second, and vastly more sinister: he was party to a clandestine arrangement with them.

The real answer would define the President's overall role in Watergate, and it may lie hidden in the surreptitious White House tapes of April 15 and 16.

The importance of the fateful April 15 was starkly etched last week as a bone-weary committee hurried through Petersen's appearance. He testified that on Sunday afternoon, April 15, he briefed the President on the cracking of the Watergate case.

He informed the President that his two top aides, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, might be criminally prosecuted and that he should "get rid of them immediately" to avoid "vast embarrassment." It might be concluded that a criminal case against Haldeman, he told the President, "was in the offing" from testimony of three potential witnesses—Dean, campaign aide Jeb Magruder and possibly Haldeman aide Gordon Strachan.

The President was "calm," testified Petersen. He asked whether Dean, then supplying information to federal prosecutors, should also be fired. "My goodness, no," Petersen said he told the President. ". . . We don't want to give the impression that he is being subjected to reprisal because of his cooperation." The President did not protest.

But according to Haldeman's own testimony of July 31, after that warning from Petersen, Mr. Nixon asked Haldeman himself to listen to the tape of the surreptitiously recorded March 21 meeting between the President, Dean and, intermittently, Haldeman. It was in that conversation, both Dean and Haldeman testified, that Dean told Mr. Nixon there was "a cancer growing on the presidency." All signs point to Haldeman being given the tape April 15 or 16, just hours after Petersen's warning (although Haldeman testified he could not pinpoint the exact time).

Thus, instead of following the advice of his criminal division chief that Haldeman be fired, Mr. Nixon entrusted to Haldeman material so secret its existence was unknown to the Justice Department. Although senior White House aides now explain that the President reviewed the tapes to check Dean's charges against him, in fact no such charges had been made in mid-April. Dean had not told the prosecutors anything to implicate Mr. Nixon.

On the morning of April 16, according to Dean's undisputed testimony, Mr. Nixon scorned Petersen's other recommendation by asking for Dean's written resignation. Dean testified that the President informed him he had no written resignations from Ehrlichman and Haldeman.

The benign explanation for this presidential behavior is given as follows by his present aides: his Sunday session was his first real meeting with Petersen, a career civil servant and a registered Democrat ("He didn't know me from Adam," Petersen testified). Petersen, appointed by Mr. Nixon, was surely loyal. But was he super-loyal? Given the fetishistic veneration of personal loyalty in the Nixon White House, even a Haldeman subject to federal prosecution was infinitely more trustworthy than the honest investigator trying to protect the presidency. The verdict: abominable judgment by the President but scarcely an impeachable offense.

The malignant explanation is incomparably worse: the President and Haldeman were involved in some dark arrangement which made a mockery of Petersen's recommendations.

Benign or malignant? As he waited outside the Oval Office April 16, Dean testified, "Haldeman and Ehrlichman emerged laughing" but abruptly sobered when they saw him. What had they been saying to the President? What did the President say to Haldeman, April 15 or 16, when he asked him to review the March 21 tape?

The answer may lie in the White House tapes of those two days—tapes not even requested by special prosecutor Archibald Cox or the Ervin committee.

Reserve enlistment terms being reduced

UPLAND — Army reserve units throughout the state are cutting their enlistment terms for men without previous military service from six to four years for the next month and one half, Maj. Dwane E. Mickelson, commanding officer of the 426th Civil Affairs Company here, has announced.

Under a new enlistment option being tried between July 1 and Sept. 20, men without prior military service may join the Army Reserve unit in Upland for four years, and then transfer to an individual ready reserve unit for two additional years. In the past, men without prior service had to sign up for six years of duty with an Army Reserve unit.

"This new four - year unit option should be appealing to recent high school graduates," Maj. Mickeson said. "They will no longer have to committ themselves to active participation in a unit for as long a period of time as in the past, but will benefit still from the up-to-date skill training offered through the Army Reserve," he said.

Mickelson said that the 426th Civil Affairs Company has openings for and is willing to train men to become mechanics, clerk typists, and safety personnel. Since many of those skills have a civilian application, the Army Reserve training can lead toward a profitable civilian career.

After enlisting in the reserve, an individual spends from four to six months at an active Army installation where he takes his basic and advanced individual training.

He returns to his home town and attends meetings with his regular reserve unit, and goes to two weeks of annual training with that unit each year.

The 426th Civil Affairs Company meets one weekend a month at Thrall Army Reserve Center at 1284 E. Seventh St.

Supervisors approve countywide vocational training instruction

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — The Board of Supervisors this week gave unanimous approval to a countywide vocational training plan presented by county Superintendent of Schools Roy C. Hill. Success of the one-year program first instituted at Colton, Redlands and Yucaipa prompted Hill's request to make the program available to all areas in the county.

The Regional Occupation Program, called ROP, was promulgated to provide down-to-earth training for jobs, offering classes to train people as grocery checkers, dental technicians, medical assistants of various kinds, retail sales clerks, welders, service station attendants and many other jobs.

Hill told the supervisors that he was in receipt of many endorsements of the program from school districts all over the county including Barstow, Bear Valley, Fontana, Morongo in Twenty-nine Palms, Needles, Rialto, Rim of the World in Arrowhead and the San Bernardino Unified School District.

The program also makes use of on-the-job training with cooperating businesses and holds evening classes in school rooms. Hill said that anyone can join the classes and as they are "open end" they can drop out of a class when they so desire. Hill emphasized that applicants don't have to be formal students or of any age or sex, just to be interested in learning to work in a job or trade.

The programs will be funded by district school taxes and will result in very minimal increases, the board was told. State funding will be made available in the near future, Hill said, as a recent state mandate requires that all school districts will participate in the program.

Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala expressed great interest in the program, reminding the board that he had tried in vain to foster a program which would allow use of the unused state building at Chino for a similar program designed to train everyone wishing to learn a trade.

Permit issued for hospital remodeling job

ONTARIO—Remodeling of a hospital and construction of a new industrial building topped building activity here last month.

City officials issued a building permit to Ontario Community Hospital for expansion of its surgical area plus addition of new air conditioning units. The project is estimated at $240,000.

For the month, officials reported issuing a total of 89 building permits, representing a valuation of $582,876. This boosts the totals so far this year to 619 permits and an $8.5 million valuation.

No permits were issued for new dwellings. But 43 permits were obtained for alterations to existing dwellings. The projects represented a valuation of $63,857.

SAVING FOR SIGHT

Showing some of the aluminum can tabs that they have collected are, from left, brothers Chon Sandoval, 10, and Jessie 12, and Mike Armijo, 14, of Chino. The boys have collected over five pounds of the tabs to be used toward the purchase of a seeing eye dog for an Upland woman.

West End boys seeking funds for guide dog

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — They haven't been in the West End long, but three young Chino boys have joined the humanitarian efforts of several others trying to obtain a seeing eye dog for an elderly Upland woman.

Mike Armijo, 14, Jessie Armijo, 12, and Chon Sandoval, 10, heard about the collection of aluminum can pull tabs from Mary Leuck, a neighbor. Mrs. Leuck was visiting with the boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Vega, and everyone sat around drinking canned soft drinks.

"As they were about to throw the tabs away, I mentioned that a group of people where I work (Road Ranger Kit Manufacturing), were saving tabs to help this blind lady get a seeing eye dog. We need 10 pounds to get it," said Mrs. Leuck.

"The boys became intrigued about it all and offered to help. They've collected five pounds in less than two weeks," she noted.

Mike explained that he and his two brothers "didn't have anything else to do. Summers are boring, so we decided to help."

Mrs. Leuck was told of the aluminum tab collection by a coworker, Carmyn Solly. After weighing the tabs at the trailer manufacturing plant, a friend of Mrs. Solly's delivers them to Mildred Meadore, a patient at Arlington Convalescent Hospital in Upland. Approximately 15 persons are actively involved in the collection.

"We have a soda pop machine at work that's strictly cans. So we save all the tabs there we can," said Mrs. Leuck.

The three brothers pick up the tabs off the streets, in shopping areas, from parks and from friends. In a sense, their efforts to help have turned into a miniature clean-up campaign for Chino streets.

Both Mrs. Vega, who has five other children, and Mrs. Leuck are quite proud of Mike, Jessie and Chon.

"It's quite nice, I think," said Mrs. Leuck. "That's a lot of tabs, a lot of picking up. This makes a better headlines than some I've seen this week. Everybody's working together, working toward getting someone a seeing eye dog. These kids have put in a lot of effort for this."

Mike will be in the ninth grade in September at either Don Antonio Lugo or Chino High School. Jessie and Chon will repectively enter the sixth and fifth grades at El Rancho School. The family of 10 has lived in Chino for about seven months.

Persons wishing to donate aluminum tabs may take them to the Veja home at 13279 14th St.

Membership expanded by Ontario 500 Association

ONTARIO — The Ontario 500 Festival Association is being expanded.

Once limited to 400, the membership will be enlarged this year to 500.

Cost is $45 a year, which includes admission to the California 500 mile race, plus other events which include twin 100-mile qualifying races. In addition, members will receive tickets to a motorcycle race and the Supernationals.

The association is responsible for all festival events which precede the California 500 race.

These include a queen coronation, mayor's reception for drivers, a fashion show, parade, art show, golf tournaments, and for the first time this year the finals of a soap box-type derby.

The association was formed prior to the first 500-mile race to create a festive atmosphere for people visiting from other parts of the nation and also to involve persons from the local area, said Helen Palmeiri, festival coordinator.

"This type of racing was new to this area, and we wanted to give local people an opportunity to participate."

While most members are from the Pomona Valley, they also extend to Indianapolis, Denver, San Diego, Northern California and the Los Angeles area, said Mrs. Palmieri.

Richard Klein, a local industry owner, is the chairman. The association is operated through the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Persons interested in obtaining membership may call Mrs. Palmieri at 984-2458.

117,993 OIA travelers in July

Passenger record broken in month

ONTARIO — It's up, up and away at Ontario International Airport.

For the second month, a new record has been set on the number of air travelers.

The July total of 117,993 eclipsed the previous June record of 112,986.

And based on past records, a new passenger record could be set during August.

"August is traditionally a peak passenger month here," said AL Dubiel, the aiprort's public relations representative. "We expect to go over 125,000 this month." Besides vacation traffic in August, the airport will receive visitors to the California 500 auto race.

At the present rate of increase, the airport could also set a new yearly record.

The airport recorded 1,029,000 passengers during 1972. "We are running 15 per cent ahead of last year, and our yearly total could reach from 1.12 million to 1.15 million," said Dubiel.

One factor in the passenger increase is the number of charter flights being booked here. "The growth has developed over the past month and a half," he added. Those scheduling the charter flights include various religious groups, Boy Scouts and the Denver Broncos, a professional football team.

The passengers are grouped under "non-scheduled" passengers. The total increased from 494 in July 1872 to 3,639 last month.

The largest number of passengers, however, are those on scheduled flights.

For July 1973, these totaled 101,800, compared to 83,420 the same month last year. The monthly total boosted the commercial passengers so far this year to 575,551, compared to 487,120 the same period last year.

Passengers on scheduled commuter flights reached 12,554 last month, a slight increase over the 12,101 in July 1972.

With a passenger increase over July 1973, the airport last month recorded fewer flight operations — 12,595 compared to 13,145. An "operation" is either a take-off or landing.

Last month's flights included air carrier, 3,160; alternates, 3; air taxi, 1,933; military, 900; and general aviation, 6,599.

During July, the airport also handled 456,635 pound of air cargo, a big jump over last July's total of 310,707 pounds.

Last month's cargo — 422,256 pounds of air freight and 34,379 pounds of air express — boosted the total so far this year to over three million pounds.

Ontarian, 64, ruled suicide

ONTARIO — Truitt Franklin Ballard, 64, of 564 W. D St., died Monday night in his home of what Ontario police said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head.

Ballard was found near death about 8:17 p.m. in the bedroom of his home. He was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital by ambulance where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Police said that they found a Winchester 32-20 caliber revolver on his bed and a note with his "last will and testament" on a nightstand. Ballard, according to police reports, was in ill health and depressed.

The doctor comments

If nausea persists, consult doctor soon

DEAR DR. LAMB — We seek your column as soon as the paper is delivered and have read your helpful advice to others. May I ask you a special favor for a mystifying condition that exists at our home? An early reply may ease our worried minds.

It is now two years since my sister (83 years old) was stricken with this illness. Truthfully, I think it is a case of nerves, due to nothing to occupy her mind. She has lived alone for many years like a cocoon, making no friends and being very suspicious of people wanting to mind her business.

She became fearful of living alone. I am her only sister. She had fallen at times, lost the sight of one eye through glaucoma, and was fearful of falling and breaking an arm or leg.

We belong to a very fine medical plan, got her to join, went to the numerous, thorough tests and came through with a clean slate of health. She has continuous nausea, wakes up with it, and it lasts all day, but she never loses her food. The only thing they found was a hiatal hernia. The doctor said at this age it wasn't advisable to operate.

She wasn't satisfied and feared cancer of the stomach, so we took her to another doctor and he too couldn't find anything wrong. I think it is "psychosomatic."

After reading this description, what is your diagnosis and would you suggest we take her to a stomach specialist?

Dear Reader — Persistent nausea is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be caused by nervous tension and a variety of disorders of the digestive tract, including hiatal hernia, and changes in the brain associated with fatty deposits in the arteries.

Individuals past 80 often have poor circulation to the brain. There are so many changes which can occur in the brain and its control of the personality and functions of the entire body, that it is sometimes difficult to pinpoint them. Your sister may be responding less well to stress, and may be having changes in personality because of changes in her arteries.

It would be wise to have your sister checked carefully by a gastroenterologist, a specialist in stomach problems. He could examine the status of her hiatal hernia to see if it is a contributing factor. If she has a fairly persistent one, lying flat at night may be causing her problem. The acrid digestive juices may be spilling back into the lower part of her esophagus, causing irritation of the esophagus and nausea.

It is probably true that surgery isn't indicated in her age group. If the hiatal hernia is a problem, careful attention to medical management may help a great deal. This would include elevation of the head of the bed, small meals, neutralization of any excess acid she might have (this may not be a problem in her age group) avoiding anything tight around her waist, such as belts, clothing, girdles, and avoiding stooping. The doctor could advise her regarding the over-all aspects of living patterns to give her maximum benefit.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's new booklet on hiatal hernia, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Hiatal Hernia" booklet.

Bridge

Which king is unguarded?

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In explanation of the bidding, South was Sir Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player. North was Sir Dinadan, the least adept knight and worst bridge player.

Dinadan's bidding was usually sound, so after the opening two-bid Sir Lancelot used the convention just invented by Sir Easley of the ebony wood to check for aces and went right to seven no-trump.

The wily Mordred opened the three of spades. Lancelot checked dummy quickly. He saw that Didadan would have had a reasonable play at seven spades if he would know enough to try a ruffing finesse in clubs, but that seven no-trump could only succeed if both missing kings were in the same hand.

Lancelot ran off six spades and four hearts without any fanfare. His own discards were the three and queen of clubs and seven-eight-nine of diamonds.

Sir Greeth, sitting East, had no discarding problems and Lancelot decided that Mordred did hold both kings. Mordred's discards in order were the 3-6 diamonds, deuce of clubs, 10 of diamonds and finally a slips palmful of 10 of clubs.

Which king was now unguarded? If Gawaine had been West there would have been no problem. The club king would be all alone. Against Mordred it probably was the reverse so Lancelot led a dimaond to his ace; dropped the king and had won another victory.

Big jump in Phase IV

Cost of feeding family rises 15%

The Agriculture Department said this week the cost of feeding an American family during the second quarter of 1973 was 15 per cent higher than a year ago, but local surveys indicated that the jump was much greater since the beginning of Phase IV.

A daily United Press International survey of 10 supermarkets in 10 cities across the country since the ending of the food price freeze July 18 showed prices in some categories rising more than 60 per cent.

Agriculture Department economists in Washington said the retail cost to feed the statistical family of 3.2 persons rose in the second quarter—a period when meat prices were controlled but before the June 13 freeze on other food—to an annual rate of $1,497, 6 per cent higher than the first quarter and 15 per cent higher than a year ago.

Prices go up

But in the more than three weeks since the freeze was lifted, the UPI survey showed that most prices that could go up, have gone up. Some, such as poultry and eggs, have increased startlingly.

An uncut chicken that was selling for 59 cents a pound in Columbus, Ohio, during the freeze was selling for 99 cents a pound Friday—a jump of 40 cents. Elsewhere between July 18 and Friday, uncut chicken went up 34 cents in Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, 32 cents in Atlanta and New York, 28 cents in Dallas, 24 cents in Chicago, 21 cents in San Francisco and 20 cents in Washington, D.C.

Eggs showed a similar jump, ranging from up 20 cents a dozen in Dallas to 30 cents in New York. Milk was generally up a few cents everywhere, with the biggest changes registered in Dallas, up 22 cents a half gallon; Atlanta, up 20 cents, and Columbus, up 13 cents.

Bread, despite rising prices for wheat futures on the Chicago market which could be passed on to consumers later in the year, fluctuated on the supermarket shelf, being up six cents a loaf in Washington, but down eight cents in San Francisco.

Chicken legs up

A survey by the Chicago office of Consumer Sales showed that prices in the area supermarkets had increased on 28 of 37 major food items during the past week. Chicken legs went up 40 cents a pound in one week and a lamb roast was 33 cents higher. Other increases showed turkey wings up 17 cents a pound, ham ribs and shank up seven cents, romaine lettuce up 22 cents, celery and corn up six cents a pound and butter up four cents.

Stater Bros. to open market in Claremont

CLAREMONT — Stater Bros. officials are preparing the new market at 1055 W. Foothill Blvd. for a three-day grand opening Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

As officials cut the ribbon at 8 a.m. Thursday they will be opening the 48th market in Southern California for the fast-growing grocery chain.

Store manager Jack Walker reported that during the grand opening celebration, refreshments will be served and that everyone will have an opportunity to win items such as a television set, radios, cameras and toys.

Free bags of groceries will be given away to certain customers during the three days, Walker said.

Walker reported that the new market is designed to bring the finest service at popular prices to its customers.

More than 26,000 square feet of floor space will feature the most advanced designs in merchandising equipment and fixtures.

Easier selection of fresh foods is assured with the modern refrigeration equipment in meat, dairy, delicatessen and produce departments, Walker said.

Customer preference in meat is offered in both prepackaged and service meat, he commented. "Quality is offered with USDA choice and especially selected Stater Bros. certified beef," Walker said.

Walker noted that customers also will find complete shopping in the many nonfood departments, such as plumbing, and electrical supplies, greeting cards, garden items, dry goods and notions and a large health and beauty aids department.

GRAND OPENING SET — The Stater Bros. chain will open its 48th market in Southern California Thursday at 1055 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont. The grand opening will be observed Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The supermarket occupies 26,000 square feet of space and will be managed by Jack Walker.

Disabled vets must sign for clothing aid

LOS ANGELES — Eligible service-disabled military retirees not currently on Veterans Administration rolls should apply now to ensure prompt receipt of their annual $150 clothing allowance.

Gordon R. Elliott, director of the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Regional Office, said checks will be mailed on or about Sept. 1, and pointed out that retirees need not waive any portion of military retirement pay to qualify.

Annual clothing allowances are authorized under Public Law 92-328 for service-disabled veterans whose prosthetic or orthopedic devices (artificial limbs, braces, wheelchairs, etc.) tend to wear out or tear clothing.

Elliott explained that military retirees should take action regarding the clothing allowances because the VA does not maintain current records on retirees who elect military retirement pay in lieu of VA compensation. This means retirees must file annual claims for the benefit, he stressed.

Eligible vetersns (including retirees) on the agency's compensation rolls get annual allowances automatically after initial application.

Claremont youth panel to convene

CLAREMONT — Continued discussion on alcohol at Taylor Hall, fair employment practices for youth, and Brotherhood U.S.A. are items on the agenda for the Youth Commission meeting tonight at 7:30.

At its Aug. 1 meeting, the commission unanimously voted against the drinking of alcohol at Taylor Hall because of the community buildings proximity to the Claremont High School campus.

Youth Commission Chairman Chris Hammond had reported that a local ice cream store was forcing youth workers to work two hours overtime without pay to clean up, and that the city attorney, the employes and employers would be contacted.

Hammond will report on the students who are attending Brotherhood U.S.A. at Camp de Benneville Pines north of Redlands.

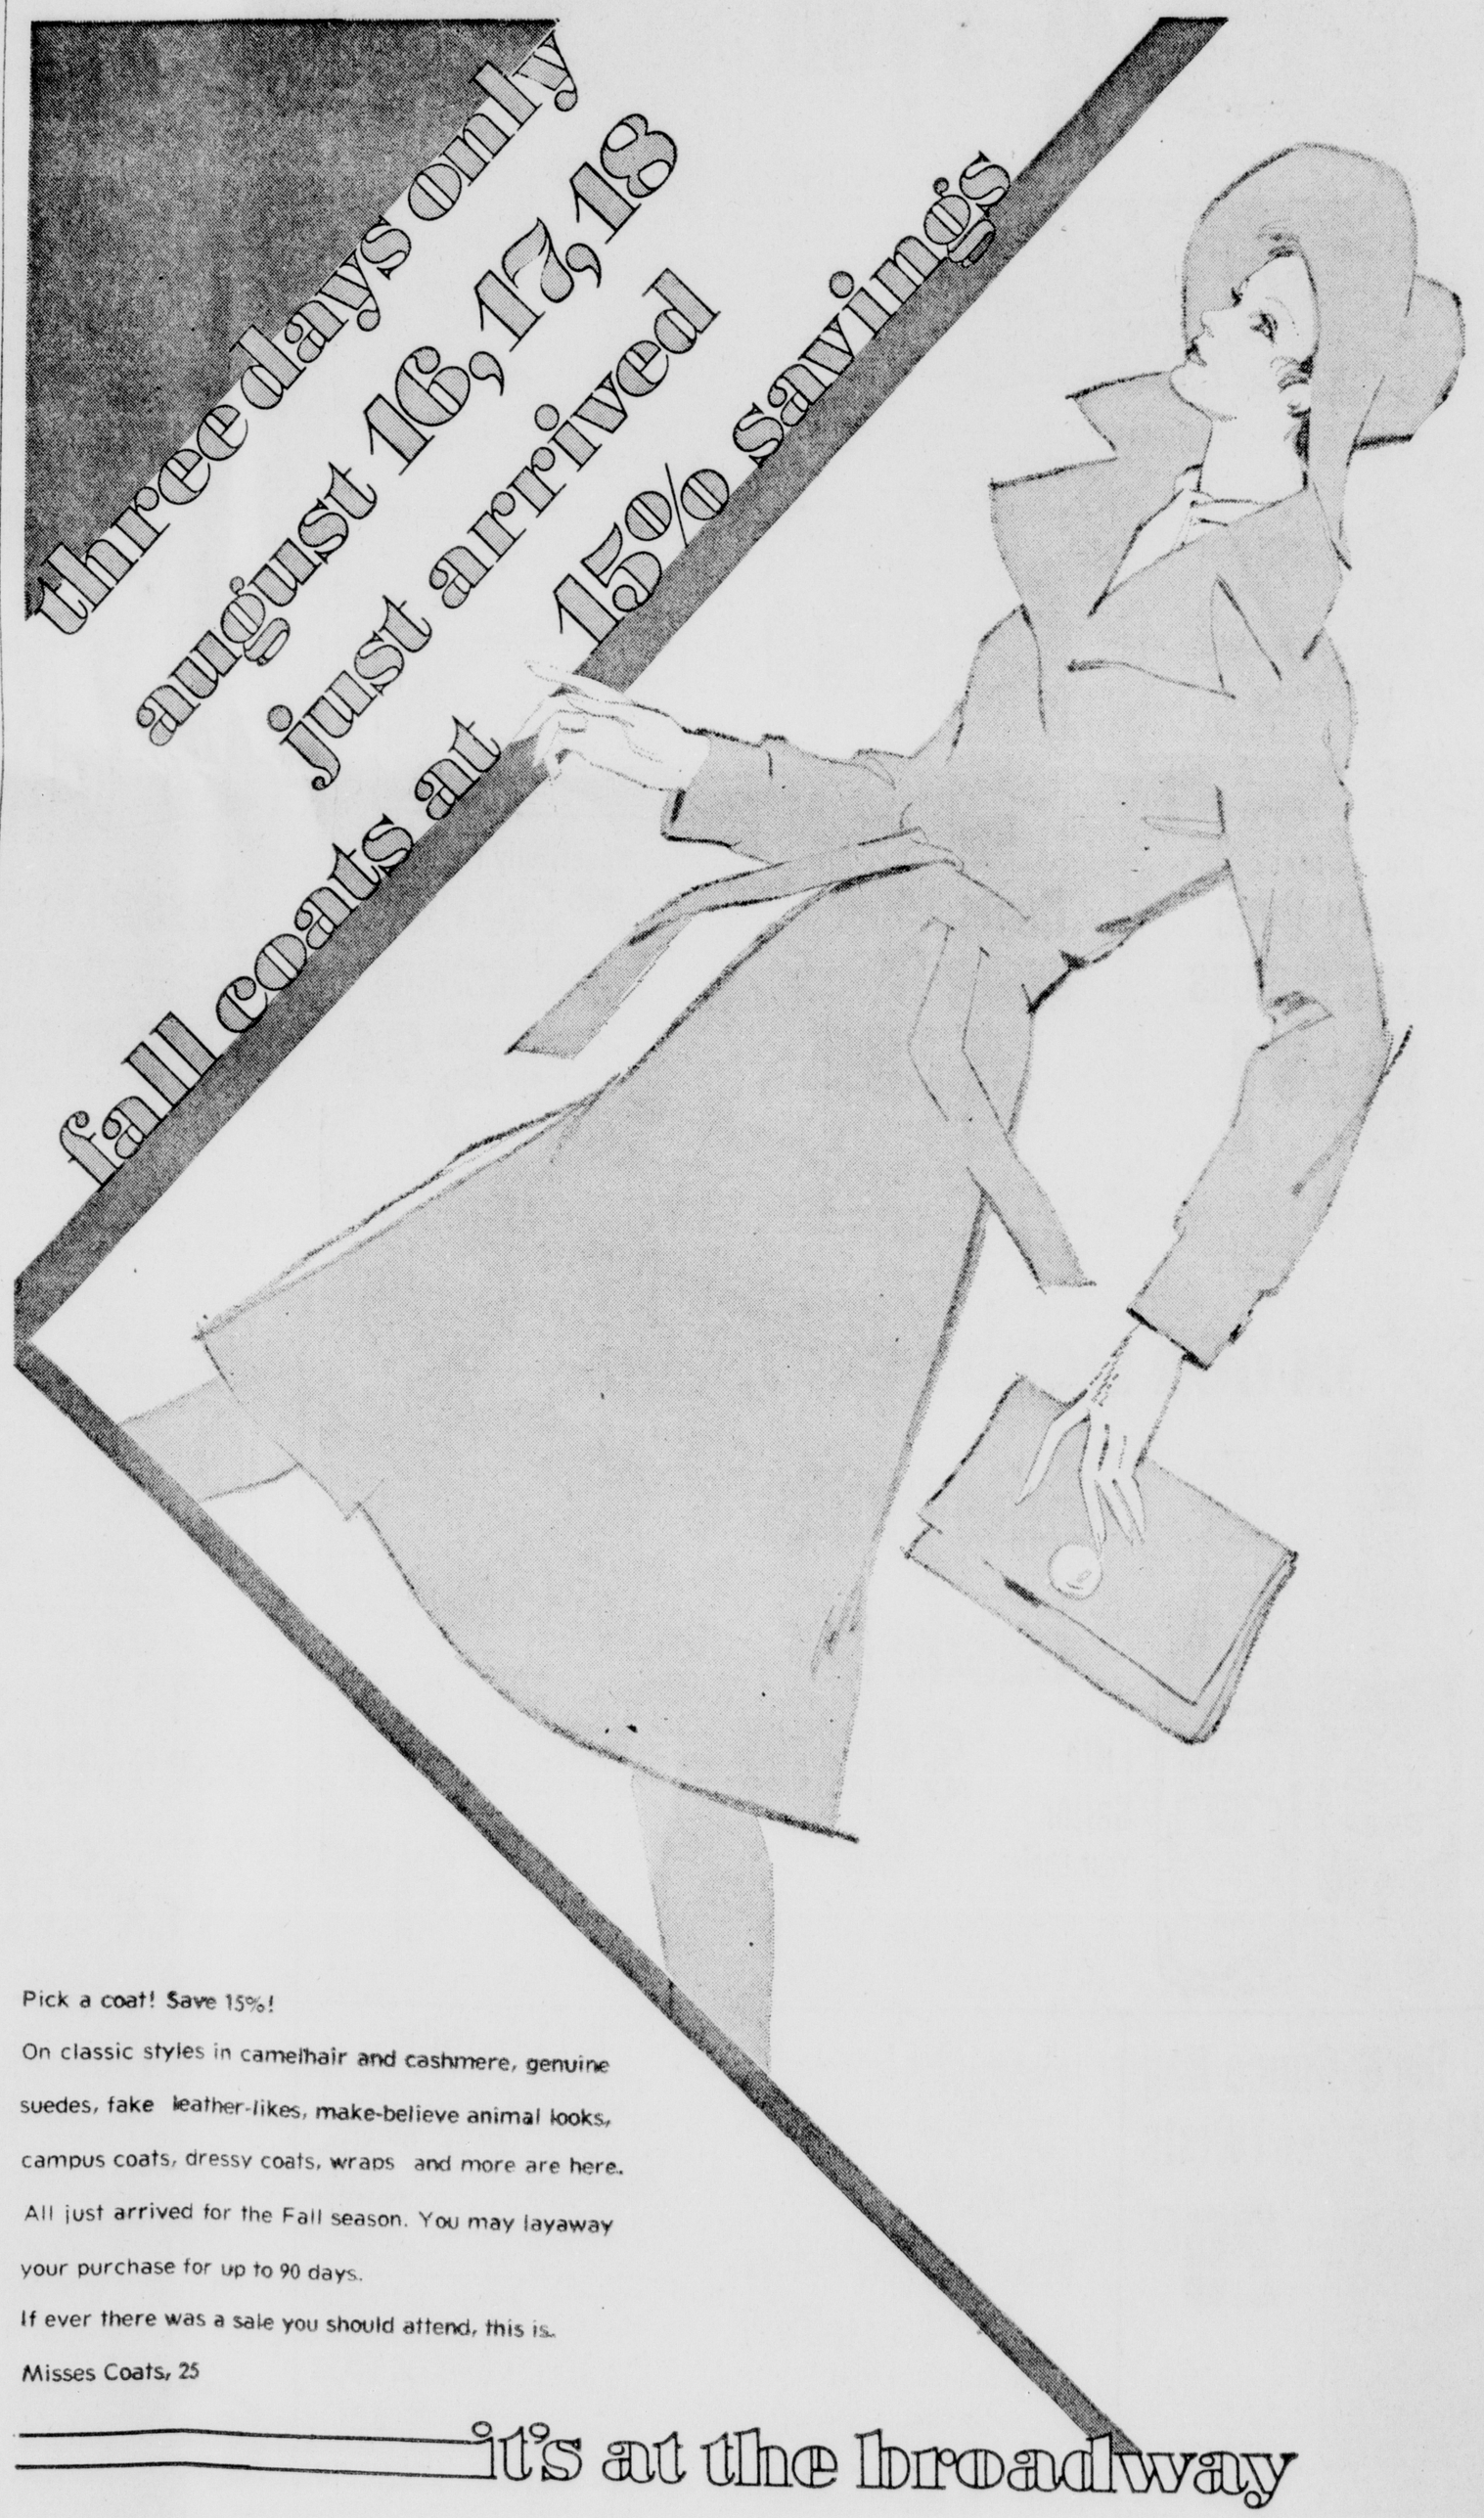
Masonic Home for Children to be dedicated

COVINA — A ceremony dedicating the new Masonic Home for Children here will be held Saturday at 2 p.m.

Highlight of the dedication ceremony will be the installation of a cornerstone by William H. Price, grand master of Masons in California and Hawaii.

The newly constructed home is built on the same grounds where the Masons first opened the home in 1915.

Located at 20336 E. Badillo St., the home presently serves as a home for 58 children and has served over 1,750 since it first opened its doors.



WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Passenger pigeons once were regarded as America's most numerous birds, flying in flocks estimated at between one and two billion. The species became extinct in 1914, when the last specimen died at the Cincinnati Zoo. The World Almanac notes that the passenger pigeon's swift decline is attributed to disease, destruction of its food supply and its ruthless, unrestricted slaughter by man.

He has thing against the tall person

Dear Walt: I have come to suspect that I am prejudiced towards people who are taller than I am. Recently I realized that I don't have one single friend who is over 5'8", and that I don't have one person I really dislike who is under my height of 5'7". Is this a common prejudice? — J.J.

Dear J.J.: It's rather common. Most of us unconsciously feel we can handle folks of our own height or lower, while taller people seem to have an unfair advantage over us. In actual fact this frequently isn't true, but nonetheless the feeling remains, and so we steel ourselves to do battle with the biggies.

When in all likelihood the battle remains unfought, the tension we've accumulated can turn into quite unreasonable "hatred" for the tall person. Perhaps, now that you've realized your prejudice for yourself, you'll be more ready to realistically measure the validity of future height prejudice. — Walt

Dear Ele: This boy gave me a psychological test where he told a story, and I completed blanks he left in it. Because of this he told everyone that I am very sexually experienced. This is not true, although I have read a lot about sex. What should I do? — Mimi.

Dear Mimi: When you hear about the sex researcher's evaluation secondhand, just laugh out loud at how much the guy could be taken in by book learning. The fact that you're not in a range or super defensive, should underscore the nonvalidity of his "study." — Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: Have you ever heard of anyone being addicted to tea? I think my mother is and I'm worried that it might hurt her health. She drinks upwards of 20 cups a day and really freaks out when we run out of the stuff. She is a very nervous person and gets upset very easily. Could these be signs of a tea-addict? (This is not a joke.) — Andy

Dear Andy: According to some researchers, tea packs more caffeine than coffee. If mom is supertwitchy, urge her to see the family MD for a checkup. If you think she won't mention the tea consumption herself, keep an accurate record of her daily quota for a week and phone in the information to the doc.

After seeing her score, he may decide to order mom to replace tea with orange juice, etc. for a few weeks to see if her nerves jangle less. — Ele

Heat hinders N. Y. firemen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fire erupted in a six-story brick apartment building Sunday, forcing all 375 residents to evacuate. Twelve firemen were overcome by smoke and treated at local hospital.

The fire started in a kitchen stove.

"It was just so blazing hot," said Thomas Dregan, one of the evacuated residents. "Just standing there a hundred yards or so away from the fire I felt like I was on fire myself. The smoke was so black and so thick you couldn't see a thing, and it was almost impossible to

Fashion seers say the big, bushy bow tie is the kind that's tops with males who are trendsetters. Despite what's said, that type of tie doesn't seem to be leading any fashion parade. Takes a lot of courage to wear?

Don't jump off the high platform shoes yet, says the American Footwear Institute. There's a lot of happy hoofing left there, especially for the young, who still have their hearts set on the high-rise soles.

The bride wore an empire gown of silk organza with a bodice and bishop sleeves of alencon lace. Lace appliques accented the full skirt which flowed to a chapel train.

A bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and stephanotis was carried by the bride who wore a headpiece of alencon lace and seed pearls which held her waist-length veil.

Women show concern

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's young women show the usual concerns about clothes, boys, and careers after college.

But they show also deep concern with Watergate and President Nixon, today's more permissive morality, our ecology, and our world involvement to name a few.

They also talk in retrospect about their lives, even though they are just getting out of their teens.

These are some of the topics that emerged from a rap session with eight college women—juniors and seniors—during their week-long visit to New York recently.

The trip, including glamour trappings like the theater and getting hair and makeup done at a famous Fifth Avenue salon, was part of their reward in a Cover Girl contest now in its fourth year.

All also won scholarships.

The sponsor of the annual competition is Masland Duraleather of Philadelphia, producer of upholstery vinyls. Each year, the manufacturer chooses 150 college girls to represent it at major furniture markets and help establish communications between the home furnishings industry and today's youth. The eight finalists were drawn from the 150.

This year's national scholarship winner of $2,000 was Mary Anne Shirley of Macon, Ga., a senior at Agnes Scott College, Atlanta.

Regional winners of $1,000 scholarships each were:

Chrissa Cutrona of Wilmington, Del., senior at High Point, N.C. College; Linda Dyson of Richardson, Tex., a junior at North Texas State University; Kathleen Heckler of Palo Alto, Calif., a junior at Foothill Junior College, Palo Alto; Joyce Jakobczak of Chicago, senior at the University of Illinois; Deborah Misenheimer of Rockwell, N..C, a junior at Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, N.C., Denise Muller of Massapequa, N.Y, senior at Dowling College, Oakdale, N.Y.; and Sue Williams of Long Beach, Calif., senior at Long Beach City College.

Almost all have definite career aims from teaching the mentally retarded to fashion buying to advertising.

Two of the eight are engaged, however, and a third is dating steadily. One definitely was opposed to going "steady" — "I just want to give everyone a chance," she said with a laugh.

Their reactions were mixed on President Nixon's future actions because of the Watergate burglary.

"Though I believe the President's actions were disgraceful, to resign might throw the country into chaos . . .," said Miss Shirley.

"At this point, no (to resignation)," said Miss Cutrona. "I still must say President Nixon has done a lot for the U.S. in his own political way."

"Not yet (to resignation)," said Miss Dyson, "though he needs to appear and testify now . . ."

"Yes (to resignation), said Miss Jakobczak. "The whole Nixon 'reign' has been a sham to the American Public . . ."

Of today's liberalization of moral codes including condoning of couples living together without marriage contract, the consensus was that the matter has to be an individual decision but that it takes a lot of emotional stability to go that route.

Some didn't find this life style was all that widely practiced anyway.

To the question, what are young people's major concerns today, the answers ranged thusly. Women's liberation, job opportunities, "What other people think...what the group is doing", (because) young people have developed a greater consciousness of people all over the world...(their concerns) are in politics, ecology, birth control"..."

One thing that struck me was their already looking to the past. As one of the seniors expressed it: "I wish that I had never wished that I was 16."

LET'S ASK THE COOK by Nan Wiley

I hope you can help me. A long time ago I had a recipe for "shredded wheat bread," which I have lost.

Louise C. Jackson,
Buellton, Calif.

It took a little while, but we finally ran it down. I have never made any, but it sounds so good I am going to give it a try as soon as time permits. You will need two packages dry yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 cups boiling water, four regular-sized shredded wheat biscuits rolled to fine crumbs (about 1 1-3 cups), 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon salt, 1-3 cup honey, and 5 to 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Dissolve the yeast in the warm water. Add 1 teaspoon sugar and set aside and let stand until spongy. Pour boiling water over the shredded wheat crumbs, add butter, honey and the rest of the sugar. Let stand until lukewarm, then stir in the yeast.

Gradually add flour and salt mixing to a smooth dough. Knead lightly on a floured board until smooth and satiny. Shape into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover. Let rise in a warm place until double in bulk.

Knead down and divide in half. Shape each in greased bread pans. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Bake in a preheated hot (425 degrees) oven 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake for another 30 minutes. Brush with melted shortening before removing from pans.

Turn out the loaves to cook on a rack before slicing. Speaking of that detail, I am the world's worst manual bread slicer. I start out so carefully and evenly but somehow the last one-fourth of the loaf is lop-sided. Now I have, at long last, an electric slicer. I had always considered that something of a luxury, but now I don't know how I got along without it all this time.

Mine is the only one that is really a right-handed slicer. All the others are left-handers because they were modeled after some of the old hand slicers.

Of course, you can slice lots of other things; roasts, ham, vegetables, even frozen foods, from paper-thin to he-man thickness. There is a special part to use when you get down to the end pieces of a loaf or roast so you don't slice your fingers along with the meat.

My legal roommate likes ham sliced thick for sandwiches. I like it thin and several layers piled on. Now we're both happy with just a slight, easy adjustment of the slicer. It really does a beautiful job!

HAVE YOU TRIED sourdough bread yet? Nan Wiley gives you her recipe for sourdough starter plus some delicious bread recipes, including whole wheat bread, in her booklet "Sourdough and Other Breads." For your copy send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope with your request for it to Nan Wiley in care of Progress-Moines, Iowa. 50304.

Wendy Ward model program scheduled

Miss Marilyn Sue Pick, former Miss Arcadia Rose Princess, has been named director of Montgomery Ward's Wendy Ward Model and Charm Program and fashion coordinator for the company's store in Covina.

MARILYN PICK

The program has four major groups. They are: model teen classes, stressing the interest and lifestyles of junior and senior high school girls; Crossroads to Charm, a course for girls 8-11 years of age; Sugar and Spice, a charm and manners course for girls and boys 4-7 years of age; and a women's course for those 18 and over.

The first three will include a graduation fashion show.

Miss Pick's credentials include an Associate in Arts degree in fashion coordinating and graduation from Barbizon School of Modeling. She has been modeling professionally for Parkison Promotions.

Miss Pick began her career with the Wendy Ward program.

The model teen course is a six-week program covering modeling, posture, poise, grooming, skin care, hair-styling, figure control and wardrobe coordination. Crossroads to Charm is designed to guide preteens through the transitional years. The elements of etiquette, table manners, wardrobe and nail and hair care are covered. The course has the approval of the Girl Scouts of America for a proficiency badge.

The Model Teen and Crossroads courses are $15, while Sugar and Spice has an enrollment fee of $12.50.

The September classes are filling rapidly and information on the course may be obtained by calling Wendy Ward, 213-966-7411.

Ask Dr. Brothers

What's attraction?

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 44-year-old woman and I've been married three times, each time, to an alcoholic. My first husband died and I saw him go through hell because of his alcoholism. The last thing I needed was another alcoholic husband. But, wouldn't you know, that's exactly what I walked into. After two years of a bad marriage, I divorced him and married a year later. I thought this man did not have a drinking problem, but it seems that he does.

I refuse to believe that I drive these men to drink. I'm not that unusual as a woman, or as a wife. In fact, I've always enjoyed a few drinks myself, but that doesn't mean I'm a drunk. I stop when I've had enough; the men in my life don't seem to know what the word "enough" means. They all end up the same way, unable to take care of themselves either mentally or physically. I love my present husband in spite of his problem and I don't want to divorce him. I also don't want to lose him through alcohol. Do you have any suggestions? —H. S.

Dear H. S.: While it's probably quite impossible "to drive" anyone to drink if they're not already so inclined, you have, either consciously or unconsciously, selected men with drinking problems of a major nature.

Social worker John Rimmer and psychiatrist George Winokur of the University of Iowa discovered through research that many alcoholics often seem to marry spouses whose backgrounds include an unhealthy combination of alcoholism, suicide and depression. Both wives and husbands of alcoholics are often disturbed people themselves. They may marry alcoholics because they have an unusually strong need for security. You would think the alcoholic would be the last person capable of guaranteeing security, but the more dependent a person becomes, the less apt he or she is to leave. The alcoholic is an extremely dependent person and the wives and husbands of alcoholics may unknowingly feed these dependency needs. A wife or husband may complain about the spouse's drinking habits, but as long as the spouse is incapicatated by alcohol, he or she is like a needy child who must be taken care of.

You say that all of the three men you selected to marry ended up in the same way, "unable to take care of themselves either mentally or physically." This means that in all cases you had to carry all the responsibility; it also means that you became the person in power. Some people enjoy taking care of others because it gives them a sense of power and it also gives them an easy excuse or cover for their own shortcomings. This may not apply in your case, but your pattern of marrying alcoholics means that you must be attracted to something in them that you do not see in nonalcoholic men.

Since you're anxious to save your marriage, it's important to find immediate help for your husband. The National Council on Alcoholism could provide information that would help both of you understand the problem of alcohol. They might well refer your husband to a local group of Alcoholics Anonymous. If you contact your local chapter, they will probably refer you to Al-Anon, an organization especially designed to help those living with alcoholics. In this group you will find parents, children, and spouses of alcoholics who all share their common problems and work together to help solve them. This would help you to gain insight into your own problems as well as those of your husband.

Student films offered

This year the outstanding award-winning films of the Broadway's Cinemedia IV student film festival offer sensitive, humorous, educational and provocative entertainment.

The films will be shown in this area Aug. 21 at 8 p.m. at Cinema I Theater, 4955 S. Plaza, Montclair.

Cinemedia IV's first prize of $1,000 went to Lewis Hall, 23, of UCLA for his animated color film, "Anti-Matter." He was also awarded $250 for the best animation and an additional $250 for the best script.

The film deals with the highly educational and scientific aspects of matter and anti-matter. Through the use of animation, Hall has presented material in a lighthearted and enjoyable manner.

Robert Zemeckis, second place winner, received $500 for his absurd comedy, "A Field of Honor." He is a recent graduate of USC's cinema department and won an additional $250 for the best score award.

"Summer Train," presented by Robert Stitzel, and Gilbert Bettman's "Dying Generations" won third places.

Tickets for the film presentations will be available in the University Shop, Junior World and Women's Sportswear departments at the Montclair Plaza Broadway Store.

Puerto Rican status question a perennial problem for U.S.

SAN JUAN, P.R (UPI) — The two things that can always be relied on this Caribbean island are the trade winds and the dispute over Puerto Rico's relationship with the United States.

And in recent years, it has begun to appear that the Puerto Rican status question will also become a perennial one in the United Nations.

The latest development in the dispute, which began in 1898 when the United States took over the island from Spain after defeating that nation in the Spanish-American War, is the creation of a new "ad hoc" committee.

In Puerto Rico, the term "ad hoc" committee is synonymous with "status juggling," and has become so common in both languages that none of the local mass media even bother to explain what it literally means.

While Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, leader of the pro Commonwealth faction, and President Nixon are deciding who will serve on the latest committee, the United Nations decolonization committee, at Cuba's instigation, is set for another round in the debate over whether Puerto Rico's 2.7 million people are under the colonial heel of the United States, and what to do about it if they are.

Wants free hand

The latest "ad hoc" committee will consider what is called here the "culmination of Commonwealth," which has come to mean freeing the island from the federal laws its doesn't like, while leaving it under the jurisdiction of the federal laws it does like.

For example, the present Puerto Rican government likes being within the U.S. tariff zone, but it doesn't like having to comply with the coastwise shipping laws that require Puerto Rico to use costly U.S. bottoms to ship its goods back and forth from the U.S. mainland.

It likes having the U.S. Social Security umbrella, but doesn't want to institute U.S. minimum wages or at least island employers don't.

Puerto Rico apparently would like to be able to vote for the U.S. President and Vice President, but if that would mean having to pay U.S. income taxes—forget it.

At least, those are the positions of the government Popular Democratic Party, which favors permanently maintaining the Commonwealth status.

There are two other major poltical factions on the island, each with the "raison d'etre" of changing the Commonwealth status. One favors full U.S. statehood. The other, considerably smaller, wants an independent republic.

No agreement

The statehooders, who were in power from 1968 to 1972, and the "independentistas," who elected members to the legislature last year for the first time in 12 years, don't agree among themselves any more than the Commonwealth advocates do.

The Puerto Rican Independence Party, largest by far of the pro-independence groups, is in the midst of an internal dispute that is splitting it to pieces.

And the pro-statehood New Progressive Party of former Gov. Luis A. Ferre keeps losing its bright young liberals while its top leadership remains scarcely on speaking terms.

The concept of the "ad hoc" committees emerged from a 1967 plebiscite when a majority of Puerto Ricans voted, to no one's surprise, to maintain the Commonwealth status. The plebiscite law provided that "ad hoc" committees, named by the governor and the President, would be created to propose improvements in the Commonwealth relationship, established in 1952.

The pro-Comonwealth faction, however, lost power the following year and never had a chance to "culminate" the Commonwealth.

The first "ad hoc" committee was established by Ferre to study the single question of the presidential vote, but after it recommended a referendum on the question, the pro-Commonwealth Senate never got around to passing the necessary legislation stage the vote.

The new ad hoc committee should have no such problems, since it will be permitted to study whatever aspect of status is wishes and can continue working as long as it pleases.

Meanwhile, the independentistas, having converted a proposed superport for the island into a "status" question, were once again taking their contention that the island is an exploited colony to the United Nations, where they have found a ready ally in Cuba.

But, while findings of the decolinization committee on the Puerto Rican question have great local interest, they are not binding on anyone, and are generally ignored by the U.S. government and the U.S. people.

Well-heeled aren't buying French shoes

PARIS (UPI) — The world monetary mess has claimed a victim in France—deluxe high fashion shoes.

The French Footwear Federation said today that some makers of the costly shoes gracing luxury shops on Fifth Avenue and other fashion centers are in trouble.

One reason, shoe industry officials said, is that the onercich U.S. market can no longer can afford to buy many highpriced French imports with devalued dollars.

Moreover, the delicate shoes worn in the high fashion salon collections are running up against competition from Italian shoes.

The Italian lira is as shaky as the dollar, which means Italian exports cost no more to Americans, and Italian production costs much less than French.

In the town of Romans, for centuries the center of deluxe French shoe-making, the Arnoux Salamander factory announced it is closing.

Another factory in the town, Seducta-Charles Jourdan, which is 75 per cent owned by the American firm Genesco, laid off 78 of its 1,300 workers. Other Jourdan employees went on strike, prompting national headlines of the crisis.

"The deluxe market mainly is in the dollar zone and it is troubled because of the dollar devaluation and the floating Italian lira," said Bernard Calaque, director of the economics department of the French Footwear Federation.

"The prices of French deluxe shoes now are very high for U.S. importers," he said. "There as been at least a 25 per cent drop in deluxe shoe orders in France."

The deluxe shoe industry, about 20 factories, is only one per cent of France's entire shoe industry but it is the cornerstone and pace setter.

A third headache for the French elegant shoe market—and all shoe makers—is the price of leather. Officials said the price soared 100 per cent in 1972.

Other shoe industry sources said Western shoe producers also faced stiff competition from Communist and underdeveloped countries that now developed countries that now export more and more shoes.

13th seaman found guilty for disobeying order

FUNNY BUSINESS By Roger Bollen

MANILA (UPI) — The 13th crewmember of the USS Ogden charged with disobeying orders while on a minesweeping operation of North Vietnam last March was found guilty as charged today and sentenced to 75 days confinement at hard labor, U.S. Navy officials reported.

Aviation Boatswains Mate H2 Raymond Swanson, 22, of Hastings, Minn., was also demoted to Airman and fined $150 a month for four months.

Swanson was found guilty of violation of Article 86 of the U.S. military code for failure to go to his appointed place of duty, Article 90, wilful disobedience of a lawful command of a superior commissioned officer, and Article 91, wilful disobedience of a lawful command of a superior Petty Officer.

A five-man special court martial headed by Cmdr. Melbourne P. King pronounced sentence on Swanson at the U.S. Subic Bay naval base, 50 miles northwest of Manila.

Swanson had waived his right to trial by jury, elected to be tried by a military judge only and pleaded not guilty.

He is now confined at the Subic Bay naval station correctional center pending review of the courtmartial proceedings by Navy Capt. Robert M. Whiteman Jr., naval station commanding officer, who is also the convening authority.

Swanson was the last of 13 USS Ogden crewmembers facing disobedience charges to be sentenced. The 12 others had either pleaded guilty or had been found guilty and sentenced to confinement for varying periods —from one month to four and a half months.

At last one of the 13, Airman Gerry L. Comier, 20, of Port Neches, Tex., has been released after serving 30 days of his 45 day sentence. The Subic Bay naval station information office could not immediately say whether the 11 others had been released.

U.S. bombs fell 12 years in Indochina

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States slipped into the Indochina air war unnoticed almost 12 years ago when the first bomb dropped by an American pilot fell in total secrecy from a plane with South Vietnamese markings.

What began with a few bombs from a propellor-driven T28 Trojan, ended with B52 bombers pummelling Cambodia one last time Tuesday night.

The first American-released a bomb fell over Indochina on the day after Christmas, 1961.

At that time, the Americans were officially not bombing but merely training South Vietnamese pilots. But the fact was that U. S. pilots were doing the bombing flying aircraft with South Vietnamese markings and always carrying a South Vietnamese "trainee."

This was reported in the press and, like the "secret" bombing of Cambodia in 1969 and early 1970 and the "secret" ground raids into Laos, it was secret only in the sense that it was not officially admitted when it begar.

..The regular bombing of Laos and South Vietnam began late in 1964, the continuous bombing of North Vietnam in February, 1965, and the bombing of Cambodia in March, 1969.

The war produced only five American aces because there was very little dogfighting involved in what was mostly a bombing operation. The bombing was not very dramatic either because much of the tonnage was dropped from above the clouds six miles high by B52 pilots who did not see what they were bombing or hear the bombs explode.

In World War II, most of the bombing was "strategic," aimed at industries and cities. But in the Indochina war the bulk of it was "interdiction," aimed at cutting supply routes by pounding the jungle. The plan was to strangle the enemy by denying him the resources needed to fight.

The problem was that the other side fought a simple war and had simple needs.

Although air power undoubtedly destroyed vast quantities of supplies, North Vietnam — with support from its allies — could always pour more down the funnel. When they needed 10,000 tons of supplies, they might send 100,000 into the Ho Chi Minh trail. The United States might destroy 90,000 tons but the Communists would still have their basics.

..The U. S. air effort in Indochina vastly eclipsed that of World War II. In that conflict, the allies dropped 3.3 million tons of bombs including 160,000 tons on Japan and 1.4 million tons on Germany.

In the Vietnam war, the United States battered enemy-controlled areas of South Vietnam four times as hard as they did North Vietnam, twice as much as Nazi Germany and 20 times more than Japan.

The United States dropped 6.6 million tons of bombs on Indochina, including 3.1 million tons on South Vietnam, 2.1 million tons on Laos, 840,000 tons on North Vietnam and 510,000 tons on Cambodia. Almost half the Cambodia tonnage was dropped in the last six months.

The United States lost 3,705 fixed wing planes and 4,867 helicopters from both combat and non-combat causes in Indochina. The lost aircraft cost roughly $10 billion and bombs, fuel and other operational costs came to about $20 billion.

Space tourists have pretty view

HOUSTON (UPI) — A space age tourist had a highly unusual view of Mt. Shasta early Tuesday just as dawn was breaking on the 14,162 foot high peak.

"We're just coming over the West Coast and the sun's just coming up," Skylab 2 astronaut Jack Lausma said from his vantage point, 270 miles up in earth orbit.

"The prettiest thing is the sun is just starting to shine on the side of Mt. Shasta, and the rest of the area around it is still in twilight."

Drought remains threat to China's grain harvest

HONG KONG (UPI) — A few weeks ago, Premier Chou Enlai slipped out of Peking and attended a meeting 200 miles to the south concerning China's problems with drought.

The meeting in Shihchiachuang was not widely publicized, and Chou's presence there was never announced. But diplomatic sources based in Peking said he was there.

They also said he apparently spoke "with some gravity" about the serious situation on the farm front in the light of threatened new "natural disasters" this year.

Chou's presence underscored the fact that China's agriculture, which was seriously affected by drought last year, still is in trouble.

There is no threat of famine. Even if there were a poor grain harvest this year, nobody in China is likely to go hungry.

The pinch will be felt in other ways. Since China depends so much on agricultural production for capital accumulation, another poor crop year could mean a slowdown, if not a significant cutback, in capital construction plans.

Then, too, the Chinese will have to dip deeper into their foreign exchange holdings to purchase more grain from abroad.

Last year, large areas of north China experienced what some official Chinese reports called the worst drought of this century. The grain harvest was down from 1971's claimed record yield of 246 million tons. Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien said the drop was a "mere two million tons." Analysts outside China put the decline at four million tons or more.

If there is another year without an increase in production, the impact could be great. The implications of a second successive poor crop year become much more apparent when you consider that China will have acquired at least another 30 million more mouths to feed since 1971—and without an increase in grain production.

The Chinese have been purchasing grain abroad consistently for more than a dozen years. This has served two main purposes. The first was to meet shortages at home or build up reserves. The second was to enable China to sell higher-priced rice abroad to earn foreign exchange and use the cheaper wheat as a supplement or substitute at home.

This year the Chinese already have hedged against the possibility of another poor grain harvest. In March and April they apparently purchased, through third parties, an additional two million tons of wheat and a million tons of corn from the United States.

Agricultural analysts here said the purchase also may have been a hedge against prices, which have risen sharply since the purchase. But the unavoidable fact is that the country still is threatened by drought and flood in many important grain-producing areas. A hedge against this is wise in view of the worldwide grain shortage.

Here is a sampling of recent official reports on flood and drought in China during the late spring and early summer:

—In mid-June, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said a crash program launched after last year's crop decline had resulted in completion of 1.1 million irrigation projects and sinking of 231,000 pump wells beween October, 1972, and April, 1973.

—Hopei province, an important wheat and cotton producing region where Shihchiachung is located, experienced serious drought last year and is having a similar drought this year.

—Kirin province, the leading producer of soybeans and also a major producer of rice, maize and millet, is undergoing a drought in the west; excessive rainfall in the east also adversely affected its crops.

—Liaoning province, mainly a producer of maize, was a major center of sink well activity. "Conspicious achievements have been made by the cadres and commune members in the rural areas of Liaoning province in sinking wells and exploring underground water resources to combat drought," NCNA said.

There were similar reports about all other Chinese provinces, territories and regions, including Inner Mongolia.

Bay Area firemen, police get raises

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors boosted the pay for policemen, firemen and Municipal Railway employes.

Veteran policemen and firemen will get $1,254 a month instead of $1,190 while transit employes will be paid $5.54 hourly instead of $5.32.

Hawk with injured wing will fly again

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Will a bird, in this case a hawk, ever be able to fly again if it has a metal rod put in its broken wing? —M. C.

Dear M. C.: The veterinarian uses the same type of stainless steel pin to repair a bird's fractured wing as he would on a dog or cat with a similar fracture. The wing is immobilized with a leather "braille" which becomes a cast during the weeks the wing is healing. Antibiotics to prevent infections and frequently cortisone to prevent arthritis in the immobilzed wing are also given during this period. Once the bones have knit, the pin is removed. If it were not removed the bird would be unable to fly because the added weight in the one wing would unbalance him. An excellent percentage of the large birds whose wings are repaired in this manner are able to fly once again.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are going to be gone for a month's vacation and will be leaving Ramona, our rat, with a friend. What's the simplest thing they can feed Ramona because they don't want to spend the time with her that we do? They consider her just a rat, of course. — L. Y.

Dear L. Y.: Setting her up with a self-waterer which still should be cleaned at least every other day and a self-feeder supplied with pellet-sized dog food would be the simplest solution. Dog food is an excellent diet for a rat and far simpler than most.

DEAR DR. MILLER: There is no way our dog, when he goes out to do his busines, can get to wherever he is going going to do whatever business he is going to do without walking on some hot pavement. We usually soak his feet in cold water before he leaves and I am sure that helps some, but is there something that would help more? I know sometimes his feet are very tender and I am sure that's the reason—L. O.

Dear O. L.: If your dog can arrange to transact most of his business in the carly morning and late evening hours he will find the going cooler. During the day, the best bet would be to provide him with properly fitted open-toed sandals. (Actually, they are called boots. Besure they are leather, not plastic.)

Beef shortage sparks cattle rustling problem

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — One of the major problems of the California cattleman in the old West—rustling—has been rekindled by the current scarcity of beef and predictions of giant retail price jumps.

"The old vigilante days we don't want to start again," said Will Gill, a major rancher in Central California with headquarters in Madera.

"But you're talking now about a $600 cow, a $300 calf, and it might get to that point."

In the past three months, Gill has experienced several losses.

"In one field with 500 cows, 23 turned up missing. In another field with 225 head, three were missing. In another field with 120, two were not there," Gill said.

"It's as bad as I've seen it in 10 years experience, other than a little flurry every once in awhile," said Hans Van Ness, head of the Food and Agriculture Department's Livestock Identification Bureau.

Very serious

"I think it's very serious," said state agriculture director C. B. Christensen. "We're doing everything we can to protect these people and alert local enforcement agencies."

California ranks seventh in the nation with 4.7 million head of cattle. The industry meant $1.2 billion to the state last year.

Van Ness, who said some ranchers may be forced to hire "persons with professional peace officer qualifications to gurd their herds," listed 124 reported "roadside slaughters" of cattle in the first six months of this year, a 77 per cent jump over 1972.

The total number of lost, strayed or stolen cattle in the state the first half of 1973 was 2,701, a 10 per cent jump over 1972. Arrests for the six month period were 63, compared to 62 for all of 1972.

Have a problem

"Whenever you see a 77 per cent jump you know you have a problem. Rustling always goes parallel with scarcity of beef and high prices," Christensen said.

Christensen, a lifelong cattleman with 2,000 head on his Modoc County ranch, has predicted beef prices will increase 25 per cent when the Sept. 12 price freeze ends.

The state's top agriculture official also disclosed his department had several "real serious cases" of rustling under investigation that were not included in the latest figures.

"We have one with reported losses as high as 400 head in Fresno County and another in the northern part of the state where 69 head are missing. These have to be confirmed but it amounts to a tremendous loss," Christensen said.

Straight popular vote

Way to test confidence in president proposed

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It has been said that if the Watergate had been a building on the banks of the Thames instead of the Potomac, the prime minister of England would be out looking for work.

It does seem plausible that a scandal of Watergate's messiness could topple the government of a country whose chief executive must be prepared daily to answer for his administration's policies and deeds and who can be dismissed instantly if his answers do not satisfy a majority of the Parliament.

The usual purpose of mentioning the likely impact of a Watergate type scandal on a parliamentary government is to dramatize its gravity rather than to suggest that the United States dump its federal system. Some political scientists might be ready to argue for such a switch, but the American electorate probably would regard it in the same light as a proposal to abandon baseball in favor of cricket.

No accountability

Still, the comparison does highlight the fact that there is no way to require an American President to account for his actions and no way within the Constitution to let the people decide whether the President should be dismissed before expiration of his term.

Of course, there is impeachment. But in that process Congress is both the plaintiff and the jury, and conviction forever banishes the defendant from public office. In parliamentary countries, the legislature also can give the chief executive his walking papers, but he can take his case to the country and obtain judgment from the people in the elections that follow the fall of his administration.

Impeachment is the H-bomb of the American political system, a weapon perhaps feared as much by its possessors as its potential victims. Americans take some pride that no President has been removed from office for "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

One member of Congress, Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., regards impeachment as "virtually inoperative." She believes the requirement that actual crimes be alleged "does not lend itself to resolving conflicts which arise when a President subverts the constitutional role of Congress or trespasses upon the rights of the people."

Furthermore, she says, impeachment may remove a President but leave a vice president and an administration devoted to his policies and methods.

Proposes amendment

So Mrs. Green has proposed a constitutional amendment calling for an adaptation of the parliamentary system of requiring a chief executive to undergo a test of confidence. Her proposal would not replace impeachment.

The amendment would permit Congress, by two thirds votes of both House and Senate —upon finding that the President had failed to execute the laws faithfully, exceeded his powers or trespassed upon the rights of citizens —to order a special election within 90 days to fill the offices of President and vice president for the remainder of the current term.

The decision would be on the basis of a straight popular vote. The incumbent President and vice president, if nominated by their party, would be eligible to run in the special election to complete their original term.

Referring to both the Vietnam war and the Watergate affair as the results of "nearly unlimited, unchecked power" residing in the presidency, Mrs. Green said: "There are great lessons to be learned from these tragedies. But if we don't take heed, if we allow both to pass in quiet resignation, the sorrow and misfortune endured by so many will indeed have been in vain."

Geologists estimate there are more than 8 billion tons of iron ore reserves in northern Alabama.

The black bar is the only big game animal originally found in all 48 states of the continental United States.

New scientific tool gives answers to ancient questions

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Atomic absorption spectrophotometry (AAS) is a new scientific tool providing researchers answers to questions which have puzzled them for generations.

An economist solves the question of what caused widespread inflation in 16th Century Europe. A historian tracks down the anccient silver mines of Persia.

A strand of Martha Washington's hair is studied to determine the quality of the environment in her time. A murder car is identified by the tiny fragments of metal found in a few drops of oil leaked at the scene.

Lead poisoning

City children don't cry so much when blood samples are taken to test for lead poisoning.

Varian Associates, one of the leading makers of exotic research tools, has announced development of the carbon rod atomizer, which makes atomic absorption spectrophotometry much easier.

Previously, a sample being analyzed had to be vaporized in a flame. A significant amount of the material was destroyed in the process. The new atomizer uses electrical resistance to vaporize the sample. Varian says this improves the sensitivity, eliminates the need for elaborate preparation, and permits the use of a very small sample.

The spectrophotometer determines what elements are in a material, and the proportion of each element. It is extremely sensitive—able to detect the presence of an element that makes up only one billionth of the sample.

Inflation hit

In the 16th Century, Western Europe was swept by dramatic inflation. Economic historians speculated that it was caused by great quantities of silver money coined from Spain's Brazilian silver mines.

Spectrophotometry enabled Dr. Adon Gordus of the University of Michigan to determine that very little Brazilian silver was coined into money in Europe. He tested many coins of the period and found they did not have the same proportion of impurity as was found in Brazilia nsilver.

With the new carbon rod atomizer, Gordus did not have to destroy any of the historic coins. He simply rubbed the edge of the test coins with a piece of quartz. The tiny amount of metal left on the quartz was enough to make accurate measurements of the ingredients.

Measures proportion

Because it can measure the precise proportion of elements in a sample, the spectrophotometer is used to authenticate art by comparing the elements in the art work with material related to where it is supposed to have originated.

Although Iranian geologists report there is no silver in Iran, Arabic manuscripts from the 11th Century refer to silver mines. Researchers plan to study samples of soil in the country and believe they can quickly get within 20 miles of the ancient mines.

Spectrophotometry has aided crime solving. Recently, California detectives investigating a murder found a small oil leak at the site. They learned that the killer had driven off in a late-model Datsun. A driver of a 1971 Datsun became the prime suspect and was arrested, but there was some suspicion of another man who owned a 1972 Datsun.

Chemists found that both cars used the same brand of oil as was found at the murder scene. But when they analyzed the oil with the spectrophotometer they found that the oil in the car of the man who had been arrested contained significant traces of aluminum and more lead than was in the oil leaked at the crime scene. The 1972 Datsun matched the oil leak better, so the first suspect was released and the second man indicted.

Mass killers develop rare ability to ignore guilt, says psychologist

HOUSTON (UPI) — A clinical psychologist states mass murderers often rationalize their actions and avoid all guilt feelings so that one murder can quickly lead to a long series of killings.

"Conscience or feelings of guilt are almost nonexistent (among mass murderers)," said Dr. Jerry Brown of the Baylor College of Medicine. "They almost rarely have consciences and they have developed ways of ignoring or alleviating guilt feelings."

Brown, who often works with police concerning the psychology of criminals, said the actions of mass murders and other perverted criminals are not really unlike less repugnant acts committed by "normal" people.

"I think everyone has the ability to rationalize or compartmentalize activities which may be considered repulsive or abhorrent to a large segment of society," he said. "The old saying that 'when you've done it once or twice, the rest come easy' is true."

Brown said there were differing theories on the motivation for mass murders.

"You can't group mass murders or the motivation into one kind of category," he said.

13 million Africans threatened by famine

GENEVA (UPI)—There are now 13 million persons in Africa threatened by famine because of drought, the League of Red Cross Societies said this week.

Half of these people are children less than 15 years old, the League said in launching a new worldwide appeal for aid.

The revised figure of those threatened in the sub-Sahara, or Sahelian, zone is double that of earlier estimates, it said.

Of a total of 24 million persons in the six countries of the Sahelian zone, 12 million are "severely affected" by the drought.

To these are added at least one million drought victims in Ethiopia, which is not actually part of the zone.

"Although the specialized assistance of the Red Cross is thought to be of critical importance in this emergency situation, only governments with the help of the United Nations specialized agencies can hope to find a satisfactory, long-term solution to the problems and the human suffering caused by the drought," the League said.

Various countries

The League gave the following country-by-country figures:

—Chad: of a total population of 3.7 million, two million are affected. Of these, 300,000 are children and 100,000 persons are in immediate danger. Eighty per cent of livestock has been lost.

—Mali: With a population of five million, as many as four million are affected. 95 per cent of the herds of nomadic people have died.

—Mauritania: with 1.2 million inhabitants, the country has at east one million of its population affected. 80 per cent of livestock has died.

—Niger: Of the 4.5 million population, 1.5 million, or one third, need immediate assistance. One half of these 750-000, are children.

Million children

—Senegal: 2.5 million people are threatened, including one million children from one to 15 years old.

—Upper Volta-: Of 5.5 million inhabitants, one million are considered severely affected. 2.4 million out of a total of 2.9 million head of livestock have died.

—Ethiopia: One million people are severely affected out of a total population of 26 million, especialy in the provinces of Wollo, Tigre and Shoa.

Fireman sets fires to earn extra income

KRAMFORS, Sweden (UPI) — A 30-year-old part time fireman has admitted setting 10 fires within a month to earn money putting them out, police said today.

He earned an extra $175 on the fires that caused an estimated $1.5 million in damage.

The fireman was paid $5.50 an hour as a part time fire fighter.

A spokesman for the volunteer fire brigade in this north Swedish community said the fires included three major forest fires and the burning down of the town's biggest wood industry.

Police said the fireman, whose name was withheld pending a preliminary court hearing, set the fires at night or on his days off so that he would not lose his pay as a factory worker.

Poor economy is 'Passing phase,' says India leader

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today broke her long silence on India's faltering economy and said, "it is a passing phase."

"There is no cause for panic," Mrs. Gandhi told a military rally. "We are going through a difficult period, but it is a passing phase.

"The country is in the midst of a big struggle and its future depends on our success in this struggle," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Her comments followed by one day a government decision to slash its annual budget by 12 per cent in a drive to curb the country's mounting inflation.

(Cran)berry good ice cream social

There's nothing perhaps more provcatively nostalgic and truly Americana than the old-fashioned ice cream social. And, when that bouncy cranberry, which grows only in America, is combined in your recipe treats, what a delectably dandy party scene can be set. A wonderous way to entertain for a special occasion—or just a perfect trick to ward off those sticky summer blues on a sizzling afternoon.

Create your own ice cream parlour—a table replete with pretty penny candies such as pastel fortune hearts, miniature candy canes, and strips of sugar dots. Then, bring out a cake to boast about, the Cranberry Upside Down Cake. With its gay topping of captivating cranberries and peaches it's sure to cause oohs and ahhs! Then serve glasses of icy cool and creamy Cranapple Merry-Go-Rounds such as the Peach Tickle or Three Berry Flip. This is one ice cream social you'll want to remember and record for your family album as well as your recipe box.

CRANBERRY UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

¼ cup butter or margarine
6 cling peach halves (16 ounce can), well-drained
1 can (16 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavor gelatin
¾ cup cold water
2-3rds cup salad oil
1 package (18-½ ounces) yellow cake mix
4 eggs

Melt butter in a 10-inch metal flower-shaped pan, 2½ inches deep, or use a 9-inch by 4-inch metal tube pan. Arrange fruit in pan. Cover with batter. Rotate pan so the entire bottom is covered. Place on peach half, hollow side up in pan in the center. Place 1 peach half each, hollow side up, in each petal of the pan.

Mash cranberry sauce; spoon around and over the peach halves. In a bowl mix gelatin and water until well blended. Add oil and cake mix and beat until smooth. Beat in eggs one at a time. Beat until batter is smooth and velvety. Spoon batter over fruit carefully. Spoon in enough batter until pan is filled 1 inch down from the top, Bake remaining batter in cupcake papers (about 4 to 5 cupcakes).

Bake cake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour and 10 minutes or until center feels firm to the touch. The cupcakes should be baked only 20 to 25 minutes. Let cake stand for 15 minutes. Loosen edges of cake, place a large platter on top of pan and invert cake while still warm. Remove pan and serve cake warm or cold.

Flaming dessert for grand finale

Don't let a dinner party become a "drag" before it ever begins because the worry of what to serve handicaps your planning. If you're in the dark about what to serve as a grand finale at that special dinner, light the scene with a dessert flambe'. And don't let the word flambe' scare you. It's simply French for the flaming of food during the preparation or when brought to the table for serving. It's easy to prepare and pays dividends in the elegance and excitement it provides your party dinner.

Cool and Creamy Fruit Flambe' is certain to satisfy those after-dinner appetites as it combines cool and crunchy dessert squares with a warm and saucy topping! Vanilla wafer crumbs, sugar, cinnamon and butter combine and bake to make a crispy crust that carries frozen layers of tangy lemon sherbet and rich vanilla ice cream creating the cool and crunchy. Fresh strawberries, grape halves and pineapple chunks come together in a sweetened strawberry flavored sauce which is famed with brandy creating the warm and saucy.

The Fruit Flambe' is a great dessert choice for any hectic party menu. The frozen portion can be completed a day or two in advance with only the sauce preparation left for last. The sauce preparation is the simple but impressive secret to the elegance of this dessert. It can be combined and cooked in the kitchen in minutes.

Or you can entertain guests at the table: Keep the sauce warm in a small chafing dish. When the heated brandy is flamed it is poured over the saucy fruits.

So, dazzle dinner guests with this dramatic and delicious dessert as the flaming brandy drenches the heated fruit sauce and is spooned over the rich sherbet and ice cream squares.

New cookbook something to beef about

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was inevitable in view of the beef shortage. A paperback publisher has just issued "the no-beef cookbook".

"Is the price of beef enough to make you lose your appetite?" asks the blurb on the cover of this "instant" volume by Virginia Coigney and Marion E. Prilook.

Consumers who buy the 150-page book may find something to beef about if they take literally another line on the cover, which says the recipes offer "maximum nutrition for minimum money."

Several recipes call for high-price ingredients in quantities that make the main dishes more expensive than some cuts of beef.

One is a 5 to 6 pound leg of lamb, boned and stuffed with, among other things, ¼ pound each of bacon and boiled ham. Another is a four-serving oyster soup containing two quarts of oysters.

At M. Citarella, a local fish market, fresh oysters are selling for $2.50 per dozen, with about four dozen shucked oysters per quart. Another fish dealer, who won't have oysters until September, said they could be any price by then.

The authors of the beefless cookbook began writing it about two months ago, says their publisher, Bantam Books. Mrs. Coigney, of West Redding, Conn., is a writer and an assistant hospital administrator in nearby Danbury, Conn. Her co-author, Miss Prilook, Ridgefield, Conn., is a medical writer.

Cheering food for the golfer

Abernathy lifts suspension of western branch

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, has lifted the suspension of the organizations western branch pending an investigation by the national leadership.

Abernathy had announced the suspension last Saturday, saying the local black group had been accused of using "strong arm tactics in collecting advertising revenues from companies which had not authorized the ads in the first place.

"I have gained new information that the local leadership have a willingness to deal adequately with the alleged tactics used by a private firm hired for fund raising purposes, Abernathy said.

"Based on this information and my desire to see the effective work of this chapter continue, I have lifted the suspension but I have not dismissed any charges.

The Rev. H. H. Brookins, head of SCLC-west, declined "in the interests of fairness to name the agency involved.

Take a wok or skillet; eat Chinese

You don't have to own a wok to enjoy this tasty, exotic dish. Prepare it in any skillet—and it's guaranteed not to leave you hungry an hour later! With the growing popularity of the Chinese theme, this meal suggestion is sure to be a winner!

SWEET AND SOUR FRANKFURTERS

- 1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pineapple chunks in unsweetened juice
- ¼ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 4 green onions, cut in julienne strips
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 pound frankfurters, cut into quarters, lengthwise
- 1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, cut in half
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 2 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges

Drain pineapple chunks, reserving juice. Combine brown sugar and cornstarch; stir in reserved pineapple juice, vinegar, onions, soy sauce and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened. Boil 2 minutes. Stir in frankfurters, waterchestnuts, pineapple and green pepper. Top with tomato wedges. Heat to serving temperature. Serve over rice. Makes 6 servings.

Now's time for a turkey

The outdoor covered grill makes summer entertaining easy and important, too, when the menu features turkey. Using the grill keeps the kitchen cool and lets the cook be outdoors. Another advantage is that the unstuffed turkey requires less cooking time when prepared in a covered grill rather than in the oven. After about 2½ hours a 12-to 14-pound bird can be checked for doneness. A roast meat thermometer should register 180 to 185 degrees and the thickest portion of the thigh should feel soft.

The outdoor feast can be completed by serving summer vegetables cooked in foil on the grill. A casserole of sliced zucchini squash, tomato and onion will require about 45 minutes. Favorite breads and fresh fruits will balance the meal.

After the feast, leftovers may be no problem since turkey is a summertime favorite for shaping up and slimming down. Besides being flavorful, turkey rates high in protein and low in fat content. A good way to use the leftover meat is in a cucumber cool turkey salad. It makes a refreshing luncheon dish for family or guests.

CUCUMBER COOL TURKEY SALAD

Yield: About 4 cups

- 2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 1 cup chopped cucumber
- ¼ cup sliced pimiento olives
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ¾ cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- Blue cheese, optional

Toss together turkey, cucumber, olives, green pepper and celery in large bowl. In small bowl, blend onion, salt, lemon juice and mayonnaise. Combine with turkey mixture. Add eggs. Chill thoroughly. If desired, before serving crumble blue cheese over the salad.

Snack time doesn't have to stress starchy foods

TV and popcorn are the all-American combination for a Sunday afternoon. But now's the time to replace that starchy snack with a bowl of fresh grapes.

European varieties of table grapes are now ripe and on the markets. The Coachella district is maintaining the grape markets with steady supplies of Thompson Seedless and Cardinal varieties. Harvesting of Perlettes in Coachella finished last week and was expected to begin from Kern County at that time.

In the next two or three weeks harvesting of Thompson Seedless grapes is expected to reach peak volume, so buy now or prepare to. The supply of this seedless variety should last until August 1, as production moves from Arvin-Bakersfield to Delano to the Fresno area. An increase in the Cardinal variety was anticipated last week, and harvest should continue for a few more weeks.

Quality is generally very good for both varieties this year, with large berries in well-formed bunches. Grapes this year have been noted as exceptionally sweet because of the slow growing season capped by very hot weather.

Grape prices are about equal to last year's—from 49 to 69 cents per pound.

To buy grapes choose a medium-sized bunch with fairly loose sections to facilitate easy eating and circulation of air that prevents moisture accumulation and the resulting mildew. Also check the "bloom," or the velvety, powdery look on the skin of nice, fresh grapes. If the grapes look shiny, the bloom has been rubbed off from excessive handling. Finally look for bunches that have a firm, green, healthy stem. Dried stems that are brown or black in color are likely to have grapes that have started to age and lose their flavor.

Grapes are best when eaten fresh, but try these succulent little morsels in a different state—frozen. This versatile fruit is also good with melon balls, grapefruit sections or avocados.

Avocados—or some say, alligator pears—are especially good in the summer salad months. Peak volume for summer varieties of avocados will continue until the first of September, then tail off. Volumes harvested in October are negligible but things start locking up come November. However, next year is not expected to reach this year's prolific harvest. This may result in higher prices for avocados. Presently, the fruit is selling from 34 to 49 cents apiece.

The bulk of production at this time is from Ventura and Santa Barbara counties and will continue for the remainder of summer and fall. Earlier this year, San Diego County supplied markets with the Hass summer variety of avocados.

This rough, dark-skinned avocado now dominating California markets is ready to eat when the skin turns black. These fruits are picked green from the trees where they are "stored" and upon clipping the stem, the fruit begins to mature.

Avocados, with their delicate nutty flavor and buttery texture, can be used as a fruit or vegetable. Try serving fresh avocado slices along with eggs and sausages in the morning, or for an interesting added attraction to eggs, mix and mash avocados and eggs.

If it's too hot to cook, halve an avocado, remove the seed, and fill the center cavity with shrimp or crab meat. For those with a limited budget, try a tuna salad and place the stuffed avocado on some crisp lettuce.

This nutritious and filliing dish is not fattening. Half of an avocado has about 150 calories, 11 vitamins, 13 minerals and a trace of protein, and is a very healthy food.

The University of California has reported that milk is one of the most important food items in anybody's diet. Milk and milk products, including butter, provide 22 per cent of our intake of protein and 76 per cent of the calcium. Energy, fat, magnesium, riboflavin, vitamins D, B-12, and numerous additional vitamins and minerals are also supplied.

Although fluid milk still remains one of the most-consumed beverages in the country today, surpassed only by water and equaled by coffee, there is a rapid rise of much less nutritious drinks in the past few years. For example, soft-drink consumption has jumped 100 per cent in 12 years.

It is a dangerous trend that poor foods are substituted at the expense of extremely valuable foods like milk products, meat, poultry and eggs, legumes, fruits and vegetables.

Brand new idea-- barbecuing liver

Barbeduing beef liver over hot coals may be a new idea to you but one which is well worth trying. Most often consumers think of liver as being sliced and have no idea that it may be purchased by the piece or chunk as well as by the slice.

This good-looking, great-tasting chunk of barbecued beef liver is marinated in a savory combination of beef broth, wine and popular herbs. It's served in fine style with skewered canned potatoes and partially cooked bacon. These go on the grill too, to brown the potatoes and crisp the bacon.

The liver steak takes about 10 minutes per side for rare and a little longer if you prefer it medium rare. Our recommendation is to never go beyond the medium rare stage in cooking liver because the fibers are sure to toughen with overcooking. Take a peek at the inside color of the liver steak by making a small slit in the center of the piece.

One of the interesting points about this marinade is that it is heated first to meld the good flavors of the herbs and onion with the base made of beef broth, wine and lemon juice. This marinade also has a bit of oil in it to aid in browning the liver while it's on the grill.

Some of the nutritional bonuses liver brings to your diet are that first of all it is a top quality protein. It is also rich in vitamin A. Actually liver is the only meat which does contain vitamin A. Liver also has a good supply of the B vitamins. And last but not least, the fact which everyone should know is that liver is indeed the very best food source of iron.

BARBECUED BEEF LIVER STEAK

2 pounds beef liver in one piece, about 2-inches thick
1 cup beef broth
1½ cups dry red wine
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup minced parsley
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon tarragon
½ teaspoon salt

Marinate beef liver overnight. To make marinade combine beef broth, wine, oil, lemon juice, onion, parsley, thyme, oregano, tarragon and salt. Bring to boil then simmer 2 minutes. Pour over liver, cover and refrigerate overnight.

Remove liver from marinade and place over hot coals. Cook 10 to 12 minutes per side for rare (approximately 15 minutes per side for medium-well). Turn once and baste once or twice with marinade. To check if liver is done, make a slit at center of steak and look at color. Carve into crosswise slices, about ¼-inch thick. Makes 6 servings.

Fruit desserts good hot or cold

Fruit deserts — serve them hot or cold. Make them from fresh ingredients or canned.

Peach pudding is a fresh fruit desert that's best when it comes to the table straight from the oven. The batter poured over the hot fruit rises to the top during baking so there's no time-consuming pastry to make.

Peaches grow abundantly in the orchard country near Eugene, Ore., from where this pudding recipe comes. When you shop for the ingredients, select peaches that are fairly firm or just a bit soft. Avoid hard peaches or very soft overripe ones. A pale tan spot indicates the beginning of decay.

If your family and your schedule prefer a cold, make-ahead dessert, Snob Hill Cherries is the answer. This recipe uses canned cherry pie filling as a convenient time-saver for you. Layer the graham crackers, cream cheese and cherries early in the day so the mixture can be refrigerated until serving time.

Top it all off with a layer of whipped cream for a cool dessert.

PEACH PUDDING

4 cups sliced, fresh peaches
½ cup water
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Combine above ingredients and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and set aside. Prepare batter.

BATTER

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoon melted shortening
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and pour into a greased 8-inch baking pan or dish. Pour hot fruit over batter and bake at 350 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes. The batter rises to the top during baking. Serves 6 to 8.

SNOB HILL CHERRIES

2 cups graham cracker crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup (8-ounce package) cream cheese
1 cup sugar
4 cups (2-1 pound, 6 ounce cans) cherry pie filling
1 cup (½ pint) whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix cracker crumbs and margarine, reserving 3 tablespoons for topping. Pat crumb mixture into an ungreased 9x13 inch pan. Mix cream cheese and sugar together. Spread on top of crumb layer. Pour cherry pie filling over cream cheese layer. Whip cream; add sugar and vanilla. Put layer of whipped cream over cherry pie filling. Sprinkle lightly with reserved crumb mixture. Serves 12.

Vegetable main dishes are standbys for summer

Summer's here, with its vegetable bounty. With more plentiful supplies, prices will probably go lower. So cue your menus to main dishes made with vegetables for economy, variety and eye-appeal.

Nature's palette of rich vegetable colors—from the neon red of tomatoes to the sunny gold of squash—look as fine as they taste on the dinner plate.

Tomatoes stuffed with tuna is an extra tasty dish because the tuna mixture is zesty with spicy seasoning mix for Sloppy Joes. This recipe gives you twin savings. Tomatoes, being in season, are a good buy; so is tuna, a fine source of protein. Put them together and you have a food-budget booster. Most main vegetable dishes are cooking quickies, another advantage.

Another idea is Squash and Bacon, using yellow squash or zucchini—whichever is plentiful. This novel, tasty skillet dish weds squash, rice, bacon and mayonnaise. A snappy cheese and mustard melange is the final touch of saucery.

TUNA STUFFED TOMATOES

MATOES

6 tomatoes
1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 envelope 1½ ounces) seasoning mix for sloppy joes
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup oil
1 tablespoon butter, melted
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cut tops off tomatoes; hollow out centers. Combine tuna, celery, contents of seasoning mix envelope, vinegar, and oil; spoon into tomatoes. Combine butter and bread crumbs; sprinkle over tomatoes. Bake in 400 degress for 15 to 20 minutes, until hot. Makes 6 servings.

SQUASH AND BACON ONE DISH DINNER

4 slices bacon
4 to 6 yellow crookneck squash or zucchini
1½ cups water
1½ cups packaged pre-cooked rice
½ cup shredded Cheddar or American cheese
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt

Cook bacon in large skillet until crisp, saving drippings. Remove bacon, crumble, and set aside. Add squash to drippings; cover and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add water, rice, cheese, mustard, mayonnaise, and salt. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Sprinkle with crumbled bacon.

New pears on way to the market now

All you shoppers get on your carts—get set—go—for those Bartlett pears! This week Bartletts are beginning to make their appearance in the fresh market. Good volumes from the Sacramento River district and Upper Sacramento Valley are on the way.

This year growers are looking at a much larger crop of fresh Bartletts than last year. As far as that goes, the biggest within the past decade! This brings good values and buys to consumers.

The early season pears, now in peak volumes, are noted as quite good; however, sizes are not as large as last year's. Because of the heavy fruit set, pears are smaller, but they are just as juicy and succulent as ever.

Harvest in California, which began several weeks ago, should run to September, and supply markets with fresh pears until mid-October. The fact that pears must be stored in "ripening rooms" before going on display at the grocer's explains the availability of pears into October.

From the Sacramento River district to the northern Sacramento Valley to Mendocino County to Lake County, California fresh Bartlett pears will be running in large volumes through the summer, after which winter pears start coming in from the Pacific Northwest. Even though a greater percentage of these summer pears goes into canned pear halves and fruit cocktail, the volume for the fresh market is still one of the highest!

So beginning this week, pears should be included on the menu, whether eaten as an accompaniment to broiled fish, stuffed with blue cheese, sliced and diced in a salad, or just eaten fresh out of hand—the way Mother Nature intended.

Peaches

Peaches, the queen of summer soft fruits, are off and running. They should last through September. The two varieties now on the market are Elbertas and Suncrest.

The Fay Elberta variety, which should soon reach peak production, is especially good for home canning. Gem peaches are running a little behind schedule, but should be coming to market very soon. This variety is popular for home freezing because it holds color so well when thawed. Also, the texture and soluble solids withstand the freezing process better than some other varieties.

Well into the season now, these multipurpose freestone peaches should be selected on the basis of creamy yellow skins with no hint of green—and not so much by the blush. Blushes vary with the variety. Look for well-rounded cheeks and a well-defined crease or fold.

Ready-to-eat peaches feel barely soft and have a good peachy fragrance, not to mention flavor! So give your taste buds a treat—buy a peach or two while they're good, fresh and plentiful.

Nectarines

From China by camel caravan to the Near East to Greece, and finally to America, the nectarine proves to be one of the world's oldest fruits. A relative of the peach, nectarines from the southern San Joaquin Valley should hit another peak this week. This delectable fruit is expectel to last through September.

The mid-season variety, now being harvested, is of particular good quality and in good volume, consequently reasonable prices. Look for nectarines that are firm, plump and well-formed. Slight softening along the seam indicates ripeness.

Cook booklet

A new 48-page, four-color cook booklet emphasizing summer fruits from California is available free from the California Tree Fruit Agreement.

The cook booklet contains more than 100 dessert, salad and main dish recipes and serving suggestions, as well as various nutritional information and canning and freezing tips.

Send a stamped, self-addressed, 4-inch by 9½-inch envelope to Fruits of Summer, P.O Box 4640, Sacramento, California 95825.

Crime panel gets first policeman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — San Jose Police Sgt. Hal K. Ratliff Monday was appointed to the California Council on Criminal Justice by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti.

The council is the states agency for administrating federal anticrime funds. Ratliff, 37, is the first policeman to be appointed to the council since its creation in 1969.

"Considering the millions of dollars administered by the council to improve our law enforcement capabilities, it is important to have the viewpoint of the working law enforcement officers represented, said Moretti, D-Van Nuys.

Tea sandwiches after golfing

Ladies' day at the golf club, and here's a quickie for tea sandwiches off the tee. Spread nut bread slices with jam and a blend of cream cheese and snipped pitted prunes. Cut into triangles.

Prunes store well in galley

Make no waves in the galley this summer. Stow airtight cans of moist pitted prunes under the bulkhead for easy snacking and instant energy.

Holidays and summer scuttle diet plans

DEAR SELMA:

I have a terrible time with the holidays and summertime. Kids are home—it s picnics, barbecue, etc. And I have gained 12 pounds since school is out and the little darlings are home—and I am in the kitchen constantly it seems. Any sympathy for a mother of three? Mrs. B. E.

Dear Mrs. B.E.:

Let me tell you something, darling. Your stomach does not know it's a holiday or summertime or that the kids are home. You sound as though this time of the year gives you a license to eat yourself into a stupor. Your mind is the only thing that knows it's that time of the year and it stays the same size. Why struggle by gazing hypnotically at cake, candy, ice cream, pizza and other fattening foods? You become a slave to these foods only if you surrender. Chart your future with the right decisions. Prepare enough of the right food for yourself for the tempting moment. Care enough about yourself to become your best friend.

Questions to be answered in this column should be sent to Selma Rifkin, Weight Watchers, 2360 S. Garfield Ave., Monterey Park, Calif. 91754. Persons desiring a personal reply should include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Low-fat product on cheese makers' drawing boards

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — University of Wyoming dairy specialists are developing a low-fat cheese-making process that could put tasty cheese on the dinner tables of dieters.

Dr. Darrell D. Deane, professor of dairy manufacturing, and Edward T. Dolan, superintendent of the UW dairy plant, are in their second year of developing the process. They expect the project to take four years.

"We can make the cheese," Deane said. "Our big hangup at the present time is it takes eight months or so to cure it."

Deane said the secret to making low-fat cheese was increasing the water content from about 40 per cent to nearly 50 per cent as a replacement for the fat removed.

"We're really basing the process on the usual commercial process except that we're trying to introduce more moisture," Deane said. "When you reduce the fat content, the cheese becomes quite corky and has a very harsh taste. We call it crumbly."

Deane said if the curing time of the process could be reduced, the method could produce the first low-fat cheeses on the commercial market.

"What we'd like to do is come up with a curing process of four to six months at the most," Deane said. "It costs money to store cheese."

The batch of cheese on which the two are presently working takes about eight months to cure.

Deane, who said he had "worked in cheese for 30 years," became interested in producing low-fat cheese because of the increased interest in low-fat foods of all types.

"I think cheese is one of the dairy products that is increasing in sales all the time," he said. "And this would add more variety to dairy products."

The cheese under development is an American variety that uses a cheddar process with a couple of steps altered.

In the first attempts, Deane said the cheddar process was used, but that removal of fat caused the acid content to increase, creating a bitter taste.

The most recent attempts have used a similar process but dropped the cheddar process, in which the curd is allowed to sit after cooking and begins to knit together. The acid taste developed during the cheddar process.

Deane said to eliminate the acid taste, the curd of low-fat cheese is washed, the cheddar process eliminated and the cheese immediately salted and placed in forms.

"It'll be more mild in flavor than your cheddar cheeses," Deane said. However, he said consumer had shown a preference for mild cheeses and that the cheese would sell if the process can be perfected.

"It shouldn't cost any more," he said. "Since there's less butter fat, there wouldn't be any more charge."

The two presented a paper on their project at the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at Washington State University.

Serve hearty salad in patty shells

Hearty salads make good main dishes for summer picnics. And any picnic salad becomes very special when served in a rich puff pastry patty shell.

If made in your own kitchen, puff pastry is a time-consuming activity. But convenient, frozen, ready-to-bake patty shells will save time. The shells consist of thin layers of dough rolled with vegetable shortening. Within 20 to 25 minutes' baking time, the patty shells are golden brown and ready to serve.

Vegetable Frankfurter Salad is one delicious warm weather combination to serve atop cooled baked patty shells. Combining colorful chopped fresh cucumbers, tomatoes, onions and celery with sliced frankfurters in an oil and vinegar dressing, it is an ideal main dish salad to pack in picnic baskets. For peak flavor, store the salad mixture in a chilled food carrier until served. When meal time arrives, take out the golden brown patty shells and spoon the hearty salad over all.

Whether served to adults or children, Frankfurter Vegetable Salad in tender patty shells is an eye-appealing and tasty salad that will win compliments for the cook.

VEGETABLE FRANKFURTER SALAD

- 1 package (10-ounces) frozen patty shells
- ½ pound frankfurters, sliced into round ¼-inch thick slices
- 2 tomatoes, chopped
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 cucumber, peeled and diced
- ¾ cup oil
- 3 tablespoons cider vinegar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder

Prepare patty shells as directed on package. Remove centers of shells and set aside. Combine remaining ingredients and chill for at least 1 hour. When ready to serve, place patty shells on a platter. Spoon vegetable salad into patty shells and serve at once. Serve crispy centers with a cream cheese spread or serve as a topping for salad. Serves 6.

State plants catfish by thousands

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Fish and Game suggests that consumers eat catfish to beat high meat prices.

The department Tuesday said it had planted nearly 500,000 yearling channel catfish throughout the state in this year alone. Most of the fish were raised at the department's new Imperial Valley Warmwater Hatchery near Niland.

Department Biologist James St. Amant said he was surprised more persons did not take advantage of the catfishing opportunities available.

A bulletin listing 21 ways to prepare catfish is available at no charge by writing to "Catfish Recipes," California Department of Fish and Game, 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, Calif. 90802, St. Amant said.

Think light, think summer think salads

The key word for summer is — light. Salads are the menu cue, then. As main course at luncheon or supper, salads cater to the general interest in healthful, lower calorie foods.

With salad days in mind, here are two new ones. Easy to prepare, economical — both look as good as they taste.

Molded Potato Salad is made quickly from instant mashed potato granules with plain gelatin added. Hard-cooked eggs and diced green pepper add color and crunch. For extra effect, you could fill the center of the ring with bacon curls. This is an easy garnish to make. Just partially cook bacon strips, roll each strip around the tines of a fork. Slide them off when cool and the curls will keep their shape.

Another main-course salad is a new version of popular chicken salad. Here, you add refreshing, tingling lime-flavor gelatin, whipped up to make the salad lighter and fluffier. Sour cream and yellow prepared mustard add zing. Celery and slivered almonds lend texture interest.

Salads have priority when the mercury rises. Serve yours with hot rolls and vegetable relishes. Iced tea in tall, frosty glasses is an ideal beverage, with a dessert of frosted cupcakes.

MOLDED POTATO SALAD

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 envelope (5 servings) instant mashed potato granules
1 cup finely diced green pepper
3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
3 strips bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled
1-3rd cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
bacon curls, if desired

Soften gelatin in cold water. Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package, but increase water to 1 ¾ cups; stir in softened gelatin. Add green pepper, eggs, bacon, mayonnaise and vinegar. Spoon into lightly oiled 1 quart mold. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with bacon curls if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

BREEZY SUMMER SALAD

1 package (3 ounces) lime-flavored gelatin
1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup mayonnaise
cup diced cooked chicken
½ cup diced celery
½ cup slivered almonds

Prepare gelatin as directed on package, reducing cold water to ½ cup. Add sour cream, mustard, and mayonnaise; stir until smooth. Chill until partially thickened; whip until light and fluffy. Fold in chicken, celery, and almonds. Spoon into oiled 5 or 6 cup mold. Chill until set. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

California in 1973 is celebrating its 125th anniversary of the discovery of gold.

A little touch of the grape can enliven mealtime

Take a look at the produce section of your supermarket to see some pleasant surprises. It's the time of good supplies of grapes, both the seeded Ribier grapes, purple-black, firm and luscious, and the Thompson Seedless green grapes. They both have so many roles to play at the table.

Of course, the most popular way to eat grapes is out of hand, enjoying every juicy bite. But with good supplies it's fun to make desserts using grapes as ingredients. A Fresh Grape Cottage Pudding with an Orange Grape Sauce is a real inspiration for this season. It's refreshing and so original in its use of fresh fruit that it will earn you real appreciation from family and guests.

Fresh plums are also in excellent supply right now. Combine them with seedless green grapes in a delightful compote. It has a sophisticated touch of wine and more than a dash of spice. It's really gourmet, and so easy to make.

Tips on buying grapes at their best are offered by the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. All grapes are as ripe when you buy them as they will ever be, so don't buy them with the thought of holding them to ripen.

Only ready-to-eat grapes are shipped. Grapes should be firmly attached to the stem. If the stem is dry and brittle, the grapes tend to fall off. The fruit should appear fresh, smooth, plump, not sticky, and the grapes should be well-colored for the variety. That means amber green for the Thompson Seedless green variety and purple-black for Ribiers.

2 casseroles for your camping trip

Tenting tonight—or over the weekend? These one-dish meals combine convenience foods such as packaged potatoes, and instant gravy mixes with canned meats and vegetables or precooked packaged rice.

They take only a few minutes to prepare giving you more leisure to enjoy the great outdoors. Also, as they require few ingredients, you have less to pack and tote. Besides their good taste, these dishes are hearty and filling, packed with nourishment for vigorous outdoor appetites.

An ideal one-dish dinner for campers is made from a package of scalloped potatoes, quickly cooked on a camp stove. The packaged potato slices come with seasoning for the sauce and all you do is add cans of lima beans, luncheon meat and tomato sauce. Result: a richly satisfying dish, which takes only 15 or 20 minutes, start to finish.

Another easy camp-out recipe is a quick rice and beef dish, done in only 10 minutes. Starting with pre-cooked rice, you use an envelope of instant onion gravy mix to supply zippy seasoning and sauce. Combine the seasoned rice with cans of corned beef and green beans for another satisfying one-disher.

CAMPERS ONE-DISH DINNER

- 3 cups water
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 can (1 pound) lima beans, undrained
- 1 package (5⅝ ounces) scalloped potatoes
- 1 can (12 ounces) pork luncheon meat, cubed
- 1 can (3½ ounces) French fried onion rings, if desired

Combine in large saucepan water, tomato sauce, undrained lima beans, potato slices and contents of seasoning mix envelope from package of scalloped potatoes. Cover, bring to a boil, and simmer 10 to 15 minues, until potatoes are tender. Add luncheon meat; simmer 5 minutes longer. Garnish with onion rings, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

QUICK CAMPERS RICE AND BEEF

- 1½ cups packaged precooked rice
- 1 envelope (⅞ ounces) onion gravy mix
- 2 cups water
- 1 can (1 lb.) green beans, undrained
- 1 can (12 ounces) corned beef, cut in large chunks

Combine rice, contents of gravy mix envelope, water, and undrained beans in large skillet. Bring to a boil. Add corned beef; simmer uncovered for 5 minutes or until rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

Garnish your burger from the inside out

Summer's lively outdoor sports stimulate hearty appetites that provide a perpetual challenge to the cook-shopper all season. Faced with satisfying these stepped up dining demands within the limits of a static food budget, many women tourn to ground beef more and more frequently. Ground beef is, in fact, America's favorite meat for budgeters, edging out all competition with its delicious flavor at a nominal price.

Most often it's thick, juicy beefburgers, broiled indoors or out, that provide the necessary nourishment to keep active people on the go. Although burgers find a welcome at the table again and again, a surprise will provide a happy change, especially when it's sandwiched in that popular burger itself. Although Barbecued Surprise Beefburgers may look like everday fare while broiling on the grill, one bite reveals the tasty surprise—onion, cheese and dill pickles—packed and sealed in the center of two stacked burgers for added eating enjoyment. More flavor in the form of barbecue sauce is included both inside and out. Some of the spicy sauce is incorporated in the ground beef mixture and more is brushed on the burgers while they broil.

The surprise in each patty makes a big burger bigger. Two and a half pounds of ground beef make six of these satisfying double burgers. Sized for active people, they make ideal food for an outdoor meal. Potato chips and fresh vegetable relishes will often be enough. But if the gang's appetities are soaring, furnish corn on the cob or a second burger. Watermelon slices furnish a refreshing finish.

BARBECUED SURPRISE

- 2½ pounds ground beef
- ¾ cup barbecue sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 thin onion slices
- 6 slices (¾ ounce each) American cheese
- 12 round dill pickle slices
- 6 hamburger buns, if desired

Lightly mix ground beef with ¼ cup barbecue sauce and salt. Reserve remaining barbecue sauce. Divide beef mixture into 12 equal portions and shape each into a patty 4 inches in diameter. In the center of each of six patties place: 1 slice onion, 1 slice cheese (quartered to make 4 equal squares and stacked) and 2 dill pickle slices. Top each with a remaining patty and press edges together carefully to seal in filling. Place burgers on rack in broiler 3 to 4 inches from heat or on grill top over ash-covered coals.

Brush with reserved barbecue sauce and broil at moderate temperature 6 to 8 minutes; turn, brush with barbecue sauce and broil 6 to 8 minutes, depending on doneness desired. Brush tops with remaining sauce and serve on buns, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Food cops watch out for Vienna

VIENNA (UPI) — The butcher watched nervously as Franz Kopecky lifted a sausage to his nose. "Okay," Kopecky said. The butcher smiled.

Nearby, Johann Horvath measured an apple, watched by a fidgeting green grocer.

Kopecky and Horvath are part of a 100-man team of plainclothes "food policemen"— specialists who sniff, taste, sip and analyze the goods sold in Vienna's markets, stores and restaurants.

"You've got to have a pretty strong stomach to do the things we have to," said Kopecky, a 23-year-old food cop whose beat is at Iznersdorf, Europe's second-largest wholesale market in the south of Vienna.

"I begin my testing with a sniff," Kopecky said. "The smell of the sausage tells me if the substance is correct — if there's enough meat, not too much fat etc.—then I take a taste. That's enough to tell me if the sausage is good or not. If it's suspicious, I send it away for analysis and very often that piece ends up as exhibit 'A' in a court case against the salesman."

Four years training

The food inspectors spend four years training for the job at city markets and in laboratories. They are taught the correct smell of fresh meat and fat, the right weight of a large egg or how to detect poisonous fungus on fruit and vegetables.

Kopecky said the 100-man team is enough to police Vienna's 16,000 food producers and restaurants.

"We know our people," he said. "We know the good places and the bad—and we visit the bad places at least once a month."

Kopecky recalled a time he was on restaurant duty and came across a suspicious "grammelknoedl" —a Viennese specialty made from pork crackling.

"The stuff tasted okay, but I had a funny feeling," he said. "After an investigation, we found out the knoedls were being made from left-over meals—scraped off the plates and used again. I doubt if a customer would have noticed."

No warning

Unlike many countries where the food is only tested at the wholesalers, Vienna's food policemen go directly to the retailer without warning, show their identification cards and start sniffing and tasting.

Kopecky and his colleagues made 56,920 tests last year and found 14,883 items suspicious enough to have them laborator - analyzed. More than 1,000 food purveyors were prosecuted.

Food cops cannot fine shopkeepers on the spot. The case goes to court and the offending salesman is fined up to 25,000 schillings ($1,250) or, in extreme cases, his license is revoked and he is imprisoned.

"There's no question of an officer taking a bribe," said Kopecky. "The penalties are too stiff. We're not even allowed to buy from the shops we test."

Find liquid bomb under patrol car

RED BLUFF (UPI) — A Tehama County sheriffs deputy found a burning liquid dynamite bomb in a plastic bag Monday under a patrol car parked in front of the jail.

Undersheriff Bill Gonzalez said Deputy Marvin Stroing doused the device with a bucket of water. Army ordenance men later removed it.

Gonzalez said the bomb would have been "devastating had it gone off.

New office for Indian legal rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Deparament announced this week creation of a new office to deal with legal rights of American Indians.

Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Potinger told a news conference the concept was an outgrowth of a special task force that has been studying Indian legal problems since last January. The task force was set up as the result of the lengthy confrontation at Wounded Knee, S.D., last winter between the federal government and militant Sioux Indians.

Pottinger said the section would be under jurisdiction of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division and would focus on Indian citizens who by law are protected from violations of constitutional rights by their own tribal council.

The office also will have responsibility of conducting litigation and coordinating civil rights activities involving Indians.

Carl Stoiber, a senior trial attorney in the civil rights division and head of the Indian Rights task force, was named as director of the new office, Pottinger said. R. Dennis Ickles will serve as deputy director.

Pottinger said the new section will coordinate its activities with other federal agencies with responsibilities for the rights of Indians.

Meet a man who beat Bobby Riggs

How would you like to take tennis lessons from a guy who can and did beat Bobby Riggs (and recently)?

Cool, huh? Well it can be done. Just pick up your 'phone and call Bob Sherman at the new Claremont Tennis Club. Bob is the head professional and manager of the new facility which is soon to have its formal opening.

The man's credentials are outstanding. He is the number one ranked player in singles in the senior (45) division in Southern California and number three nationally. He is ranked number three nationally in doubles.

In the senior (50) division, he is ranked number one nationally in both singles and doubles.

Last year Bob beat Bobby Riggs in straight sets for the Southern California Championships at the Los Angeles Tennis Club. The score was 6-4, 7-6.

"I'd like to challenge Bobby now," Sherman grinned, "But I don't think he'd play me. He's got his thing going with the women now."

Sherman is quick to credit Riggs with helping the sport grow. "Bobby Riggs has given more publicity to tennis than anyone in the last five years," he said. "For the first time the man in the street is asking me about tennis."

Now he says television is causing the popularity of the sport to continue to burgeoning.

Took it up at 30

Sherman himself is a refutation of the lifelong commitment is supposed to be required of a tennis champion. He never took it up until he was 30 years old.

"I was a basketball player and trackman (hurdler) at the University of Santa Barbara," he explained. "After graduation (he also played professional basketball with Syracuse in the NBA) I went into teaching (El Rancho School District for 20 years)."

"Every year, he continued, I'd spend my vacation in Santa Barbara and would play a lot of volleyball on the beach. One day there was no one playing volleyball, so I wandered over to the tennis courts. I was playing barefoot and in swim trunks."

"The champion, whom I knew, came by and he told me I looked terrible and should stick to basketball," Thomas went on. "Well, that was like kicking sand in the face of a 97 pound weakling, I bought the equipment and began to practice three to four hours a day."

Dedication pays off

The dedication of Bob Sherman once he sets his mind to something is revealed in what followed. Two years later he won the Santa Barbara City Championship from the same player who had scorned his ability earlier.

Five year's after that he won the Southern California Junior Veterans (35) Championship. He went on to win at seven times.

He has played at Wimbledon eight times, the first at the age of 37.

The Claremont Tennis Club, 2225 Padua in Claremont, is befitting of one with such impressive background. When complete it will have 10 championship quality courts with windscreens. Four will be lighted with four more to be lighted as the demand requires.

L.A.'s Komeback Kids still at it

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGLES — In San Francisco they have the "Young Giants." Los Angeles fans can watch the "Komeback Kids!"

The Dodgers have won 75 games this season. In 31 of them, they have come from in back to notch the victory. It happened again Tuesday night at Dodger Stadium as the come-from-in-backers did it for the third game in a row.

Trailing 3-2 with two out in the ninth inning, the Dodgers treated what remained of the 23,448 attendance to an incredible comeback.

The Dodgers were down not only in runs but also in spirit. Cincinnati had won again and a loss would cut the Dodgers lead back to 1½ games. It also would have put them under .500 for the current homestand with a 3-4 mark.

There was only slight stirring when Bill Russell beat out an infield dribbler, Manager Walter Alston sent Ken McMullen up to hit for Doug Rau.

In that moment the game changed direction. McMullen slammed a Balor Moore fastball over the fence to give the Dodgers a 4-3 victory.

The come-from-in-backers had struck again! Of such things pennants are woven.

Dodger players exploded from the dugout and ran jumping and yelling for the plate to greet the two baserunners. Even the usually phlegmatic manager showed his elation in the clubhouse.

"I'll tell you one thing gentlemen," he grinned. "For as few times as Mac has swung a bat he sure as hell has done his job."

McMullen was deeply moved by the display of emotion his blow inspried. "I've never received a reception like that," he told writers as they gathered around him. "It took me three or four minutes to get over it."

"It was my biggest home run ever," he continued, "one of my all-time great thrills. There was so much yelling and screaming I didn't realize it was a game-winner until I rounded first I didn't know whether it was the to the plate, but when I was running to first I didn't know whether it was the eighth or ninth inning or what."

The veteran third baseman admitted he was looking for a fastball. "If it had been a curve I probably would have taken the pitch," he said.

As for playing regularly McMullen's only comment was, "I just want to be part of the team and I don't care what part it is."

The Dodgers scored single runs in the first and seventh innings off Moore (6-12). Starter Tommy John was tagged for three runs on seven hits before being taken out for a seventh inning pinch hitter. But of the 21 putouts during John's stint, 14 were in the infield and he struck out the other seven.

Doug Rau (4-1) picked up the win. Although tagged for four hits in two innings, Rau pitched his way out of jams in both the eighth and ninth without allowing a run to score. The Expos left five of their 10 stranded runners during that span.

Don Sutton (14-7) against Ernie McAnally (7-6) in the series and homestand windup tonight. The Dodgers won't be back until August 30.

DODGER NOTES — Alston held a post-game meeting with John and Davis. There were two balls hit over Willie Crawford's head in the game. At one point John wanted Willie to move back and Willie D also got into the situation. "If anybody is going to move players around on this club, it is going to be me," said Alston. "But it was all settled before I got there."

Rookie Jerry Royster started at third base, explained Alston, "I wanted him to get his feet wet right away. I also wanted to see what he could do in the field so I would know whether I could hit for Cey or McMullen and put him in to play. He got to a couple of balls that neither of the other two would reach. I think he did a hell of a job."

In a sudden switch of thinking, the Dodgers announced that they will keep Charlie Hough and was optioning Greg Shanahan back to Albuquerque.

Shanahan was with the club four days but did not appear in a single game. The club will go with nine pitchers and Royster who will be eligible for the playoffs.

Vice President Al Campanis explained the Hough-Shanahan juggling act this way. "We discovered Hough's options had expired a couple of days ago and we had to obtain waivers in order to send him down. When another club claimed him, we withdrew the waivers and sent Shanahan, who could be optioned without waivers, back down."

Hough reportedly flew to Albuquerque, turned right around and flew back to Los Angeles. He was in the bullpen warming up in the late innings Tuesday night.

Steve Garvey's trial as cleanup hitter apparently is over. In 33 at-bats in the number four position, Garvey batted only .152 (5-for-33) and his average dropped 26 points to .306.

Inter-loop play looks doubtful

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Major league baseball owners met today to discuss a question that may have already been settled—will there be interleague play next year?

The answer right now looks like no.

National League officials met for more than two hours Tuesday in a session that was supposed to have been secret and, when they came away, the majority still were opposed to the American League-backed proposal.

"The general feeling is that it would be best not to disturb the type of divisional play we have now," said Walter O'Malley, board chairman of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Nothing much was accomplished," said John McHale, president of the Montreal Expos. "Everything is status quo."

That meant that when Allan H. "Bud" Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers, got up today to recommend strongly a plan by which American League clubs would oppose National League clubs in regular season play, he was already starting under a handicap.

Selig, American League President Joe Cronin, National League President Chub Feeney and Francis Dale, board chairman of the Cincinnati Reds, are members of the special inter-league committee.

Selig and Cronin favor interleague games. Dale and Feeney oppose them.

The leagues were scheduled to meet in joint session this morning and then adjourn to separate rooms for individual meetings. While inter-league play was high on the agenda, the owners were also expected to attend to certain "housekeeping chores" and pay more than passing notice to the San Diego situation.

San Diego area officials were scheduled to go to the California Supreme Court today to seek an injunction against the sale and movement of the Padres to Washington. Similar requests have been turned down in two lower courts.

Feeney did not say that the National League did not talk about the situation Tuesday, but he did say, "San Diego was not on the agenda." He said the discussions centered on interleague play and the designated hitter.

Dale "read the essence of my report" to the National League owners Tuesday and both he and Selig were to talk to the combined leagues today.

William C. Bartholomay, board chairman of the Atlanta Braves, said, "Several plans were advanced, but none of them captured my imagination."

Pittsburgh Pirates' General Manager Joe Brown said the officials will consider several proposals before voting.

Asked whether he felt it was fair to say the National League has not retreated from its original position, he replied: "I think that's fair enough to say."

Bad Henry's pace will leave him three short

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hank Aaron, homerless since July 31, is on a course which will make his final career home run total at the end of the current season 711 —three fewer than Babe Ruth's all-time record.

Aaron went 0-for-2 in the Atlanta Braves' 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday and now has hit 28 homers in Atlanta's 117 games. Should he continue that pace in the Braves' remaining 46 games, he will hit 10 more homers this season for a career toal of 711.

The Braves play the second game of a three-game series with the Cubs today with righthander Dick Reuschel, 12-10, scheduled to pitch for the Cubs. Aaron has hit more career homers at Wrigley Field (48) than at any other parks except Milwaukee's County Stadium and Atlanta Stadium.

Pomonan Seagren on way to second Superstars crown

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — Barring serious injury, champion pole vaulter Bob Seagren should be well on his way to capturing the latest phase of the $82,000 Superstars competition.

Seagren won the first Superstars event earlier this year, and held a substantial 4.5 point lead over the Boston Celtics' John Havlicek in Division One of the competition Tuesday.

But Seagren is entered in both the one-mile bike race and the track and field obstacle course—two events right up his alley — while Havlicek has completed his five events.

In Division Two, professional skier Ard Schenk has shown his versatility as an athlete by leading the pack with Yvan Cournoyer of the Montreal Canadiens 1.5 points behind. But the hockey star also has completed his events with Schenk having two remaining today. Karl Schranz could possibly catch his colleague on the pro ski tour.

Will Anaya play hide and seek?

By JIM COUR
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Romeo Anaya, the vicious puncher from Mexico, knows what to expect when he defends his World Boxing Association Bantamweight Championship Saturday night.

"He will run and I will chase him," he said. "I am prepared to go 15 rounds but I don't think he can hide that long."

Anaya, who has 28 knockouts in 41 fights, puts his title on the line against Panamanian Enrique Pinder at The Forum in Inglewood. The hard-hitting Mexican 118-pounder won the crown on a third round knockout of Pinder, a slick boxer, at Panama Jan. 20.

For the first fight with Pinder, Anaya earned $10,000. His share of the purse will be $50,000 this time.

"I am much more confident this time," said the 26-year-old champion. "This time I'm the champion and he's the challenger. That makes a great deal of difference."

Another factor in his favor, Anaya said, is the location of the rematch. The Saturday night crowd will be predominantly Mexican Nationals and Mexican-Americans.

"This will be my third fight in Los Angeles and I think I've become popular here now," the rugged titleholder offered. "In Panama, it takes a knockout to win. In Los Angeles, I can win a decision."

Anaya, who was painting cars in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, only 10 months ago, made his first title defense at The Forum before a throng of 18,552 April 28. He came away with an unimpressive split decision over countryman Rogelio Lara.

Cristobal Rosas, Anaya's manager, sat at a table with his fighter after a hard workout.

"Lara's style made Romeo look bad at times," Rosas assessed. "He will look better aagainst Pinder, much better."

Rosas, a fat, bald man with an easy smile, said he was surprised Pinder sought a rematch.

Montclair cyclist Chris Deeton

Mission: a gold medal for America

Montclair cyclist Chris Deeton plans to end the European dominance in his sport . . .

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

MONTCLAIR — The last time an American rider took a gold medal in Olympic Cycling was so long ago that nobody on this side of the Atlantic really wants to think about it.

But one Pomona Valley resident who is only halfway through high school thinks that the long-standing tradition of European dominance may be broken before long.

More importantly, he is his own candidate for the job.

Chris Deeton may only be a junior at Montclair High, but his name is rising quickly in the world of competitive cycling.

Earlier this month, Chris competed in the half-mile in the Junior Men's category in the National Championship Track Races at Northbrook, Illinois.

Chris didn't win.

Gilbert Hatton, who made the trip to the meet from El Monte, edged him — by one width of the wheel.

Chris' age prevented him from making the American team for the World Junior Championships, but his defeat at the hands of Hatton hasn't fazed his confidence.

"I'm pretty optimistic about making the team next year," Chris says with an air of confidence that is anything but boastful. "After that, my goal in life is winning an Olympic gold medal."

Chris primes for his opportunity to unseat the Europeans by riding anywhere from two to three hours every day, and competing in cycle races at a specially prepared track in Encino.

All of this takes place under the eye of Claremont Men's College professor Harry Jaffa, who has been Chris' trainer almost from the time he first got serious about bike riding a little over a year ago.

"He's like a swimming coach or a running coach," Chris says of Jaffa. "He doesn't plan a schedule or anything. I discuss with him what I should do. When we go down to Encino, he does things like blow the whistle and run the clock for me."

Jaffa's record in coaching riders makes him a source worth listening to. Among his protegees was Steve Maararenen, the national 10-mile champion for 1967-68.

As for Chris' initial motivation to get into biking, even he is open to suggestion. "I really don't know why I did it," he admits. "I knew a P.E. coach (Montclair's Jack Simpson) who had good racing cycles, and knew what to do to get into racing. I don't know what gave me the idea."

Chris makes one quick addition to his explanation, "I know now why I'm doing it, that's for sure."

Whatever his reason for starting, Chris shows no sign of stopping.

"I'm a bike racer . . . that's it," he asserts. "it's not like a hobby; it's morelike, well, a part of me."

Few performers, of any ability, make the Olympics without that kind of single-minded dedication.

As far as Chris is concerned, it's the only way to go.

"If you go into something like this, with only the idea of making the team in mind, you won't have much success, even if you get there. I say shoot for the top, and even beyond."

Despite his youth, Chris has some pretty sharp words for the American cycling establishment, and its contributions to the U.S. record of consistent loss.

"They don't hold international races here," Chris explains. "They do what they've always done by American measurement, and just haven't bothered to change it."

The American-type racing is more entertaining, Chris admits, but hardly prepares a rider for the sometimes bizarre methods of racing in Europe.

In a European sprint race, for instance, the race's distance may officially be 1,000 meters, but only the last 200 meters are timed.

Under the dictates of an extremely complicated form of strategy, riders may creep the first 800 meters, and have been known to come to points of near-motionlessness, sometimes for hours.

The four-man riding team races, another European concept, involve a form of aerodynamic manipulation much like "drafting" in auto racing in which a quartet of riders inches along the track in file.

American competition is more conventional, but no real training ground for potential international champions.

Professional riders make up to $40,000 on the international trail, but Chris isn't looking even that far ahead.

"I'm kind of confused, he says. "I don't feel pressured about anything right now, not even school. I have no real goals beyond being a cyclist."

And with a start like Chris Deeton has, who needs much more beyond that?

National League roundup

Cards snap losing streak

By United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals have learned to live with their mistakes and are a better team because of it.

The Cardinals, stretching their lead in the National League's Eastern Division to three-games, snapped out of an eight-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 9-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

St. Louis, plagued by mental errors and poor fielding during its losing streak, has rebounded from adversity before. After dropping 12 of their first 13 games, the Cardinals went on a tear and finally took over first place on July 22 despite their horrendous start.

Manager Red Schoendienst wasn't overly concerned when the Cards faltered earlier in the season and he wasn't about to shake up the St. Louis lineup after the latest string of defeats.

"There was no pressure, we were just losing," Schoendienst said, relaxing after his club's come-from-behind victory. "It was a little bit of everything. We weren't playing good ball and we were playing good teams. There are no excuses about losing."

Bernie Carbo, Ted Simmons and Joe Torre drove in two runs apiece to lead the Cardinal attack. The Cards had one hit off starter James Rodney Richard until the sixth when they scored five runs on five hits and two walks to tie the game at 5-5.

Carbo doubled home the winning run as the Cardinals wrapped up the contest with four runs in the seventh.

In other National League games, Atlanta beat Chicago 6-2, San Diego blanked New York 9-0, Los Angeles edged Montreal 4-3, Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 4-3 and Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5-4.

Ferguson Jenkins dropped his sixth game in his last seven decisions as the Braves handed the Cubs their ninth straight defeat. Jenkins was roundly booed by the home crowd after being taken out by Manager Whitey Lockman in a three-run fifth inning by the Braves.

Jenkins, frustrated at the disappointing season he's been having after winning 20 games for six the past six years, exploded as he entered the Cubs' dugout.

"I don't know," Jenkins said, "it just seemed everything had built up since the beginning of the year, and I had to let off steam."

He displayed his feelings by throwing four bats, one at a time, onto the playing field to indicate his disgust at being removed from the game after he walked three of the six batters he faced in the fifth inning and yielded a two-run single to Mike Lum.

"I wanted the bat boy to have a chance to do a little work," said Jenkins, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1971. "It was just something I did and the result of a whole lot of things."

Andy Kosco and Pete Rose singled home two runs in the ninth inning as the streaking Reds beat Pittsburgh for their sixth victory in the last seven games. Johnny Bench opened the ninth with a double and took third on an error. Kosco singled, scoring pinch-runner Cesar Geronimo to snap a 3-3 tie, and after a sacrifice, Rose singled home the fifth run.

Knowles hurls distance

A's get some relief

By United Press International

Dick Williams looked to his bullpen and was greatly relieved.

The Oakland manager had a change of mind and started relief pitcher Darold Knowles, who turned in a nifty six-hitter and his first complete game in an eight-year career as the A's nipped the Boston Red Sox 1-0 Tuesday night.

"I had planned to start Horacio Pina but I got to thinking more and more about it," said Williams, whose team remained a half game behind the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

"Pina hasn't gone much more than two innings in a long while and five or six weeks ago he got a sore elbow. So, I said, 'Hell, if I can get five or six good innings out of Knowles, then I can come in with Pina'."

But Knowles, whose longest previous stint was a 10-inning, no-decision relief appearance with Washington several years ago, pitched a remarkably strong game for a lefty hurler in Fenway Park with its renowned "Green Monster" in left. Knowles also was tough with men on base, forcing three double plays in the first four innings.

"I didn't know I was going to start until two hours before the game," said Knowles, who hiked his mark to 6-5. "So I went out and pitched the only way I know how, as long and as hard as I could."

The A's opened the decisive sixth inning with a single by Gene Tenace. Ray Fosse, who had three hits, then doubled Tenace to third.

Dick Green, an excellent bunter, tapped Bill Lee's third pitch back toward the mound as Tenace roared toward the plate. Lee attempted to barehand the bouncing ball but missed, permitting the run to score.

"That's one thing I can do ... bunt," said Green. "It was a beautiful pitch, right down the middle of the plate. I didn't try to hit it back up the middle. I was just concentrating on hitting it."

In other American League games, Kansas City tripped Cleveland 8-5, New York downed California 7-2, Milwaukee downed Chicago 5-4, Minnesota routed Detroit 12-1 and Baltimore upended Texas 12-10.

In National League games, Atlanta stopped Chicago 6

FAVORITE PLAYER — Ed Muir of Upland, the visiting team bat boy at Dodger Stadium, rates Terry Harmon of the Phillies as one of his favorite players. Muir attends Upland High.

Jenkins' (bat) fling may cost him

CHICAGO (UPI) — The possibility of punishment didn't enter into the thoughts of frustrated pitcher Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs when he disgustedly threw four bats onto the playing field when he was taken out of the game.

But he could pay the price, yet to be determined, when National League President Chub Feeney reads the umpires' report.

Tom Gorman, in charge of the crew of umpires, said Tuesday's bat throwing would be reported, but added there would be no recommendation for punishment.

Jenkins, quiet in the locker room after his display of temper, first said he fired the bats because "I wanted the bat boy to have a chance to do a little work."

Later, though, he said his disgusted reaction was the result of "a lot of things building up since the beginning of the year."

The things building up included an earlier pronouncement of disgust over his record and the number of home run balls he pitched when compared to his record of winning 20 games or more for the last six seasons and winning the Cy Young award in 1971.

It came to a head when he gave up three runs in the fifth inning against the Atlanta Braves, to make his yield in 4 1-3 innings seven hits, five runs and five walks, setting up a 6-2 win for the Braves. The loss was Jenkins' 12th against 10 win this year, his third straight defeat and his sixth in the last seven games.

He left to the accompaniment of loud boos from the home crowd of 24,553, a fact which was annoying. There was speculation that he was annoyed too at the ball and strike calls by plate umpire Jerry Dale. Dale, though, discounted this.

"We had no words," he said. "He didn't say anything to me."

Jenkins in fact said little to anybody, umpires or teammates, and had nothing to say even to Billy Williams, who ran in from left field when the bats started flying, to help convince Jenkins he should go to the locker room.

"He didn't say anything," Williams said. "It wasn't the strike calls. The booing might have had something to do with it.

Taiwan undefeated after no-hit gem

GARY, Ind. (UPI) — Huang Chih-hsiung fired a no-hitter Tuesday night to lead Taiwan to its third victory by defeating Windsor, Ont., 1-0 in the Senior Little League World Series.

The Canadians got three-hit pitching from Steve Zack, the loser. The game was called after six innings because of a curfew.

Huang was the first to throw a no-hitter in this year's series. Taiwan remained unbeaten in the double elimination tournament.

In earlier games Tuesday, Rio Pierras, Puerto Rico, swamped Saltillo, Mexico, 14-2 after Oxon Hill, Md., beat Chicago Clear Ridge, 8-2.

The losses eliminated Mexico and the Illinois team from the tourney which winds up Saturday.

Chih-Hsiung, a right-hander, struck out four while walking two. Zack fanned five.

Li-Wen-Jui scored the only run in the game in the third inning. He led off with a single and raced home on a misjudged flyball double by Tun Kou-Hua.

Taiwan pitchers in their three wins have given up two hits in 19 innings.

Canada remains in the action with one win and one loss.

Top athletes open Games in Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nearly 4,200 athletes will begin carrying the colors of 73 countries today at the opening ceremonies of the seventh edition of the World University Games, an event that the host Russians are calling "the greatest sports spectacular" in this country' history.

Eighteen-year old Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M,. a twotime gold medal winner in the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich, will carry the Stars and Stripes of the United States, which boasts the games' largest delegation—over 300 student-athletes.

Eligibility for the games, which originated at Turin, Italy, in 1959 and have been held at four-year intervals ever since, is ~~restricted to~~ college, junior college and graduate students not past the age of 28. The U.S. participation has been restricted to the last three editions.

There are nine different sports—with the U.S. is entered in all—basketball, track and field, swimming, fencing, volleyball, water polo, gymnatsics. wrestling and tennis.

Typically, the U.S. will bear its strongest aggregations in basketball (led by North Carolina State All America David Thompson), track and swimming (led by Miss Carr and AAU champions Mark Chatfield of Glendale, Calif., and Steve McFarland of Amarillo, Tex.

The U.S. gymnastics team suffered a costly blow early in the week when John Crosby, an NCAA champion from Southern Connecticut State, was felled by an appendix attack.

Three straight days of rain over this capital city dampened any hopes the athletes had of training outdoors under normal conditions.

The 103,000-seat Lenin Stadium, where the opening ceremonies will be held, was practically empty Tuesday. Only a handful of uniformed soldiers were there finishing up the final maintenance before the games begin.

The U.S. track team, minus the usual glamour names (Marty Liquori, Dave Wottle, Rod Milburn, etc.) held a light workout inside the grounds of the University of Moscow. Members of the press were still banned from the grounds by Soviet officials.

Ed Muir's summer job might be tough, but it's interesting

UPLAND — Ed Muir , who will be a senior at Upland High, puts in a long day when he goes to work.

It's also a tough job with many different duties. Some aren't so pleasant but most of them are delightful.

You see, Muir knows almost every National League baseball player.

He is the visiting team bat boy at Dodger Stadium.

"I was very surprised to get this job," Muir said. "My father is a good friend of Jim Muhe, the visiting team clubhouse attendant. One day last year, Muhe called me and asked if I would like to be a bat boy."

It's quite an experience for a teenager to be so close to major leaguers. While Muir likes them all, he does have his favorites.

The Philadelphia Phillies are his special friends, especially Terry Harmon, Cesar Tovar and Tom Hutton.

"They are something special to me," Muir said. "The Phillies let me hit along with them when we're playing pepper and they call me by my first name."

Obviously, one player Muir will never forget is Henry Aaron. Muir would love to be the bat boy congratulating Aaron when he crosses the plate on his 715th home run.

"Aaron is a nice guy but I leave him alone because he has so many people around him all the time," Muir said.

While Muir has had to drop any summer baseball plans because of his job, he was able to bat .302 for the Upland junior varsity last year. He hopes to make the varsity next season.

"This job has helped my baseball," Muir explained. "You learn so much just watching the major leaguers."

While the job during the game is fun, Muir is also quick to point out there is hard work involved in his duties.

He reports to Dodger Stadium about 3 p.m. before night games and doesn't leave for at least an hour after the game.

Among his duties are preparing clean towels, fresh food and soft drinks for the players, carrying the bats and helmets to the dugout and shining shoes after the game.

"The hard work is after the game," he explained. "Even though the hours are sometimes long and the work difficult, I feel I have the funnest job in the world."

Muir moved to Upland from Pomona after fifth grade.

Before he was able to get his driver's license on his 16th birthday, Muir took the bus into Los Angeles to report to work with his parents picking him up after the game, listening to Vin Scully to determine what time to meet their son.

"It was quite a sacrifice," Muir's mother explained, "but well worth it."

Don Bradley's column

There will be a drinking fountain on each court, a play area with playground equipment for small children, a swimming pool, pro shop, clubhouse lounges, men's and women's locker rooms, mens and women's saunas, a hydrotherapy pool, and a snack shop.

When the membership reaches 250, four additional courts wil be built.

When it reaches 390, indoor air-conditioned handball and badminton courts, two platform tennis courts, and a gym are to be constructed.

Finally, if requested by a sufficient number of members, a small bar will also be installed.

Sherman currently is taking memberships and giving lessons. And you don't have to be a member to take lessons from him. The former Alhambra resident gives private lessons and currently has people from as far away as San Bernardino and Pasadena taking lessons from him.

As for the upcoming Bobby Riggs-Billie Jean King match, Thomas predicts another Riggs victory. "Riggs will win," he said, "but I'd still like to challenge him. But he won't play me or his bubble bursts."

It's pretty hard to argue with a man who has proven he can do just about anything he sets his mind to.

Crenshaw makes pro debut in USI Classic Thursday

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Young Ben Crenshaw, winner of just about everything the amateur ranks had to offer, takes aim on the professional jackpot Thursday when 144 golfers tee off in the $200,000 USI Classic at Pleasant Valley County Club.

Crenshaw, 21, who won three NCAA national titles while playing for the University of Texas, makes his pro debut here in a field that includes defending champion Bruce Devlin, tour money leader Bruce Crampton and popular Lee Trevino.

"I don't think I'll feel any different here than any other pro in the tourney," Crenshaw said after a practice round on the hilly and winding 7,212-yard, par 72 course.

"I'll just try to forget the money and concentrate on golf," he said.

Crenshaw had originally planned to hold off on his professional career and play in the Walker Cut amateur match between the U.S. and Britain next week in Brookline, Mas.

But he felt that would delay his career start until next year, so he chose instead to join the Professional Golfers Association tour.

"It's a relief," Crenshaw said. "All kinds of people were asking me what I planned to do. Now I've made the decision."

Crampton and Trevino were rated as co-favorites heading into the second USI Classic, sponsored by U.S. Industries. The winner will take home $40,000 — enough to put Crampton over the $300,000 mark in earnings for 1973.

Motor sport today

His public image and Mark Donohue's estimation of himself don't mesh.

"Everybody says, 'He's so good developing race cars because he is a graduate engineer,' but the truth is I get a lot of credit because I listen to a lot of people and try not to think I know everything," Donohue said.

Donohue was talking during a break between dynamometer test runs of his American Motors formula 5000 racing engine at Traco Engineering in Culver City. He was as relaxed as anyone could be during a frantic schedule that finds him crisscrossing the country as racing team manager as well as driver for the Roger Penske team.

That night Donohue hopped a "redeye" flight to Cleveland for a Can-Am race at Mid-Ohio. He was scheduled to go next to Reading, Pa., for skid pad tests of his formula 5000 car, then to Road Atlanta for an L&M series formula 5000 race and back to Pocono, Pa., for more testing before returning to Ontario for the opening of practice for the California 500 USAC championship race, where he will drive the Sunoco McLaren.

.."I don't get paid extra for coming out here," Donohue said, "but I wouldn't be satisfied if I didn't. My problem is I take racing too seriously. If things go well and we win, I have the double satisfaction of knowing I won as a driver and contributed to making the car right.

"If I lose, I have to accept the blame. There is tremendous pressure to pull things together. American Motors doesn't understand why we don't win L&M races. Roger doesn't understand. The mechanics don't understand. I can't just walk away if the car doesn't run well."

Donohue hastened to add that he wasn't complaining. He likes what he does for a living. He ought to be pleased with the fact that he has won more major road races than any other American driver or that he is the Indianapolis 500 winner, but he isn't satisfied.

"I just haven't had that much success this year to be satisfied," Donohue said. "There's only one measure of success — to win. If you don't win, it's not fun, it's not profitable. I was hurt and missed a lot of races last year, but my income this year will be half of what it was last year.

"I don't think I've ever said my goal is to be the world champion or the Indianapolis winner or champion of anything. It's so easy for things to go against you that you can come away from a whole career disappointed. I follow a rule: Do your best from day to day and life will take care of you."

Donohue still hurts from the severe knee injury suffered 13 months ago in the ferocious crash of his Porsche Can-Am car at Road Atlanta during a test.

"Pain is a small price to pay," he said. "I'm lucky to have a leg. It does get me down once in awhile, especially after I have been walking around on a cement floor. But the human mind tends to forget things you don't like, especially if you've been hurt physically."

This week in Indianapolis the U. S. Auto Club board of directors will make a decision on driver interchange that may determine if Donohue will ever be able to run a USAC race again, because he has resigned the club. Many in racing have expected him to make an issue and defy USAC, but Donohue hasn't so far and apparently doesn't plan to.

"The only thing I can do," Donohue said, "is to punch 'em in the ribs, and that would make them mad at me. They are going to be around a long time after I'm gone. USAC leaned over backwards to let us run at Pocono (after publicly proclaiming Donohue could not), but we treated them like gentlemen and they treated us he same. I believe racing is the better for it."

Gordon Johncock is one racing driver who doesn't care if he makes a million dollars out of his sport or not. He's a rarity.

The little known Indinapolis 500 winner was reflecting on his futrue the other day.

"If I had to quit racing and do something else for a living," he said, "I think I would like to be a truck driver. To be behind the wheel is a kind of job that gives me a great amount of pleasure and satisfaction."

Johncock just turned 37, has been at the wheel of some kind of vehicle since the age of 5. His first "ride" was aboard a John Deere tractor on his father's Michigan farm.

"My dad rigged a board and a rope to operate the hand clutch," said Johncock. "If I couldn't reach the board with my foot, he would be walking along behind and pull the rope to operate the clutch.

"It was real funny when I would drive the tractor down the road, because the tractor was so high I couldn't see over the hood. I had to lean over to see around it. People driving the other direction would get real panicky, because to them it looked like a runaway tractor with nobody driving it."

Johncock is uncomfortable working the rubber chicken circuit so familiar to other Indy 500 winners, but he doesn't express his anxiety in public.

"The saying is that when you win the Indianapolis 500 you are going to be a millionaire, but the price you pay to do that isn't worth it to me," he said privately.

Johncock explained tht earning the money that goes with an Indy victory carries a cost he doesn't like to pay. It interferes with his private life. For example, his annual visit with two sons — he is divorced from the mother of his five children — was interrupted by a promotional job he accepted on behalf of Ontario Motor Speedway.

"I didn't do it for the money," said the STP Eagle driver. "I want to do everything I can to help this place (OMS) make a go of it. But when I told my boys I had to leave them, my oldest boy asked, 'Dad, why do you have to end our vacation?' I just couldn't explain it to him right."

Johncock admits he hasn't been as successful in his personal life as he has been on the track. He is in the process of getting a divorce from his second wife, and he recently settled a court fight over his Indianapolis winnings.

The race driver had declared bankruptcy over an unsuccessful venture in lumbering, and creditors attached his Indy purse even though it had nothing to do with the business failure. He decided to settle rather than to fight the legal action, just to get rid of the aggravation.

At one of his public appearances the toastmaster prefaced his introduction with the comment: "A few years ago people were saying, 'Gordon who?' but now they know who Gordon Johncock is. . ."

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised," Johncock said, "if they were still saying, 'Gordon who?' "

Outside the restaurant, on the sidewalk where all the celebrities present were before the TV cameras, Merlin Olsen, Happy Hairston and others were ignored as two little boys walked up to the Indy champ.

"Mr. Johncock," one of them asked. "may we have your autograph?"

They knew who he was.

Gordon takes NASCAR lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Surprising Cecil Gordon of Horse Shoe, N..C, has jumped into the lead with just one race remaining in the second leg of the $120,000 NASCAR Winston Cub series.

Gordon vaulted into the lead with an eighth place finish in Sunday's Talladega 500 when Benny Parsons of Detroit, the former leader, dropped out early with mechanical problems.

Gordon has an 84.25-point margin over James Hylton of Roanoke, Va., 2,655.25 points to 2,571.00. Parsons holds down third place with 2,506.75, with Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C, fourth at 2,501.25.

OCIR offers racing twinbill

EAST IRVINE — Orange County International Raceway will present its Invitational Tournament of Funny Cars and the American Hot Rod Association's Grand American Regional Points meet on Saturday.

The funny car half of the twin bill will feature a Southwest versus West theme with eight of Texas' and Arizona's most powerful entries dueling eight Western all-stars.

Leading the Southwest team will be 18 year old Billy Meyer of Waco, Texas who will be returning to the scene of his greatest triumph.

It was the youthful Meyer who entered last years rich Manufacturers Funny Car Championships a virtual unknown and waded through a field of the sports most notorious funny cars including the feared "Chi-Town Hustler" in the championship race.

Meyer, making his first OCIR appearance since that monumental victory, hopes to duplicate last November's performance with a win next Saturday.

Joining the Texas teenager on the Southwest All Star Team will be Cecil Lankford in the "Brand X" Mustang, the "Banchee Barracuda" of Linford McLemore, the "Grim Reaper" of Larry Reap, Larry Christopherson's "Arizona Wildcat", John Powers, III "Winemaker", professor Kelly Chadwick's Chevrolet and Ron Southerland in the "Arizona Vulture."

The West team will include Danny Ongais in the "Vels-Parnelli Jones Barracuda," Pisano & Matsubara, Dunn & Reath, the "Warhorse," Plueger & Gyger, Pete's "Lil Demon," Lill John Lombardo and Stone, Woods & Cooke.

Sharing the program, with the funny, cars will be many of drag racings top sportsmen racers competing for valuable American Hot Rod Association points as well as trying to set world records in their respective classes.

Gates open at noon Saturday with eliminations beginning at 7 p.m. that evening.

Road America Can-Am

Events added at Elkhart Lake

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. — Confirming a two-heat format for the Road America Can-Am, President Clif Tufte of the midwestern road-racing circuit today announced the schedule for the $91,000 August 24-26 race weekend.

Not only will there be the famed Canadian-American Challenge Cup headliner but two other top-drawer events involving formula cars to make for a spectacular session of competition. An 80-mile formula B race will be held Saturday, a 60-mile VW Gold Cup series race for Super Vees on Sunday.

Easily the richest road-racing series in North America with more than a million dollars in purses, the Can-Am is also the only series in the world boasting cars of unlimited horsepower. Boosting already powerful engines with turbocharging, the cars rev up to 900-plus "horses" capable of fully 200-mile-an-hour speeds. While there are a number of McLarens and Lolas as formidable threats, the new turbo Porsches have been dominant thus far in the 1973 campaign.

Brilliant international racing stars are being challenged vigorously by crack Americans with so much money and prestige at stake, the field including such men as Mark Donohue, George Follmer, David Hobbs, Jody Scheckter, Jackie Oliver, Mario Andretti, and a score more of top motorsports stature. With such drivers, with faster cars, with a wider track the 115-plus mph record set by New Zealand's Denis Hulme two years ago is likely to be shattered either in qualifying or racing.

The Road America Can-Am will consist of two phases of 100 miles each—the first slated for 1:15 and the second at 3:30 on Sunday (Aug. 26). Cumulative finishes will determine the overall winner, with the second heat undoubtedly producing some spirited racing that should make for one of the finest races ever staged at this serpentine course.

Leaders may change in Riverside Regionals

RIVERSIDE — Close races in regional points standings may see new leaders emerge in 17 of 23 classes during next weekends Riverside Regional Championships at Riverside International Raceway.

Sponsored and organized by the California Sports Car Club Region of the Sports Car Club of America, Saturday and Sundays races wil be conducted over Riversides 2.55-mile, eight-turn sports car road course.

One class that may well see a new points leader after the Riverside Regionals is C Production where Costa Mesas Grey Egerton leads Dan Parkinson of Glendale by a scant three points for the season.

Parkinson, driving a Datsun 240Z, has been virtually unbeatable since March, winning two straight regional and three national events conducted by Cal Club while Egerton in a Porsche, piled up his 21 points in the early part of the year.

Formula A competition sees John McDonald of Encino leading David Eshleman of Cucamona by three points, 18-15, while Mickey Fowler of Glendale is within striking distance with nine points.

Olney Mairs of Malibu leads the Formula B standings by three points over James Hall of Sunset Beach while three other drivers — John Milledge of Mt. View, Bill Cooper of Mt. Herman and Russ Mayberry of Woodland Hills—trail by only four points.

Other tight races that may witness a shakeup in the standings this weekend include those in Formula C, Formula Super Vee, D Production, Formula Vee, E Production, F Production, G Production, H Production, B Sports Racing, C Sports Racing, C Sedan, Showroom Stock Sedan and Showroom Stock Production.

Action gets under way Saturday at 8 a.m. with practice and qualifying to be followed by seven qualifying races starting at 12 noon.

On Sunday, warmup practice begins at 8 a.m. and seven 30-minute championship races start at 11:30 a.m. Gates open at 7 a.m. both days.

Paddock passes are available at the course for $3, good for admission both Saturday and Sunday. Children under 12 are admitted free when with an adult. There will be no advance ticket sales and no overnight camping.

Cav coach - GM sees his job as easier this year

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Bill Fitch, general manager-coach of the Cleveland Cavaliers, thinks his job may be a bit easier this year.

In three years of battle in the tough National Basketball Association, the Cavaliers have lost 176 games while winning only 70.

Two talented rookies, Larry Farmer from U.C.L.A. and Jim Brewer of Minnesota, are the reasons for Fitchs optimism. Farmer, a 6-foot-5 forward, "knows less about losing than anyone who's associated with the team, said Fitch, while getting ready for the start of rookie camp Thursday at Lakeland Community College in nearby Mentor.

"You dont have to tell him about winning like Ive been trying to tell my guys. In his four years in college they didn't do anything but win.

Brewer, the clubs first draft pick ,is 6-foot-9 and 220 pounds. Fitch expects the giant forward-center to provide much needed help at the defensive end of the court on rebounds.

"Im going to go over Brewer with a fine tooth comb and work hard with him behim to log a lot of time as a cause he can handle the spot, Fitch said. "I expect rookie and hold his own at the other end of the court.

The former Minnesota star, also a center-forward on the 1972 U.S. Olympic team, is no stranger to Fitch. He recruited the all-Big Ten choice while still a head coach at the University of Minnesota.

Although he does expect big things from Farmer and Brewer, Fitch is a realist when it comes to evaluating a first-year mans worth. "I hope all 12 rookies coming to the camp are around when the vets come in (Sept. 10), but I know it won't be that way, he said.

Only 27 rookies stayed on all the teams in the NBA all or last year and the Cavaliers had only one. According to Fitch, their playing time together wouldn't average four minutes.

"You're here to win and you can't do it with rookies playing all the time, says Fitch. "We have the veterans who can outperform the kids coming out of college.

"Of course, there are exceptions to the rule, just like our own Austin Carr. When you draft, you go after the best man at the position you need most and youre lucky if it works out. But Im still waiting for my silver lining in the sky.

Brewer and Farmer aren't going to get jobs handed to them. Fitch says they'll have to battle it out with the other 10 players invited to the camp.

They include guard Allen Hornyak and center Luke Witte, both from Ohio State; guard-forward Dean Martin of Baldwin-Wallace College in nearby Berea; forward Jim OBrien of Maryland; guard Les Taylor of Murray State; forward John Coughran of the University of California at Berkley; forward Willie Calvert of Abilene Christian; and forward-guard John Ritter of Indiana.

Pinder's workouts shift odds to even

INGLEWOOD — The odds on Saturday nights world bantam weight title showdown between champion Romeo Anaya and ex-titleholder Enrique Pinder have shifted to even money.

Earlier, the heavy hitting Anaya was listed as a 10-8 favorite to retain the 118-pound crown he took from Pinder this Past January 20 in Panama City.

However, Pineds flashy workouts at the Elks Building gym have overshadowed Anayas training efforts causing the switch in odds.

In their January meeting in Panama, Anaya scored a clean cut third round knockout. Pinder claims he took the fight to the rugged Mexican and got careless.

In supporting bantamweight 10-rounders, Rodolfo Martinez, the No. 2 contender, is a 12-5 choice over French champion Guy Caudron; Rogelio Lara, the No. 4 challenger, is a 10-7 pick over Benny (Memin) Rodriguez of Los Angeles and young prospects Davey Pierson and Rafael Gonzalez are rated as a toss-up.

While Singer is the Angels' top winner with a 15-10 record, Valentine has been idle most of the season because of a fractured ankle caused when he ran into the outfleid fence at Anaheim Stadium.

Bullets hire Bickerstaff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Capitol Bullets have hired Bernie Bickerstaff, head coach at the University of San Diego, as assistant coach for the 1973-74 season, the club announced Monday.

Bickerstaff, 29, led San Diego to a 19-9 record last year and compiled a 55-49 record during his four-year tenure as head coach.

A native of Benham, Ky., Bickerstaff played college basketball at San Diego and was captain and most valuable player during the 1966-67 season. After a tryout with the Harlem Globetrotters, Bickerstaff decided to return to the University of San Diego as assistant coach, becoming head coach two years later.

"I met Bernie last year when I coached at San Diego (ABA Conquistadors) and was very impressed with him as a teacher," said Bullets head coach K.C. Jones. "He has a good mind for the game and should be an important addition to the Bullets."

Coaches begin overseas clinics

DENVER (UPI) — Three members of the National Association of Basketbal Coaches will be spreading their knowledge overseas this month.

Barry Dowd, head coach at the University of Texas at Arlington, and Arizona State mentor Ned Wulk will be giving clinics in Denmark, Sweden and at the World University Games in Moscow. Joe Vancisin of Yale, the 1973 NABC President, will be in Argentina presenting basketball seminars.

Boys in the 8-10 age group and weighing 50 to 80 pounds are welcome to join either team at the practice sessions, held every evening Monday through Friday at Palomares Junior High beginning at 6 p.m.

Pro football roundup

Johnny U. sues Baltimore

By United Press International

John Unitas hasn't forgiven the Colts for the treatment he received during his final season in Baltimore last year.

Unitas, traded to the San Diego Chargers after spending the last two-thirds of the 1972 season on the bench, Tuesday filed a $725,000 suit against the Colts for "malicious breach of a 10-year contract" and "publicly humiliating" him.

Unitas, who helped the Colts to three National Football League titles and holds many of the league's passing records, filed a suit in Baltimore Superior Court charging that Joe Thomas, the Colts' vice president and general manager, "engaged in a course of conduct which was designed to and did in fact embarrass and humilate Unitas ... and make it impossible for him to carry out his obligations under the contract."

Unitas had a personal services contract with the Colts which called for a $30,000 front office job after his career was over. Unitas, in the suit, said that Thomas made it clear he did not want him with the Colts in any capacity.

Thomas was unavailable for comment and a Colt spokesman would say only that the case was being referred to attorneys.

Elsewhere, Gloster Richardson, veteran wide receiver of the Cleveland Browns, was arrested last weekend for a variety of traffic violations and for possession of marijuana, police said Tuesday. Richardson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and the drug charge. He was freed on a personal bond.

The Browns, meanwhile, acquired tight end Jan White. who announced his retirement from football two weeks ago, from Buffalo for a draft choice.

Joe Woolley, fired as head coach of the Ball High School team in Galveston, Tex., for altering transcripts of two Oklahoma freshmen, was hired as an assistant coach by the Houston Oilers. Woolley was hired by General Manager Sid Gillman as quality control coach, replacing Garland Boyette, who came out of retirement Monday to play linebacker again.

"All I asked for was an opportunity," Woolley said. "I made a mistake. I admitted it. Now I want to get to work and prove myself."

The Denver Broncos obtained veteran linebacker Bill Laskey from the Colts for a draft choice and fullback Eddie Ray, who missed three weeks of practice with the Atlanta Falcons, was fined $2,100 when he finally reported Monday.

The New York Giants said that star running back Ron Johnson, held out of the club's first two pre-season games, would play against the New York Jets Sunday. Johnson gained 1,182 yards last season. Joe Namath, used sparingly by the Jets thus far, is expected to see considerable action at quarterback Sunday in the battle for football supremacy in New York.

Miami Coach Don Shula said that fullback Larry Csonka, still bothered by an calf injury, would miss Saturday's preseason game with the Chicago Bears. Csonka has not played since the College All-Star game.

In pre-season action this week, Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia Thursday night and Washington is at Buffalo on Friday. In Saturday games, Baltimore plays Detroit at Memphis, St. Louis is at Denver, Houston takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee, Minnesota is at Kansas City, Chicago at Miami, New England at Atlanta, New Orleans at Dallas and Oakland plays Los Angeles at Berkeley, Calif.

On Sunday the Jets and Giants meet in New Haven, Conn., Cleveland takes on Cincinnati at Columbus, Ohio, and San Diego is at San Francisco.

Indiana University has won the last six NCAA National Collegiate Swimming Championships. The Hoosiers were second each of the three years, before that too.

Smoke restriciton bill going too far

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — By an 8-1 vote, the Board of Supervisors has tabled a bill which would have prohibited smoking in their chambers, in all the city's elevators and in hospital waiting rooms.

"I've gone along with a lot of things that abridge personal freedoms, but this is going too far," Supervisor Dorothy von Beroldingen argued against the bill. She's a smoker.

PRINCELY ENTERTAINMENT — Joan Ross Gair, foreground, and, from left, Kathy Mason, Victor Moreno and Belinda Smith perform in the Laguna Beach Civic Ballet Company production of "Polovetsian Dances" from "Prince Igor." The program, to be held at the Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach, at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 1 and 2, will also include selections from "Swan Lake" and "Graduation Ball."

Goldsboro, Nash to play at Knott's

BUENA PARK — Television and recording star Bobby Goldsboro will perform in the John Wayne Theater at Knott's Berry Farm Aug. 23-28.

Tommy Cash and the Tomcats will appear there Aug. 29-31.

Performances are at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, and at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Goldsboro came into prominence with his own nationally syndicated television show, The Bobby Goldsboro Show, seen in over 100 major television markets.

Goldsboro achieved international recognition in 1968 when he recorded "Honey," a song that became the best-seller in the world that year. He is kept busy year around with television appearances, concerts and recording sessions.

Since his first national hit single, "See the Funny Clown," in 1964, Goldsboro has recorded such songs as "Little Things," "Voodoo Woman," "Autumn of My Life," "I'm a Drifter" and "With Pen in Hand."

Goldsboro is capable of captivating "pop," "easy listening" or "country" audiences with equal success, as proven by his record sales and radio airplay. He has chalked up 21 songwriter awards in his career as well as five gold singles and four gold albums.

Cash and the Tomcats provide solid country sounds. Organized in 1970, the group already has a list of recordings and concert appearances.

Tommy, brother of country music great Johnny Cash, has a long string of hits including "Six White Horses," "Listen," "Rise and Shine," "So This Is Love" and "Workin' on a Feelin'."

Butz resignation urged

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., called Tuesday for the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and his replacement by a man "who will represent both the consumer and farmer.

Cranston, meeting with members of "Fight Inflation Together, accused Butz of responsibility for "the worst bungling of the American agricultural and food economy in the nations history.

He said that Butz, "more than any other man, must bear the responsibility for the shocking rise in food prices and shortages which are wrecking family budgets and imposing cruel hardships on the elderly and poor.

Cranston said that President Nixon should nominate as Butz successor a secretary who will represent farmers and consumers as well.

"Farmers deserve a fair profit and, at the same time, they should be allowed to produce as much food as they can, he said. "Both consumers and farmers would benefit.

Murder charges filed against rioting cons

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Murder charges were filed Thursday against seven inmates in connection with three slayings during the recent McAlister prison riot, Gov. David Hall's office announced today.

Golf pros and cons

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Golf is, by and large, an expensive game. You can pay a wad for clubs, bags and balls, then add greens fees, cart rentals, and incidentals like gloves, tees and martinis at the 19th hole.

But one thing in the agonizing game is absolutely free—advice.

As a newcomer to the game, I am like a virgin lump of clay and my partners and opponents, the caddies and casual passerbys are lined up with an endless supply of hints, tips, suggestions and counsel——all of it conflicting.

For the novitiate, a round of golf is group therapy. With the best intentions, your fellow players cause you topped drives, lost balls, shots into bunkers and over greens and three-and-four-putt holes. A naked aborigine, armed with a round-headed war club, would do better than I — if no one gave him any advice.

"Keep your shoulder down,' Joe," says fellow player A. "That way you can —"

I keep my shoulder down and squirrel the shot out of bounds.

"You kept your shoulder down, Firman," says fellow player B. "Try to keep your shoulder up, so when you swing, the ball will . . . "

A few holes later, fellow player C suggests, "Stand further back from the ball. That way you get the full power of the swing."

I belt the ball 20 yards into a toolshed.

"You're standing too far from the ball, Joe," says fellow player A. Stand closer and use a wider stance. That way you'll get the full power of you swing."

Later, fellow player B says, "Your stance is too wide. Try a more closed stance. That way . . ."

One tries to be discerning about whose advice to take, naturally, like Nixon and the White House staff. You note player A is an 11-handicap man, and player C is a scratch player. You tip toward C's tips.

One is ill-advised to follow the advice of an opponent, of course. Does Egypt take suggestions from Israel? Playing recently against a red-headed opponent of modest golfing talent I was doing quite well, for me, until he gave me a friendly hint.

"Your arms are too close to your body, Joe," he said. "Try to keep them out further, that way you get, etc."

I did. I got my arms out further. I was in the rough on the first stroke, in a bunker the second, and out of bounds the third. My fourth shot dented a panel truck passing on Ganesha Boulevard 150 yards to my right.

Feet closer. Open stance. Slow backswing. Relax right elbow. Hands forward. Body still. Lean into shot. Fast. Slow. Don't. Do. Etaoin Shrdlu.

Some home loan rates hit 9.5%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal home loan experts say home loan interest rates have exceeded 9.5 per cent in some housing markets.

William J. Popejoy, president of the Home Loan Mortgage Corp., said at a news conference Thursday that "we've heard of 9.5 per cent plus points."

"Money for mortgages is in short supply," he said. "We've seen dramatic increases in the last two months.

Thomas R. Bomar, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said money was still available "but at a higher rate." He said he hoped mortgage lending rates would drop by the end of the year.

Skylab rescue launch date set back 15 days

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency Tuesday set back by 15 days the launch date for an unprecedented rescue flight if the Skylab 2 astronauts can't come home in their disabled Apollo ferry ship.

Launch teams at Cape Kennedy were directed to be ready by Sept. 25, which also is the scheduled splashdown day for Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma.

"Thats good, Bean said when mission control reported the new launch date. "Looks like they got a new boost of confidence.

An around-the-clock rescue effort was started last week after a second steering rocket developed a leak aboard the Apollo. A possible rescue ship launch date first was set for Sept. 10.

The Saturn 1B rocket and an Apollo command ship to carry out the rescue were loaded onto a 90-foot wide tractor early Tuesday and slowly moved to the ocean-side firing site.

The Apollo that carried Beans crew to Skylab developed a thruster rocket leak shortly after launch. The second leak was discovered a few days later but officials were confident the mishaps were not related and the crew could fly the Apollo home with the ships remaining propulsion system.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma were taking turns peering at the sun through their complex set of solar observation devices, storing the data on film to be brought back at the end of the two-month mission, or beaming it back on television.

The research pilots have already seen three major solar eruptions of radiation and gaseous material and are giving scientists more information than has been collected in years of ground research.

Overcoming cancer

Courage is the beginning of the cure

By JOHN HENRY JONES

What do Jack Pardee, Super Bowl star and defensive linebacker of the Washington Redskins, and Mrs. Ida Fleming, a young black mother of three from north Philadelphia, have in common?

Courage.

Both had the courage to face the fact that they had cancer. And both had the courage to beat it in time.

John Henry Jones is a science writer with the American Cancer Society.

Pardee, who was honored by President and Mrs. Nixon at a recent White House ceremony launching the American Cancer Society 1973's Crusade, not only overcame an often fatal form of cancer, melanoma, but has also dedicated a lot of time and effort to educate others to have regular checkups. So has Mrs. Fleming.

REDSKIN STAR Jack Pardee — a profile in courage.

Pardee traces his life-saving experience to a conversation with a doctor friend after he'd read a newspaper story about the death of Jim Umbricht, a Houston baseball pitcher. Umbritcht had died of cancer in 1964, the first sign of which was a mole on his leg.

"I noticed I had a mole like that on my right arm. My wife, Phyllis, urged me to have it looked at" Pardee recalls. "I had a checkup the next day and it was malignant. The doctors told me to have my affairs in order. They promised me nothing.'

In April, 1965, Pardee underwent an 11-hour operation, involving his right bicep and the lymph glands of his right arm and chest.

"I was lucky," Pardee says. "The cancer was caught in time. Had I waited much longer, it probably would have spread too far to be stopped."

Pardee got himself ready for July training camp in time, but somehow his 1965 season was a poor one and he decided to retire from pro football. He joined the coaching staff of Texas A & M College.

But football was still in Pardee's blood and when George Allen became coach of the Los Angeles Rams, he had little trouble in persuading Pardee to give it another try.

Last year, Pardee, under Allen, led the Washington Redskins all the way to the Super Bowl.

Mrs. Fleming found out through a Pap test during one of her regular visits to the birth control service of the Mothers' Health Center in North Philadelphia. After one visit, the clinic asked her to come in for further tests.

"I was really scared. What if the test was positive? What chance did I have if it was cancer? I asked myself this question over and over before I made up my mind to go back to the clinic," she remembers.

AFTER SURGERY — Mrs. Ida Fleming (shown with sons Anthony and Tracy) was back home two weeks after surgery, living a normal life as mother and wife.

Following more tests, Mrs. Fleming checked into University Presbyterian Hospital for a biopsy. The malignant diagnosis was confirmed and she underwent surgery.

"When I woke up I had a feeling that everything would be fine. First I had confidence in God and my doctor, and then I realized I had done the right thing in having the tests and the operation."

After about two weeks, Mrs. Fleming returned home to resume a normal life as a wife and mother.

Since then, she has encouraged her friends and neighbors to have Pap tests regularly. "I urge every woman to take a little time out periodically to have a test," says Mrs. Fleming. "Look at me. I'm living proof that it pays."

And Pardee? He, too, has been spreading the word. Honorary Chairman of this year's Cancer Society Crusade in Washington, D.C., Pardee has been active in cancer education for the last eight years.

"I try to stress not putting off that regular physical even if there aren't any warning signs. Give the doctors a chance to find it. It saved my life and it can save yours too."

Women help each other heal scars

VOLUNTEERS WHO SHARE—The trauma of breast removal has been eased for thousands of women by volunteers like Susan Shack who share their experiences and offer rehabilitation advice.

Susan Shack had been pregnant for four months with her second child when she noticed the lump in her breast.

"I could feel that the lump had begun to grow. My doctor decided I'd better have a biopsy. That's when they take out a small piece of tissue for microscopic examination. I went into the Jewish Memorial Hospital and when I woke up they had removed my left breast. The lump had been cancer," recalls Mrs. Shack, who was 24 at the time.

"My first reaction was hysteria, said Mrs. Shack, a Bronx housewife. "But I knew it had been a life and death situation. My husband's sympathy and understanding helped a lot. Besides, I still had to have my baby."

Five months later, Mrs. Shack gave birth to a five-and-a-half pound girl, Stacy. That was seven years ago.

Although tens of thousands of American women undergo breast removals every year, the subject has only recently received national publicity since Shirley Temple Black underwent the same surgery earlier this year.

Previously, women like Mrs. Shack have had to deal with the emotional and physical problems resulting from breast removal in the privacy of their own families. But two years ago the American Cancer Society sponsored a program called Reach to Recovery which provides emotional counseling and practical suggestions for exercises and grooming that help speed patients' lives back to normal.

Recently, Mrs. Shack appeared on a nationally aired TV panel show, along with Mrs. Terese Lasser, coordinator of Reach to Recovery, and several cancer specialists.

The show focused on the public debate about whether or not the more extensive breast operation, called radical mastectomy, which is favored by many doctors, is necessary since, according to some reports, similar results are possible with less extreme procedures.

Both Mrs. Lasser and Mrs. Shack vigorously defended their "radicals."

Mrs. Shack, herself, became a Reach to Recovery volunteer last year. "When I read Mrs. Lasser's book (Reach to Recovery), I knew it was what every woman who's had breast surgery would like to know and I wanted to help." Last year, Reach to Recovery volunteers visited with 27,000 patients who were recovering from breast surgery.

What do these women want to know? "Mainly they're anxious about how their children, their friends or relatives will react, or how their clothes will look on them.

Mrs. Shack recalls how quickly she worked her way back into a full active routine.

"As soon as I got home, I began doing the reaching exercises my doctor recommended, like the 'wall climbing' exercise with my left arm. If there was any limitation on my activities, I guess the natural one of getting back into everything after childbirth was the one I felt the most."

Fire damages youth center

RICHMOND (UPI) — Fire burned through much of the Richmond Memorial Youth Center causing an estimated $110,000 damage to the main administration offices, the fire department reported Monday.

The auditorium, gym and swimming pool were undamaged by the early Sunday morning blaze which started in a recreational equipment storeroom.

President will detail his Watergate role tonight

United Press Telephoto

ELECTRIFYING MOMENT

A bolt of lightning struck the Seattle First National Bank building as an electrical storm passed through. The photo, taken by photographer Grant Haller, is a two-minute time exposure taken from Seattle's Queen Anne Hill. The space needle is in foreground. The spectacular storm caused scattered power outages in widespread areas.

Vigorous defense expected in TV speech at 6 p.m.

CAMP DAVID, MD. (UPI) — President Nixon goes on television and issues a kind of "white paper" tonight, at the lowest ebb of his public popularity, to counter allegations that he was any way involved in the Watergate scandal.

While expected once again to concede that he might have been more alert sooner to the fact that the scope of the Watergate burglary was wider than he first believed, Nixon was reported planning to make a vigorous defense of his role.

The speech to the nation —his second on the subject—comes at 6 p.m. PDT on all major television and radio networks, from Nixon's desk in the White House Oval Office.

A new Gallup Poll made public today showed only 31 per cent of those polled Aug. 3-6 by the George Gallup organization approved of the way Nixon was doing his job. That was the lowest approval rating of any President since Harry S. Truman's last month in office, January, 1953, according to the Gallup group.

Another poll conducted by the Oliver Quayle organization for the National Broadcasting Co. showed that Sen. George S. McGovern, victim of a Nixon landslide last fall, might win over Nixon if an election were held now.

The Quayle survey, conducted in the last week of July, gave McGovern a lead of 51 per cent to 49 per cent over Nixon when participants were asked which they would vote for if "another election were being held right now."

Gallup said 1,435 adults in more than 300 localities were polled in its latest survey. Quayle said its poll covered 1,255 persons in 300 localities.

Asked about the current public sentiment today, McGovern said Nixon's low popularity was due to Watergate as well as other factors including failure to "get on top of our economic problems."

McGovern said, "I think the shock of a landslide win followed quickly by the revelations of Watergate ... may be what it took to awaken the American people to the peril we were in."

This will be Nixon's second broadcast speech on the Watergate and his third detailed public statement on the scandal. The first was a broadcast April 30; the second a 4,000-word written statement May 22. Both were strong denials of any knowledge on his part of the burglary of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate or of the cover-up later of high-level involvement of figures in his administration and in his campaign organization.

The President conceded that he possibly might have moved quicker to get to the bottom of the scandal, and indicated that he should not have relied so heavily on reports given him by aides.

The "white paper" to be issued in conjunction with the public speech by Nixon is expected to rebut specific allegations made against Nixon during the Senate Watergate hearings —particularly by his former counsel, John W. Dean.

Dean testified in June that he believed Nixon was aware as early as last September of efforts to cover up involvement in the scandal, and to limit it to seven persons then under indictment. A special grand jury has been frequently reported ready to indict several more persons, including former top Nixon aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Dean.

Nixon has refused to turn over to Senate and federal investigators tape recordings of conversations he had with Dean which, attorneys for the two groups say, could shed light on the veracity of testimony by Dean and some others.

Administration critics have charged that the government is in a state of drift because of uncertainties over Watergate and the threatened constitutional showdown in the Supreme Court between Nixon and Congress over his refusal to provide tapes and White House documents.

McGovern said today on the CBS-TV Morning News program that "we are confronted with a constitutional crisis now" because of administration "wrong-doing."

Longest air war ends

U.S. fliers drop last bombs on Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American warplanes bombed almost up to the minute of their cutoff time in Cambodia today, then left the country's skies for good to let the government fend for itself against rebel forces lying in wait outside Phnom Penh's jungled perimeter.

Ten minutes before the 11 a.m. (midnight Tuesday EDT) bomb halt, which signaled the end of history's longest air war, at least two American planes were still strafing rebel positions. A U.S. air controller was asked if the flights had dropped all their explosives.

"Negative, one more plane has made only one pass." Then moments later: "It looked real good." A pilot answered: "I'm on the way home."

Someone then started whistling "Turkey in the Straw" and an airborne harmonica player picked up the tune.

Then, precisely at 11 a.m., an OV10 observation plane trailing smoke like a skywriter started making victory rolls over Phnom Penh. It then streaked out of sight, marking an on-schedule end to the long U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

As the last B52s unloaded their 30-ton bomb loads and headed back to their bases on Guam, Cambodians in the threatened capital went about their normal workday, taking the end of American air support as just another grim fact of war.

"We'll fight more, I guess." The words were uttered solemnly by a 22-year-old Cambodian who lost a leg in the fighting.

Field reports said all was quiet on most roads leading out of Phnom Penh an hour after the bomb halt. But more fighting was reported 10 miles northeast of the capital at the Mekong River town of Muk Kompul, which has been under rebel siege for more than a month.

Southwest of Phnom Penh, two tiny piston-engined T28's of the Cambodian air force were seen droning toward suspected Communist positions.

UPI reporter Kenneth Englade reported from the field that government troops backed by armored vehicles and 105mm artillery were advancing through rice fields against suspected Communist positions about 10 miles west of the capital.

"The spirit of the troops was good and they were not worried about the lack of American air support," Englade said.

Inside the refugee-swollen capital, schools, shops, restaurants and government offices functioned normally. The tennis courts were filled at Cercle Sportif. The well-stocked central market was bustling with shoppers.

The eerie silence of the bombing halt contrasted sharply with Tuesday night, when a "bombers moon" —aviator's jargon for cloudless skies under bright moonlight to facilitate the strikes—aided pilots in blasting targets around the capital with thousands of tons of bombs.

It was the last time the heavy thunder-like explosions on all sides of the city would shake buildings and rattle windows in the capital.

$55 to $106

Automakers will hike prices on '74 models

DETROIT (UPI) — Price tags on 1974-model cars will average between $55 and $106 more than current models as consumers face higher costs of buying new cars.

The four major automakers have now notified the Cost of Living Council of their intention of boosting prices when they introduce the 1974 models in the middle and end of September. All say they'll make no profit on the increase.

Ford warned it will seek an even higher increase than the $106 it now wants because of expected higher labor and materials costs. GM is seeking a $102 increase while Chrysler wants $71 and American Motors $55.

"Approval of an average of only $106 per unit at this time would leave unrecovered wage and material costs of $180 per unit, excluding any cost increases associated with a new labor contract or further material increases," said John B. Naughton, Ford vice president for sales, Tuesday.

"We cannot continue to absorb economic cost increases and government-mandated product changes of this magnitude without further price increases," he said.

The four automakers say the higher prices are needed to recover the costs of adding safety-related equipment to the new cars.

These include stronger front and rear bumpers, stronger roofs and a new lap-shoulder belt system which prevents the car from being started if front-seat occupants are not buckled up.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler are now negotiating new contracts to cover more than 700,000 United Auto Workers members and their labor costs are sure to rise in September.

In addition, the nation's major steel producers plan to raise sheet and strip steel prices between $8 and $12 a ton. Both items are widely used in the automotive industry.

Under Phase IV guidelines, the automakers must notify the Cost of Living Council of their intention to raise prices. They can put them into effect in 30 days of the Cost of Living Council does not step in and order them held up.

AMC will introduce its cars to the public Sept. 5 while GM, Ford and Chrsyler cars wpll not go on sale until the middle and end of September.

Skylab records first birth in space: minnow

HOUSTON (UPI) — With the need for a possible rescue flight growing more remote, Skylab's astronauts today kept watch over an aquarium which recorded the first birth in spaceflight history—a minnow.

The space agency Tuesday reset the two weeks later than previously announced. Skylab Program Director William C. Schneider said "there is no imminent need for rescue" and the setback would allow for more thorough testing of the Saturn 1B and Apollo command ship at Cape Kennedy.

Claremont youth finds search for 'Lost Continent' wild goose chase

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — An 18-year-old high school senior who disappeared earlier this month while searching for the lost continent Atlantis is home today, safe and getting sounder every day.

Ill from having eaten contaminated food in a Moroccan cafe, and penniless after the expedition had turned sour, Karl Ballman, a lanky 6-footer from North Claremont, was picked up at Los Angeles International Airport earlier this week by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ballman.

What was supposed to be a $2,100 to $3,000 luxury package—a six-week exploration off the southern coast of Spain, complete with credit from Pepperdine College—reportedly shrank to a super-economy operation almost from the outset, and then broke up in confusion when the 50-member search party was kicked out of Spain, two weeks later.

Karl himself seems amused now by the unexpected turn of events, but word of his disappearance from Spain last week had touched off a search in three continents.

Josh Marquis, an investigator working for Craig McManigal, the Ballmans' attorney, said the entire case has been turned over to the consumer protection division of Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch for evaluation and possible charges against those who conducted the trip under the auspices of Pepperdine College.

The expedition was offered and conducted by the American Mediterranean Research Association. Its co-chairmen were Mrs. Maxine Asher, an instructor at Pepperdine, and Dr. Julian Nava, a member of the Los Angeles City Board of Education.

Nava reportedly disassociated himself from the project after the first weekend. Mrs. Asher is now in Galway, Ireland, still looking for the legendary Atlantis there, with what remains of her group of students.

The lost continent was supposed to be off the coast of Spain, and that's where the group had gone first. But when Spanish authorities ejected them for failure to obtain the necessary papers, the search was transferred to Ireland, and the group split up.

Karl Ballman and two of his friends decided to go to Morocco to find a tribe of Berbers—natives of Morocco—and talk to them.

They traveled the length of the Moroccan coast line, pooling what spending money they had—a total of $18—and finally located an interpreter who helped them talk to the native tribesmen.

KARL BALLMAN

The trio stopped at a Moroccan restaurant for some native shish kebab, but according to Karl, the meat must have been contaminated because that night he became very ill.

After three days of sickness, Karl and his friends took a ferry across the Mediterranean back to Spain and, using their roundtrip tickets, caught a plane back to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ballman said Karl, normally 145 pounds, lost 16 pounds during the past five weeks, but is now getting his

Charges bared of Air Force base burying overstocked supplies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Post today reported charges that thousands of dollars worth of usable military supplies were buried in a refuse dump at the Air Force base at Charleston, S. C., so the base wouldn't be accused of overstocking.

The newspaper said the charges were made by civilian and military personnel at the base during interviews. It quoted one civilian employe, Jack Howerton, as saying he hid behind some trees and watched the following supplies being dumped:

Twenty-seven rolls of stainless steel cable for aircraft controls, new and used engine parts, pumps, printed electrical circuits, scores of cans of paint, desks, chairs and file cabinets, new shower stalls, transistors and new GI cans. Howerton is president of the American Federation of Government Employes local at the base.

The Post quoted another civilian employe, Wayne Page, as saying he dumped at least 10 truckloads of supplies into a pond.

The newspaper said the dumping was alleged to have taken place over a period of a month, after the 374th Military Airlift Wing at the base was notified it was going to be the subject of a "commander's facilities inspection" by a team of 7 generals and 38 colonels, the first such inspection at the base.

It said Brig. Gen. Robert L. Moeller, wing commander, emphatically denied the allegations of deliberate waste, but said the charges were being investigated and that some materials, including bags of fertilizer and road scraper blades, had been found in the dump.

Rustlers hit again

FREMONT (UPI) — Frank Ornellas Jr., of San Jose told police Tuesday cattle rustlers took eight head from his herd. He valued them at $450 each.

Paper says Johnson called on agents for convention spying

The FBI: a political tool of presidents?

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Lyndon Johnson dispatched a team of FBI agents to the 1964 Democratic National Convention to conduct a political spying operation on members of his own party, the Chicago Tribune reported today.

Johnson acted out of fear that he might be robbed of the presidential nomination, the Tribune reported.

"Later that year," the Tribune reported, "... Johnson dictated in advance to the FBI what it should include in its report on activities of key White House aide Walter Jenkins," who had been arrested on a morals charge.

The Tribune continued: "These are but two incidents of what former FBI officials describe as the 30-year evolution of the agency as a political tool of presidents, which climaxed with Nixon Administration efforts to curtail the FBI's Watergate investigation."

Some of the more "explosive aspects" of the FBI's political history were detailed recently in a memorandum turned over to the Senate Watergate committee by fired White House counsel John W. Dean, the newspaper said. The Tribune said the author of the memorandum, former assistant FBI director William C. Sullivan, has refused to discuss its contents.

The Tribune's story from Washington, signed by Jim Squires, said there have been many "abuses" of the long proud and trusted agency over the last three decades, from the Nixon administration back to that of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Some of the abuses include:

"An FBI alliance with Sen. Joseph McCarthy under the Eisenhower Administration which 'kept McCarthy going' with information gathered on individuals and fed secretly to McCarthy as ammunition in his now-discredited pursuit of men he alleged were Communist.

"Orders by Presidents Roosevelt, Johnson and Nixon to gather information on groups and individuals who were clearly their political enemies.

"The funneling to several presidents by the late J. Edgar Hoover of "dirty and smutty" personal information about public figures gathered by the FBI and specific orders to field agents to gather such information.

"Request for FBI information by President Johnson on his 1964 opponent Barry Goldwater and the ordering of a 'limited' investigation of Vice President-Elect Spiro Agnew in 1968."

Big steel asks for price hikes

United Press International

Steel manufacturers have asked the government to allow price increases they announced last spring.

The nation's two biggest steel companies, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, said Tuesday they had notified the Internal Revenue Service they plan to raise prices $8 to $12 a ton for sheet and strip steel prices. Under Phase IV rules, major companies must give 30 days notice before raising prices.

Other steel companies, Armco Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Jones Laughlin, Wheeling-Pittsburgh and National Steel, also filed for increases.

The companies had announced increases in May. Major steel buyers, including automakers, said then they would mean higher prices for consumers.

The increases amount to about 4.8 per cent on strip and sheet steel products.

Two more auto companies asked for increases Tuesday on the 1974 models. General Motors asked for an increase of $102, or 2.7 per cent. Ford Motor Co. requested an increase averaging $106, or 2.4 per cent.

GM and Ford both said government safety and emission requirements were a factor in the increases.

Chrysler Corp. and American Motors asked for price increases a day earlier.

A spokesman for the Cost of Living Council said more big companies were expected to file for Phase IV increases this week.

Charles Emeley, spokesman for the Cost of Living Council, said 20 to 25 companies had filed for price increases already. Only companies with sales of $100 million or more a year must notify the government. Other companies can automatically raise prices, but by no more than the increase in their costs.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz repeated his desire for the freeze on beef prices to end immediately, instead of Sept. 12 as the administration has decided.

"It's no secret that I've opposed these price ceilings from the start," Butz said in Madison, Wis. "If I had my druthers, I'd take this beef price ceiling off right now."

In a speech at the University of Wisconsin, Butz called price ceilings a "disincentive to produce."

Mark Kravitz, president of a group of steak restaurants in Connecticut, also called for an end to the beef freeze. He complained that wholesalers were leaving more fat and bone on the steaks.

"We're not getting the trim we normally get," he said.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, released figures showing food prices accounted for 60 per cent of all rises in the consumer price index for the first six months of 1973.

Food prices rose 21.5 per cent, while the consumer price index rose 8 per cent, he said.

U.S. hits Israel action, but will veto sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In a rare criticism of Israel, the United States went before the U.N. Security Council Tuesday to "deplore" last week's Israeli seizure of an Arab jetliner over Beirut.

Despite U.S. Ambassador's John Scali's strong language, however, the United States has indicated it will endorse no Security Council resolution that would impose sanctions on Israel.

The sixth U.S. veto in U.N. history loomed today over just such a measure—an Egyptian resolution calling for an aid cut-off to Israel. Diplomatic sources said the Egyptian-inspired sanctions clause was like "a red flag" to Scali, who could be expected to veto the measure if it is pressed to a vote.

"The United States deplores this violation of Lebanese sovereignty," Scali said. "We deplore this violation of the U.N. charter and of the rule of law in international civil aviation.

Final bombing mission

It was all in a day's work

By BERT OKULEY

U TAPAO AIRFIELD, Thailand (UPI) — The final Cambodian bombing mission from this base today, code-named Lavender, was all in a day's work for the American pilots who ended more than six years of bombing over Indochina.

"It feels good," Maj. Michael J. Cannorozzi, 44, said as he stepped down from his B52 bomber. "It always feels good to get down from any of them."

Reps. Bella Abzug and Joeph B. Adabbo, both New York Democrats, were on the runway to greet the pilots. Mrs. Abzug's yellow print dress and floppy hat, which is her trademark, were a startling contrast to the flight suits of the returning pilots.

"We came here to thank you for everything you've done," Adabbo said. "I'm glad to see you all back."

At Korat Air Base, Thailand, correspondent Robert Kaylor reported a similar anticlimactic atmosphere.

"I'm just doing my job. If they say it's over, it's over. I'm not doing anything special tonight, probably going to the movies. Normal...normal," said Maj. John Hoskins, 37, of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Hoskins dropped the last bombs from his A7 Corsair fighter-bomber at 10:44 a.m. (11:44 p.m. EDT Tuesday), one minute before the 10:45 deadline set by U.S. commanders. The Congressionally mandated halt to the bombing officially came at 11 a.m. (midnight EDT Tuesday).

It was the last bombing mission for Hoskins, a veteran of five combat tours in Southeast Asia since 1965 during which he has flown about 250 missions.

The pilot of the final B52 to return to U Tapao was Capt. Hard W. McCullum, 26, of Ralph, Ala. Like most B52 pilots, McCullum never saw his last target. A forward air controller marked it with a smoke bomb, and McCullum released about 16 tons of bombs —half the normal load of a B52 —which fell beneath the clouds and out of McCullum's sight.

B52s often fly at such great altitudes—30,000 feet or more— that the pilots are unable to see what they are bombing.

Other American soldiers stationed at Korat and U Tapao seemed hardly to notice the end to the longest air war in history. There were no special celebrations planned; only a group telephone calls booked to California by some pilots who planned to talk to their wives.

Brig. Gen. Billy J. Ellis of DeQuincy, La., commander of the B52 squadrons at U Tapao, said the final bombing run was flown by B52s stationed at Anderson AFB, Guam.

Ellis said there were no immediate plans to remove any of the 50 strategic bombers based at U Tapao. He said the B52 crews would continue training programs with the crews here of KC135 jet tankers which have been refueling American planes over Cambodia during the intensive160-day bombing campaign over Cambodia.

As the last plane back from Cambodia landed at U Tapao, thick clouds rolled in from the Gulf of Thailand and enveloped the airfield.

Girl hurt in Kennedy auto crash may never walk again

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — Doctors were not sure today whether a teenage Cape Cod girl who suffered a spinal injury in a car crash involving two sons of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy would ever walk again.

Pamela Kelley, 18, of Centerville, Mass., a Hyannis suburb, is reported in serious but "stabilized" condition at Cape Cod Hospital where she underwent surgery Monday for a spinal fracture.

David Kennedy, also 18, is being treated for a possible back sprain. Another young woman, Mary Schlaff, ?, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., is hospitalized for a pelvic fracture and a fractured femur suffered in the accident.

Police say Joseph P. Kennedy III, 21, was driving an open Toyota vehicle carrying his brother and five girls when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve and flipped over on Nantucket Island Monday afternoon. He has been cited for "driving negligently," a misdemeanor similar to reckless driving, and faces a court hearing on Monday.

Police declined to say whether speed was a principal factor in the auto accident. Conviction on the charge carries a maximum jail term of two years and a $200 fine.

Pamela Kelley was the most seriously injured in the accident. Her sister, Kimberly, a longtime friend of the Kennedy children, escaped with minor bruises.

Other occupants of the car, all of whom escaped serious injury, were identified as Patricia Powers, 22, of Spring Lake, N.J., and Frances De Onis, 18, also of Centerville. Miss Powers wore a neck brace Tuesday as she visited those injured at the hospital.

Torbin Yates, public relations director for the hospital, said three orthopedic surgeons, headed by Dr. Peter Carney of Hyannis, assisted in the three-hour operation on Pamela.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, uncle of the Kennedy boys, requested that two specialists from the Lahey Clinic join Carney in treating Miss Kelley.

Police said all occupants of the open car, except Joseph Kennedy, were thrown out of the vehicle before it landed upside down in brush off a winding road through the center of the island

2 mass murder suspects indicted

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Harris County grand jury Tuesday indicted Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, for murder. The grand jury said the teen-agers took part in a three year sex and sadism spree that led to the nation's worst mass murder of the 20th Century.

Billy Ridinger, who filed to and from the grand jury room with a paper sack over his head, was the principal witness before the jury. Ridinger testified he barely escaped with his life from the torture chamber of Dean Allen Corll, 33.

Henley was indicted on three counts of murder, Brooks one. Each count carried a $100,000 bond attached to it.

Karl said that though he was quite ill and quite broke in Morocco, it never entered his mind that he might not eventually get home.

"Somehow, I felt my parents would be there," he said hesitatingly. "I never really worried."

But Mrs. Ballman said that though the exploration had turned sour, the experiences had "realy made a man" out of her son.

He is now better, expects to take on a part time job next week, and looks forward to his last year at the Claremont Collegiate School.

As for Pepperdine College, it is now disclaiming any association with the aborted program. It claims the expedition was never accredited by the college.

But brochures issued in conjunction by the college and statements made by the group sponsors in behalf of the college seem to indicate otherwise, according to Marquis.

"We are making no specific charges," he declared. "We are merely turning what information we have over to the district attorney's office for whatever they want to do about this matter."

State's obscenity laws held valid in clamp-down decision

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on obscenity made it "possible to clamp the lid down on ...the sewage of hard core pornography," a judge said Tuesday in a ruling against two men on trial for showing the erotic film success "Deep Throat."

Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall ruled that state obscenity laws are specific enough to be constitutional. He turned down a request by Vincent Miranda and Steven M. Hagen to halt their trial in Beverly Hills Municipal Court on charges of exhibiting obscene material.

Miranda is the owner of the Pussycat Theater and Hagen is its manager.

Jury selection had just been completed in their trial when Marshall halted it July 19 while he studied their request to prohibit the prosecution, on grounds the state obscenity laws are unconstitutionally vague, in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's most recent ruling.

Marshall ruled however that California obscenity laws are constitutional.

Nation's economy a disgrace--Maddox

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox says the nation's runaway inflation and food shortages are a disgrace equal to Watergate.

"When the most productive nation in the world reaches the point where its economy is so out of control that traditional abundance becomes scandalous scarcity, then I think it's a disgrace equal to Watergate," he told the International Convention of the Food Service Executives Association Tuesday.

"The Communists got our grain, the administration got credit for the deal, the speculators got the profit—and the rest of us got the bill," he said.

Disabled Veteran of Year to be honored

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Michael Johnson, 25, will be honored Thursday night as the Disabled Veteran of the Year. He lost both legs in Vietnam but still manages to hunt deer, swim and play wheelchair basketball.

Johnson stepped on a landmine in South Vietnam in 1968. He was in and out of military hospitals for more than a year.

"I've had a hard time, but if I had my legs and the war were on, I'd do it all over again, because I believed in what I was doing," Johnson said.

Can't beat Bunker in recognition poll

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UPI) — A survey at the University of Northern Iowa indicates more students recognize Carroll O'Conner, who portrays Archie Bunker in the popular "All in the Family" television series, than Iowa's senior senator.

But Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, said Tuesday if he had as much television exposure as Bunker, he probably would be as familiar to the public.

The poll, taken by 210 students witnessing slides of famous persons, showed O'Conner the landslide winner with 89.5 per cent recognizing him. Hughes, a three-term Iowa governor was recognized by 70.5 per cent.

Cleveland Browns' receiver arrested

SOUTH EUCLID, Ohio (UPI) — Gloster Richardson, the Cleveland Browns' veteran wide receiver, was arrested on a variety of traffic violations and for possession of marijuana, police announced Tuesday.

Richardson, 31, of Chicago, Ill., was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and the drug charge. He was freed on personal bond and is to appear for a preliminary hearing Aug. 21 in municipal court here.

Police Capt. Harold Kopf said Richardson's car struck another car at an intersection Sunday. No one was injured, but Kopf said Richardson sped away from the accident and was arrested shortly afterward.

Nude man attacks officers at station

WHITMAN, Mass. (UPI) — James Partridge, 19, burst into a police station Tuesday and began beating on two officers and a civilian dispatcher. What's more, police said, the 6-foot, 200-pound man was "stark naked."

Partridge was charged with lewd and lascivious exposure, three counts of assault and battery and one count of creating a disturbance. Police say he has offered no explanation for the incident.

Agency moves to curb abuses of tranquilizers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Drug Enforcement Administration moved today to place federal controls over the nation's two largest selling prescription tranquilizers, Librium and Valium, to prevent the drugs from reaching the illicit market.

John R. Bartels Jr., acting administrator of the drug agency, said the move to put the antianxiety drugs under guidelines of the Control Substances Act climaxes a seven-year fight by federal drug enforcement agencies to prevent abuse and diversion of Librium and Valium to the illicit market.

It is estimated that during the first six months of this year wholesale sales of the two drugs to pharmacies totalled $132 million. During that period, 39.6 million prescriptions of both drugs were issued.

In a letter to Dr. Charles C. Edwards, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health Education and Welfare, Bartels asked that HEW make a scientific and medical evaluation of the abuse potential of the tranquilizers based on evidence gathered by his agency.

Bartels also asked that the drugs be placed under the act. If this action is taken, DEA will require records and reports of distribution and sales of the drugs. The schedule also requires tighter security of the drugs to guard against theft or diversion.

Librium and Valium are manufactured solely by Hoffman-La Roche Inc. Bartell said the firm has agreed not to contest the placing of the drugs under the acts.

Under the criminal provisions of the act, illegal manufacture, distribution or dispensing of Librium or Valium would be punishable by up to three years in prison, a fine of $10,000 or both for first offense and double for a second offense. Illegal possession of the drug could result in a year in prison, a fine of not more than $5,000 or both on a first offense.

3 wounded in shootings

CUCAMONGA — West End sheriff's deputies this morning investigated two shooting incidents occurring Tuesday in the old Northtown area here that wounded three persons.

The first incident was reported about 12:45 a.m. Tuesday by a resident who said a number of youths were engaged in a fight and gun battle at 24th and Center streets.

When deputies arrived, the youths allegedly engaged in the fighting had left the area, but another resident told deputies her car window was shot out. At 1:23 a.m. doctors at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland reported they were treating a youth with a gunshot wound of the lower right leg.

The youth, Gabriel Olagues, 17, of Cucamonga told deputies that he was at 24th and Center with a group of friends earlier, when a car containing a number of other youths drove by. Those in the car opened fire on Olagues and his friends, then the car sped away.

The Olagues youth was released after emergency treatment at the hospital.

At 6:24 p.m. Tuesday sheriff's units were again dispatched to the Northtown area in the 8800 block of Center Street on report of another fight and shots being fired. On their arrival they found that another 17-year-old youth and Frank H. Padilla, of 8734 19th St., Alta Loma, had been slightly wounded by small caliber bullets.

Phillip Lujan Sr., 50, and his son Phillip Jr., 24, both of 10386 24th St., Cucamonga, were also injured in a fight.

Deputies said no arrests in either incident have been made, but the cases are under investigation. Deputies believe that both shootings are the result of a long-standing feud between two Cucamonga families.

Padilla and the youth were treated for minor gunshot wounds at the Upland Hospital and released.

Inquest scheduled in youth's death

UPLAND — An inquest "to bring all the facts out before the public" in the July 25 police shooting death of a 17-year-old Fontana youth following a high-speed chase through West End will be held Monday in the San Bernardino County courthouse.

San Bernardino County Coroner Bill Hill said the inquest has been called to piece together the facts surrounding the death of David John Escalera of 17677 Seville Court, Fontana.

Escalera died July 25 of a single gunshot wound of the arm and chest after he led West End sheriff's deputies, Upland police and Ontario police on a high speed chase through Upland, Ontario and Cucamonga.

Hill said the inquest was called because "it involved several different police agencies and we need to bring the facts out before the public. . . .and to make a determination of the facts surrounding the death."

The youth, according to police reports and a coroner's autopsy, was shot once through the right arm and chest by a bullet fired by Upland Police Officer Lewis Morales.

Upland police in the evening of July 25 were called to the 1000 block of Highland Drive on a complaint about a reckless driver. On the arrival of police officers a car drove away from the area at a high rate of speed.

The car was pursued by the Upland police officers and units from the West End Sheriff's Department and Ontario police called to assit.

The pursuit ended at Hawkins Park at Eighth Street and Campus Avenue when a police car rammed the vehicle driven by Escalera, forcing it over a curb and onto the grass. A passenger in Escalera's car jumped out and was arrested by police. Escalera, said police, then made a U-turn on the grass and drove towards a number of police officers who had left their vehicles.

Police said that Escalera tried to run down several officers at the secene with his car.

The officers, after running for safety, opened fire at the vehicle attempting to disable it. In the 10 shots fired by Morales, a West End Sheriff's deputy and an Ontario police officer, one hit the youth. The youth's car traveled another 250 feet and crashed into a block wall in front of a residence.

The youth was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The coroner's jury, after hearing testimony Monday, could rule that the death was an accident or that it came by a means other than by accident.

A coroner's inquest does not result in a determination of civil or criminal liability, or the guilt or innocence of anyone involved.

Cruise liner runs aground

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, Virgin Islands (UPI) — The British cruise liner Canberra ran aground in the harbor on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands Tuesday night and the ship's 1,800 passengers were removed to the town of Charlotte Amalie.

It was the second time in recent weeks that the 44,000-ton liner had run aground in the Caribbean. It ran aground off the island of Grenada slightly more than a month ago.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the Canberra ran aground when high waves generated by 45-mile-an-hour winds caught the vessel as it changed position in Gregory Channel about 8 p.m.

Prosecution rests in murder trial

ONTARIO — The prosecution rested its case Tuesday afternoon in the murder trial for three prison inmates accused of murdering another inmate at the California Institution for Men Dec. 17, 1973.

The trial for inmates Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28; Raymond L. Contreras, 35; and Juan Figueroua, Colon, 29: accused of stabbing inmate Rudolph Cadena to death and wounding another inmate, entered its 23rd day today in West Valley Superior Court.

Inmate Gilbert Sandoval, wounded in the Dec. 17 incident at CIM's Southern-Reception Guidance Center, was the first witness called to the stand for the defense. Sandoval under questioning from Attorney Joe Johnston, defending Mendoza, said he could not recall anything that happened on the day of stabbing. He said that he only remembered waking up and finding that he had stab wounds and a gash in his head.

Sandoval said he considered Cadena his best friend in the prison prior to the incident and they often talked about sports. He said that he never talked to any of the defendants in the case, although he knew who they were.

Testimony in the trial was slightly delayed Tuesday after the three defendants in the case allegedly attacked two sheriff's deputies at the San Bernardino County main jail early in the morning, sending both to the hospital. The defendants were questioned by sheriff's detectives at the main jail for several hours and then taken to the West End courthouse.

Sheriff's department spokesmen said they expect to bring criminal charges against the defendants in the main jail incident.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer rested the prosecution's case after calling CIM Correctional Officers Victor Connell and Robert Breckenridge to the stand. Connell identified a piece of sandpaper found in Mendoza's cell on Dec. 18 and Breckenridge identified a broken chair with a metal brace missing, found in the Southern Reception-Guidance Center's Palm Hall library after the stabbing incident.

Attorney Phillip Plotkin, defending Colon, started the defense portion of the trial by telling the six-man, six-woman jury that the defense will try to prove that his client, and Mendoza were attacked by Cadena and inmate Gilbert Sandoval on Dec. 17. He said their resulting actions were done in "pure self-defense." He said that Contreras, the third defendant in the trial, "like a man possessed" ran over and attacked the fallen Cadena.

Chino Hills should stay open area, say planners

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — The Chino Hills should remain an open area despite a heavy influx of residents to Southern California.

County planners stressed this Tuesday night in reviewing a study being made of the Chino Hills with members of the Chino City Council and city Planning Commission.

The study began last year and has involved a number of meetings with property owners and residents within the study area, said Kenneth Topping, county planning director.

The study area encompasses about 40 square miles and is generally bounded by the Los Agneles, Orange and Riverside county lines, Santa Ana River, and the Corona Expressway.

Communities include Los Serranos, Glenmeade, and Sleepy Hollow, plus the Los Serranos and Western Hills golf courses.

"The majority of respondents to the meetings favor keeping an open character in the Chino Hills, and they also favor the concept of a bedroom area rather than an industrial area," said Topping.

To keep the low density character, officials propose to remove from an existing county plan a proposed freeway corridor, downgrade other roads to scenic routes and delete several secondary highways.

"This will serve the purpose of amking the land use plan feasible," said Topping.

Being realistic, officials must also plan for the future, he added. "This is a major expansion area." Topping estimated a population of between 40,000 and 60,000 in the next 20 to 30 years.

James Tso, a planning staff member, presented a series of slides showing results of the study. These include:

—There are a number of faults in the area, with most being inactive; about 80 per cent of the area is within a high fire hazard area; industries include oil wells, and the Aerojet General Co. testing facility; most residential development is along the Corona Expressay and Carbon Canyon Road; and property values range up to $4,400 an acre.

Two major considerations for the area's development are sewer and water facilities, he added. "We feel the area being served by these public facilities should be developed first. We want to maximize the public facilities."

Tso presented a preliminary land use proposal which indicated a low density use in the south portion. "The area has no major streets. We propose one unit for each 5 to 10 acres.

The map indicated a higher density use in the northern section, with one and two units allowed per acre. This area is more accessible to water and sewer services, he explained.

The county proposes three main commercial areas, which are near major raods and highways. "We don't intend to allow too much commercial use," said Tso.

The county plan did not indicate the proposed Chino Hills Airport. But Tso did provide an overlay indicating the location of the facility and its flight pattern would dissect the southern portion.

Should the airport become a reality, the access to the site would stimulate development, added topping. "You would also need an extension of waster and sewer services to serve the facility. That would also tend to stimulate residential development."

Regarding reported earth faults near the proposed airport site, Toppins said the county had contracted with the state to get a more "definitive" location of al faults in the San Bernardino Valley.

"We hope to get a clearer picture from this study.

Topping said the planning staff plans to hold another community meeting next month, followed by planning commission hearings in October.

Frostbitten toe in heat wave?

LONDON (UPI) — Doctors were astounded.

There, among patients suffering blistered skin and sunburn in a Tuesday heatwave in Britain, was a frostbitten toe.

"The doctor I saw could hardly believe it," said Alan Hirst, owner of the toe.

He said he was marooned for fourteen hours while climbing Mont Blanc in France but didnt seek medical attention until he returned to London.

A hospital spokesman said, "It's the last thing you'd expect. But I'm sure Alan doesn't think it's funny. Frostbide can be painful.

Lots of smoke, little fire at boys' home

LA VERNE — A small fire and lots of smoke sent seven county fire units and a fire truck from the City of La Verne to Le Roys Boys' Home, 233 W. Base Line Road, Tuesday night.

The fire apparently started between the second and third stories of an old building on the boys home grounds which is scheduled to be torn down later this month. No one was injured and no damage was reported.

Stan Keetle, director of the home, said a workman had been using a cutting torch to try to remove a balcony railing on the second floor of the building shortly before the fire started.

The workman was unsuccessful in his attempts and he finally left, firemen said.

Firemen said the old structure was filled with smoke and it was necessary to wear masks to enter the building. The home is located in an unincorporated area of La Verne.

Wrong bombing in Cambodia being probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon reports it is making a formal investigation of the misdirected American bombing strike that killed or wounded more than 400 persons at Neak Luong, Cambodia, 10 days ago.

The strike was made Aug. 3 by a single Air Force B52, which sewed its load of bombs through the center of the little Mekong River town, killing and injuring both Cambodian soldiers and members of their families.

Lt. Gen. Daniel James said Tuesday both human error and mechanical malfunctions were being investigated as possible causes of the Neak Luong incident. The bomb load landed seven to 10 miles off target.

James said the probe is being conducted at Guam, where the plane's crew is based. He said some crew members had requested legal counsel.

No. 10 Downing Street covered up by paint

LONDON (UPI) — Puzzled tourists wandered up and down Downing Street Tuesday looking in vain for number 10, the home of the British prime minister.

Officials explained. The door, which has nothing else to distinguish it from other houses on the street, is being painted, and the number has been removed temporarily.

"We are sorry if it has caused any confusion," a government spokesman said.

Toyota to hike price 5 per cent

TOKYO (UPI) — Toyota Motor Sales Co. said today that the price of Toyota cars exported to the United States will be increased by "about 5 per cent" next summer.

A company spokesman declined to say when the increase would be put into effect.

Toyota raised the prices of cars exported to America by 10 per cent in April, following the devaluation of the American dollar.

Nixon favored 3-1 to survive Watergate crisis

LONDON (UPI)— President Nixon has been given 3-to-1 odds of surviving the Watergate scandal and staying in office by the British bookmaking firm of Ladbrokes and Co., Ltd.

Ladbrokes also offered odds today of 2 to 1 against Nixon's removal from office or resignation before his term ends.

This means persons betting that Nixon will remain in office have to put up $3 to win $1, and persons betting the President will either resign or be removed from office could win $2 for every $1 they wager with Ladbrokes.

"We think that impeachment of an American president would cause such an upheaval that it is very improbable," a Ladbrokes spokesman said Tuesday.

Bid by Reagan to eliminate 'exclusionary rule' rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's controversial proposal to change the rules of courtroom evidence by eliminating the so-called "exclusionary rule" has been rejected by the Senate Finance Committee.

In place of the "exclusionary rule", the bill would establish a procedure allowing persons to sue for damages or suffering as a result of an illegal police search or seizure but still allow the evidence obtained to be used in court.

The measure failed Tuesday on a party line 6-5 vote, with Democrats casting the dissents and Republicans voting "aye." It needed at least seven favorable votes for passage.

Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, author of the bill, asked for and received permission to seek to have the measure's defeat reconsidered.

Even as the committee was considering the bill, Reagan told a news conference he was "a little shocked at the carelessness" with which his proposal had been "interpreted."

He said abolition of the "exclusionary rule" actually had been suggested by Chief Justice of the United States Warren Berger.

"No one is advocating suddenly turning law enforcement loose with no need for a warrant to go ahead with illegal search and seizure," the governor said.

The exclusionary rule has resulted from several court decisions over the years which prohibit evidence from being submitted in court if it was obtained illegally.

Reagan's alternative would allow nearly all types of illegally obtained evidence to be used in court but at the same time government would become liable for damages resulting from the search.

Exempted would be evidence gained by illegal wiretaps or other electronic spying which would remain inadmissible.

Lagomarsino told the committee the rule is "only benefiting the criminal." The measure was opposed by representatives of the California Trial Lawyers Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The bill was included in Reagan's "controlling crime in California" program drafted by his "select" committee on law enforcement problems.

Bill lowering worker share paid into retirement killed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A multimillion-dollar bill reducing the amount government workers pay for retirement benefits has been defeated by the Senate Finance Committee.

Rejected on a 3-8 vote Tuesday, the bill would have cut the amount state and some local workers put into the Public Employes Retirement system from 7 per cent of their wages to 5 per cent at an estimated yearly cost of $19.3 million.

Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, author of the bill (SB1013), contended it was needed in case state workers do not get all of an 11.9 per cent average pay increase voted by the legislature. The raise has been challenged by the federal government as violating anti-inflationary wage guidelines.

The lawmaker said the measure would help state and some local workers in the retirement system "with the cost of living." He said the bill "would stand on its own" even if the full pay hike was approved.

$18 million

State seeks foster care reimbursement

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has filed to claim $18 million in available federal reimbursements for foster care programs, the chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee says.

In a committee report on foster care in California, chairman Vincent Thomas, DSan Pedro, Tuesday said the unclaimed reimbursement funds occurred because of "inadequate, and in some cases inaccurate, information supplied to the county welfare agencies by the state Social Welfare Department for approximately 2,600 federally eligible children."

To correct the problem, Thomas recommended the department provide county welfare agencies with the needed information and properly identify children qualified for federal reimbursement.

He said the state's failure to claim the $18 million occurred since the inception of the child care program on Jan. 2, 1967, through last June 30.

Thomas also said the reorganization of the state Health and Welfare Department on July 1 to correct department administrative problems and expedite claims for federal funding has been "unsuccessful."

"The reorganization resulted only in minor changes in the relationships among the various agencies for foster care," the assemblyman said.

Thomas said supervision and administration of the state's foster care programs which annually cost $125 million remains "fragmented and causes tremendous fluctuation in payment rates from county to county." He said the programs provide "unequal" services.

Governor wants quiet place for a residence

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, arguing that the governor's mansion should be a quiet residence and not a downtown tourist attraction, said Tuesday two presidents' wives told him they went "stir crazy" after one week in the White House.

Reagan told a news conference that those who advocate building a new governor's mansion in downtown Sacramento "are thinking about a tourist attraction, something they can drive by and point to with pride. They're not thinking about the governors who are going to live here in the future and are going to have children."

Asked if that meant he would not want to live in the White House, which is located in downtown Washington, the potential 1976 presidential contender responded:

"Well, eh, let me answer your question indirectly. I have heard wives of two presidents talk about the problems and how you go stir crazy before the week is out, because you can't even go downstairs and you can't even walk on the grounds.

"You're upstairs, like living above the store, while thousands of tourists all day long, to say nothing of hundreds of employes, are carrying on the business of government downstairs. The White House at one time was intended to be a residence. And it has become an office building. And this is why Camp David came into being."

Reagan wants to build a new governor's mansion on a scenic bluff overlooking the American River east of Sacramento. Asked whether he thought the President should live on a bluff overlooking the Potomac, the governor answered:

"Well, George Washington did."

Panel approves safety measure on hitchhiking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill designed to make hitchhiking safer in California was endorsed recently by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and sent to the full Assembly.

The measure (AB1457) by Assemblyman John Burlap, DNapa, provides for the issuance of state identification cards for hitchhikers with no criminal records. It won committee approval on a 11-0 vote.

Under the bill, the cards would be sold to hitchhikers for a nominal fee. An applicant would be checked by the Department of Motor Vehicles for evidence of any criminal record, which would disqualify him.

1974 governor's race

Governor to back GOP contender

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today he could support any of the five major Republican contenders for governor in 1974.

Reagan also gave Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who has been beset by political problems, another vote of confidence for the job he has done as his understudy.

Asked at a news conference whether he thought Reinecke had fully lived up to his expectations as lieutenant governor and whether he could support him in a gubernatorial race, Reagan replied: "I certainly do."

Reagan then also was asked whether there were any major GOP gubernatorial contenders he could not support. The reporter mentioned the names of former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, Controller Houston I. Flournoy, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, the target of a "draft" movement by some of Reagan's "kitchem cabinet" campaign contributors.

"No," Reagan replied. We've got an abundance of riches on our side. It may turn out to be a problem

Reagan reiterated he was staying neutral in the race, and had so informed the wealthy contributors who were trying to draft Weinberger.

The two-term governor disclosed he met with one group of GOP financiers at a San Francisco airport hotel Aug. 6. Reagan said he called the meeting to discuss financing of this tax limitation initiative campaign, but some in attendance also informed him they were promoting Weinberger for governor.

Those attending the meeting, sources said, included Los Angeles auto dealer Holmes Tuttle, Los Angeles drugstore executive Justin Dart, former Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard of Los Altos Hills and San Francisco industrialist Jacquelin Hume.

Reagan also discussed these topics at his news conference:

Death —He said he would be "inclined" to sign a bill restoring the death penalty for only a few crimes, then seek capital punishment for other crimes later.

Indian —The governor said Timm Williams, his Indian affairs adviser, was fired because he thought "we could get a better rate of achievement" from another Indian.

Future —Reagan reiterated he will not seek a third gubernatorial term next year.

State reward for slaying of officer

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan today posted a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assailants who fatally beat and shot a Los Angeles police officer.

The governor said he believed the state reward offered in the death of officer Fred Early, the father of four children, was unprecedented in magnitude for such a crime.

Early was shot in the leg and beaten while trying to arrest one or more burglar suspects. The assailants vanished and the officer died six months later as a result of head and spinal cord injuries.

"The murder of officer Fred Early must not go unpunished," Reagan said.

The Los Angeles Police Protective League earlier posted a $10,000 reward. Two Los Angeles police department officials appearing with Reagan at a news conference said the Early slaying was the only unsolved killing in the city.

AEC study 'buried'

45,000 would die, 100,000 injuries in nuclear mishap

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg made pubic Monday an Atomic Energy Commission report which indicated a nuclear power plant accident could claim a maximum of 45,000 lives and cause 100,000 injuries.

Denenberg said the 1965 study was buried in "thousands and thousands of pages of documents" at AEC's headquarters and was discovered by Insurance Department investigators.

In remarks prepared for delivery Tuesday, he said the report's obscurity illustrated that the AEC was part of an "atomic estabishment" which uses secrecy and confusion to stifle protest and subvert the pubic's right to know.

Denenberg said the "atomic estabishment" maintains a stranglehold on nuclear energy policy decisions by saying the issues are too technical for public consumption.

Denenberg's remarks were to open three days of hearings sponsored by the state Insurance Department into the insurance risk posed by nuclear power plants.

Ralph Nader along with some of the nation's eading experts on nuclear energy are scheduled to testify.

"The AEC has become a part of the 'atomic establishment,' an unofficial alliance including utility companies, nuclear equipment manufacturers and private insurance companies," Denenberg said.

"Together they make big brotherly decisions as to how much the public should know about nuclear safety and how much financial recovery should be available to the public in case such safety proves an illusion rather than a reality."

"When members of the public have attempted to dig past the rose-colored rhetoric to get at the scientific studies and data... they have run squarely into brick walls labeled 'secret information,' Denenberg said.

"When, for just this reason, they have elected to oppose the construction and licensing of nuclear reactors in their communities, they have been told that AEC hearings are not proper forums for discussing fundamental doubts about the safety of nuclear power, but only to determine that the proposed plant's nuts and bolts confirm substantially with the AEC's specifications."

"It's a Catch 22 system that works well in keeping the public out," he said.

Devaluation boosted U.S. farm exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Devaluation of the U.S. dollar played a significant role in booming American farm product exports 60 per cent to a phenomenal new record of $12.9 billion in the 1972-73 fiscal year which ended June 30, according to an Agriculture Department report.

The report listed devaluation as one of three major factors in the export surge, along with expanding world food demand from more prosperous consumers and poor 1972 crops in many parts of the world.

Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said in an interview the devaluation was part of a "new monetary situation" which had contributed to skyrocketing demand and prices for many U.S. crops.

The devaluation itself strengthened foreign demand for American foods because it made them cheaper in terms of marks, yen and other currencies, Paarlberg explained. But in addition, he said there has been a worldwide distrust of paper currencies among many investors.

This has produced a growing trend toward investment in gold, real estate and commodities, the economist said.

The Agriculture Department's report said exports of grains alone accounted for more than half the total increase in the value of exports in the 1972-73 season. Another fourth of the gain was posted by soybeans. Among major commodities, there were export declines only for dairy products and vegetable oils. Others which showed increases included cattle hides, cotton, meats, tobacco, poultry products, fruits and nuts and vegetables.

A record $1.1 billion grain deal with the Soviet Union at the opening of the 1972-73 season last fall got nationwide attention. But the new report said nearly every foreign area took a record volume of U.S. farm products during the past year.

Shipments to Japan, for example, leaped to a record $2.3 billion for the year, an increase of $1.1 billion over the previous year as prosperous Japanese consumers reached for increasing supplies of American grains, soybeans, meats, cotton, hides, and fruits and vegetables. In addition, China emerged as a smaller but important market by taking over $200 million worth of U.S. farm products in 1972-73 and placing orders for what likely will be substantially more in the 1973-74 season.

Overall, economists indicated, actual shipments to Russia during 1972-73 amounted to $905 million compared with $135 million the previous year. This gain accounted for 16 per cent in the total increase in U.S. farm exports.

U.S. agricultural imports, the report showed, jumped 20 per cent in the year ending June 30 to a record $5.6 billion. But since the gain in imports was smaller than the export gain, the favorable balance of U.S. farm trade expanded $3.6 billion to a record $5.6 billion. Just four years ago, the favorable balance

$32 million child care funds okayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has voted to spend $32 million in state funds to continue child care programs in California until next June if the federal government makes threatened cutbacks later this year.

The bill (AB1244) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, was approved and sent to the Senate Monday on a 65-9 vote after brief debate.

The U.S. Department of Health and Welfare has threatened to implement new regulations Nov. 1 that would sharply reduce the amount of federal funds California receives for child care programs.

Moretti says Gov. Ronald Reagan has agreed to guarantee funding of the threatened programs until at least next June if the new regulations take effect. The regulations originally were to be implemented in February of this year, but they have been delayed several times.

Reagan vetoed $21 million on from the state's 1973-74 budget for child care programs because he said federal funding would be forthcoming.

Moretti's measure would provide $11.7 million for state preschool programs, $6 million for migrant day care centers and $3 million for a two year pilot program for a new state-

IF ONLY IT WERE REAL — If cattle breeders could produce a steer the size of this 15-foot tall monster the nation's beef crisis soon would be over. The plastic steer-on-wheels, giving motorists a mean look at Ortonville, Mich., was positioned to publicize St. Anne Catholic Church's annual roast beef dinner for which the church ordered beef in April and already has in storage.

Mandatory death penalty OK'd

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House has given initial approval Wednesday to legislation that would make the death penalty mandatory for persons found guilty of first degree murder.

The bill was approved on a 130-89 roll call vote after an hour of debate.

Rep. Cornelius F. Kiernan, D-Lowell, House chairman of the Joint Judiciary Committee, said the bill should answer the constitutional questions raised last year by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled that capital punishment — imposed by a judge or jury on a discretionary basis—was cruel and unusual punishment.

Yeah, 3 pounds of hamburger and a rib roast

Anything to declare? border guards ask

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Beef is scarce and expensive in Maine, as in much of the United States, so residents of the Pine State are heading across the border to Canada in increasing numbers to buy meat for their home freezers.

A number of shoppers interviewed this week said they found beef abundant and relatively cheap in Canada.

"They have lots of it over there, and the prices are great," one woman in a small Maine meat market said. "I got ground chuck for 99 cents a pound and T-bones for $1.29."

A UPI poll of several supermarkets, smaller groceries and meat packers in northern Aroostook and Washington Counties found merchandisers reporting not enough beef to supply customer demands.

"Let's put it this way," one meat manager said. "Everybody up here is out of beef no matter where it comes from."

Some Maine residents have found, however, that Canada is the exception. And, because of the $10 limit per person on the amount of beef that can be brought into the U.S., whole families are making trips and returning with $50 or $80 worth of beef at a time.

The Canadian government, in order to insure that U.S. businessmen "raiding" food wholesalers in Canada do not drain the country's supplies, announced temporary controls Monday on the export of beef and pork. But the controls so far are aimed only at Canadian exporters who sell large quantities of dressed meat to U.S. buyers. Individual customers from the states will not be affected by the move, according to Canadian officials.

"Nowadays when they ask you if you have anything to declare," one across-the-border shopper said, "You say, 'Yeah —three pounds of hamburg and a rib roast."

Sponsors, stations shunt abortion rerun

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBSTV says it sold only one of six commercial spots for the rebroadcast of a controversial "Maude" show dealing with abortion and more than two dozen of its affiliates refused to carry the rerun.

CBS said it decided to go ahead with the rerun Tuesday night and a second portion dealing with the same subject next week because to take it off the air would restrict the "creative process."

The shows, originally broadcast last November to an audience estimated by CBS at 30 million, has been criticized by Roman Catholic leaders and antiabortion organizations. In the show Maude, a middle-age housewife played by Bea Arthur, finds out she is pregnant and there follows a debate on whether she should get an abortion, which she does.

A spokesman for the network said that only one of the six 30 second segments reserved for commercials had been sold, indicating a reluctance by sponsors to be involved in a segment of a series normally sold out long before its airing on television.

The CBS spokesman said Tuesday the latest count showed that 25 of its approximately 200 affiliates had turned down the two segments. He added that the affiliates had the right to use or reject the "Maude segments as they saw fit but that in the past the show had been broadcast by as many as 190 affiliates.

In Washington, the United States Catholic Conference reiterated a statement issued ast week by its general secretary Bishop James S. Rausch, which in effect branded the two episodes as advocating abortion.

Rausch said that advocacy may not have been the intention of the producers "but it certainly is the result. He said, "There is room for serious discussion of controversial subjects on television but that was not the issue. The issue is advocacy of one side of a controversy presented under the guise of situation comedy and aired at a time when children make up a substantial part of the audience.

The bishops statement was mailed to 20,000 parishes for public dissemination Aug. 8. The conference spokesman said that "presumably 48 million Catholics were made aware of the statement.

"CBS feels comedy and satire have always been used to treat a wide range of situations, the spokesman said. "If these segments were excluded it would impose restrictions on the creative process and hinder the development of television.

Chrysler predicts '74 sales to top this year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Undaunted by predictions that consumers beset by inflation and gasoline shortages. will reject big American cars for smaller imports, Chrysler Corps. top two executives said today 1974 model sales wil better 1973s already successful record.

Opening a preview of new cars and trucks for the nations automotive news media, company president John J. Riccardo said the optimism is based on healthy economic indicators that should overshadow inflation.

Riccardo and Eugene A. Califiero, group vice president, North American Automotive, noted the industry is heading into the end of the third straight year of increased sales.

"While the prospect of another strong year is obviously encouraging to the industry as a whole, I believe it is especially encouraging to Chrysler, Riccardo said in an address prepared for 200 writers and broadcasters.

'Any continuing trend to small cars means more total sales for Chrysler, he said. "We sell more small cars as a percentage of our total volume than either of our major American competitors.

Califiero outlined the changes in 1974 models, including federally required new bumper systems and a sophisticated electronic device to prevent engine start-up until seat belts are fastened. Those new features prompted Chrysler to ask the Cost of Living Council Monday for an average $71 increase, or 1.7 per cent, in its new models.

"We havent just met the law in these areas, we have turned them into genuine assets for the consumer, Califiero told the reporters.

Besides more convenient seat belts and better bumpers, Califiero promised their improvements including more front leg room, better air conditioning, a more serviceable

Pensioner's plea to keep 32 dogs denied by board

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Raymond Baiza, a disabled pensioner, has appealed to the county in a last-ditch effort to keep his 32 dogs, which he accumulated during 13 years of befriending strays.

"The dogs are my family, he told the Board of Supervisors, after being turned down by the Animal Control Center in his bid for a kennel license.

An animal control official said Baizas pets pose a public nuisance and have been cause for numerous complaints by neighbors.

Baiza said he was trying to find a proper place for himself and the dogs which he could afford on his $350-a-month pension.

An effort by the county to take all but four of Baizas dogs —the legal maxi-

"Grandma is giving Brucie a watch for his birthday," I announced to my husband.

"Why? He still reads books upside down."

"I know. Maybe we should teach him how to tell time."

We sat Brucie down at the kitchen table and said, "Brucie, this is a clock."

"It's five o'clock," he said brightly.

"How did you know that?" smiled my husband, obviously surprised.

"The cartoons are coming on. Then at 5:30, there's 'Gilligan's Island', at 6 'I've Got A Secret', at 6:30 'What's My Line' and at 7 . . . "

"Hold it," said my husband. "The clock has an hour hand and a minute hand."

"You're telling him wrong," I said, grabbing the clock out of my husband's hands. "Brucie, this is a little face with a button nose and two antennae coming out of its head."

"What's an antennae?" he asked.

"Look, Brucie," said my husband, "can you count by fives like five, ten, fifteen . . . "

"You're confusing the child," I said. "Remember the little bumblebee in your coloring book with two little feelers coming out? Those are called antennae. See? One of these antennae is longer than the other one. The long one is the hour antennae and the short one is . . . "

"Brucie, all you have to remember is this side is the after side and this side is the before side."

"Remember it this way, dear," I interjected. "The hand you write with is the after side and the hand you scribble with is the before side."

"What happened to the bumblebee?" asked Brucie.

"You're confusing him," said my husband.

"Does this have anything to do with sex?" asked Brucie.

"When the big antenna is straight up and the little antenna is on your scribble side and looks like a broken chair, it is time for the cartoons," I said.

"Don't strain yourself," said my husband, hanging up the phone. "Your mother just bought him a digital watch."

We both slumped exhausted into a chair. "Remember when we tried to teach him how to tie his shoes?" I asked.

"Wearing loafers the rest of your life isn't the worst thing that can happen to a kid," he sighed.

Philadelphia mayor says he told truth

Polygraph test shows Rizzo lied about patronage deal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A polygraph expert said Tuesday tests show that Mayor Frank L. Rizzo lied about an alleged political patronage deal but the mayor insisted he "unequivocally told the truth.

Warren Holmes, an expert from Miami, Fla., said lie detector tests given Monday to Rizzo, Deputy Mayor Phillip Carroll and Democratic city chairman Peter Camiel showed Rizzo and Carroll lied about the aleged deal tendered in a hotel mens room last February.

Camiel had charged that Rizzo offered to give him the choice of architects for city projects if the mayor could select the partys endorsed candidate for district attorney.

Holmes said he questioned the three men only about the alleged deal in the mens room. He said the tests showed that Rizzo lied on his response to six of 10 questions, Carroll to five of nine questions and that Camiel "told the truth on all 11 questions he was asked.

Holmes report on his finding was carried in todays issue of the Philadelphia Daily News, which arranged for the voluntary lie detector tests.

Rizzo told a news conference shortly after the newspaper came out that "I want to tell you publicly, Rizzo and Carroll told the truth —unequivocally told the truth. We will go before any court in the land and put our hand on the Bible.

Rizzo said he was "sick to my stomach when he learned of Holmes findings and said "my credibility might be affected by the headline Rizzo Lied.

But he termed this a "temporary setback and said "the issue here is who has been corrupt. As a result of this test, I will not back off. We will pursue all facets of corruption in government.

Carroll claimed that a list they showed Camiel in the mens room of the Bellevue Stratford Hotel last February was a list of eight city projects in which City Council President George Schwartz had "excessive involvement.

Rizzo said "I have great confidence in the polygraph. I believe it is an excellent machine. But when I know in my heart I told the truth, then there must be something wrong.

Lumber firms charged with air pollution

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The regional office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency issued notices of violation against eight lumber mills whose tepee burners of wood waste were said to pollute the air.

The mills, located in Sonoma and Mendocino counties, are operated by Georgia Pacific Corp., Louisiana Pacific Lunber Corp., Western Lumber Division of Masonite Corp., Cloverdale Plywood Co. which is a divison of Fibreboard Corp., Redwood Coast Lumber Co. and G&R Lumber Co.

The agency said that if violations continue 30 days beyond the date of notice, an order would be issued requiring compliance within a resonable time. Before such an order, a public hearing would be held.

The EPA said the mills are in violation of county and state regulations, and the state regulations are enforceable by the federal government as well.

Death penalty vote showdown postponed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee with life-or-death power over bills to restore the death penalty in California Tuesday postponed until next week a critical showdown vote on capital punishment legislation.

Chairman Alan Sieroty of the Criminal Justice Committee announced 55 minutes after the panels third hearing was to start that negotiations were under way between proponents and opponents of the death penalty.

Sieroty, a Los Angeles Democrat who opposes restoration of the supreme penalty, adjourned the hearing "to allow those discussions to continue to see whether agreement is possible.

But Assemblyman Frank Murphy Jr. of Santa Cruz, Assembly Republic caucus chairman, protested the action and demanded the issue be decided.

He complained that Republicans were "not cut in on the negotiations and told Sieroty, "I'd prefer to have ous business done in public.

There was a standing room only crowd in the committee hearing room which included a platoon of khaki shirt prison guards who had sponsored last years successful ballot initiative to re-establish capital punishment in California.

Freshman Assemblyman Julian Dixon represented the deciding "swing vote on the seven member committee. He said he would support the bill if it contains the proper ingredients," he told newsmen. He said he waited until Monday to meet with Deukmejian because he could not make up my own mind what the essence of the bill is, and should be."

Food crisis hits schools—cafeteria prices jump

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Increases in salary and food costs, coupled with a scarcity of free government commodities, will hike the cost of school lunches from 45 to 50 cents this fall.

Proportional increases in a la carte items will be made. The adult plate on the elementary and secondary school campuses will go up to 70 cents.

In approving the increase, the Pomona school board Tuesday night revised regulations controlling the serving of free and reduced-price meals by making changes in eligibility requirements and income levels based on inflation factors.

Under the revised regulations, children from a family of five with a monthly gross income of $508 will receive free food. Children from a family of five with a monthly gross income between $509 and $610 will receive reduced-price meals.

As in the past, families will make application for free or reduced-price meals.

In addition to the traditional lunch program, the district this year will serve breakfast for 30 cents.

Free and reduced-price meals are partially financed through agreements the district has with the National School Lunch Program and the School Breakfast Program to receive commodities donated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In another action, the school board gave first reading to a resolution changing the pupil transportation policy to provide bus transportation for Diamond Bar students attending Ganesha High School.

A second reading, and possible board action on the matter, will take place at the Aug. 28 board meeting.

Vice president Ken Pine, chairing the meeting in the absence of vacationing board president Dr. James Bell, maintained control over what could have erupted into an argument on the floor.

A small group of Diamond Bar women urged passage of the resolution so busing could be made available. Three spoke.

A fourth woman urged the board to use the money to restore the sixth period to the high schools. "The transportation bit can be handled by parents. The sixth period cannot," she said.

Pine held the floor and invited those in the audience to return to the Aug. 28 meeting.

Mrs. Elaine Myers, district reading-math specialist, reported on progress made last year in seventh and eighth-grade programs and said additional state money is assured to continue programs in 1973-74.

She said the Fremont Junior High School reading project showed the greatest student improvement—1.8 months advancement for each one month instruction—under the reading program.

Board members approved a development plan for inservice training for teachers in history, culture and current problems of racial and ethnic minorities, as mandated by the state code.

Previously set to take effect this fall, the state had set the target date back to fall of 1974 to allow planning time.

Sidney Moses, assistant superintendent of educational services, said that while such inservice training is required for teachers at 22 Pomona schools, "we feel it is worthwhile for all our schools."

The staff is to have its plan ready for board approval next April.

Moses also told the board that the district may receive Compensatory Education funds next year for five additional elementary schools, bringing to 11 the number of Pomona schools receiving such funds.

He said all 11 schools appear to be in compliance with state requirements on the basis of projected enrollments.

Leslie C. Wiese, custodian at Palomares Junior High School since it opened in 1962, who previously had worked at Kellogg, Washington, Kingsley and Harrison schools, was awarded a retirement certificate by the school board.

Tipsters credited in 3 narcotics convictions

Two We Turn In Pushers, Inc., (We T.I.P.), informants have aided Pomona and Montclair police in gaining court convictions of three persons accused of possessing narcotics and drugs for sale in the Pomona-West End area.

Convicted in Pomona Municipal court of possessing barbiturates for sale were Paul Eugene Ham, 24, and Shelly Alcorn, 18, both of 140 Poplar St. in Pomona. Information from We T.I.P. tipster aided police in their investigation which led to the couple's arrest.

Wayne Steven Hale, 23, of 5144 Arrow Highway in Montclair was convicted and sentenced to three years probation on a charge of possession for sales of amphetamines and LSD after his arrest by Montclair police. Police said that information from a We T.I.P. tipster was beneficial in their investigation.

The tipsters have been authorized by the We T.I.P. Board of Directors to pick up their rewards at the prearranged drop point.

Persons with information about suspected drug pushers may call We T.I.P. at 983-9611 or 800-472-7785. Tipsters are instructed not to give their names when calling, guaranteeing their anonymity.

Tipsters are eligible to receive from $100 to $500 reward from We T.I.P., Inc., if their information is partially responsible for the arrest and conviction of a suspected drug pusher.

Telephone numbers hard to find in an emergency

I have a booklet titled "In Time of Emergency," put out by the Office of Civil Defense. It is an excellent booklet but like a lot of people, I am sure, I have put off reading it until a "better time." Today I had the time.

On page 2, the booklet has a listing for all emergency phone numbers and therein lies the problem.

I spent considerable time looking up numbers for an ambulance, civil defense, my doctors, the Red Cross, etc. What disturbed me is the number of times that I ran into situations like those described below.

I wanted the number for the Red Cross, so I looked up Red Cross. That listing said, see American National Red Cross.

I wanted the Weather Bureau, so I looked under Weather. Nothing! I looked under United States Government. Nothing! Then I found it in the yellow pages. Granted, maybe I should have looked there first.

My point is this. In an emergency, a time of great stress, searching like I have been doing today could make a bad situation turn into a disaster.

I strongly suggest that your readers take the time NOW to look up and list all those phone numbers.—M.M., Claremont.

We carried your search one step further and dialed the number in the yellow pages, since we knew the National Weather Service moved to Riverside last October. A recorded voice informed us that the number no longer was in service.

When we called General Telephone's district manager, he said the listing must have remained in the current phone book through an oversight. Hs promised that those calling the number in the future would be informed of the bureau's change in location and be offered the Riverside number. This promise has been kept.

The American National Red Cross, Pomona Chapter, defends its listing as being the official name of the organization.

In defense of the telephone company, Action Line notes blank spaces on page one of the directory for fire and police numbers, along with the actual numbers of the California Highway Patrol, Federal Bureau of Investigation and U.S. Secret Service. On the same page, fire, police and sheriff's emergency numbers are listed by community.

And on page three, there is a weather listing.

Several months ago I wrote to you asking for help in registering a complaint about unsatisfactory dental work.

You referred me to the Tri-County Dental Society. When I wrote to the society describing my complaint, they immediately answered me and immediately contacted the dentist in question. He, in turn, promptly called me to set up appointments. The dentist quickly corrected the problem without charge and to my satisfaction.—M.S., Claremont.

We congratulate you and the Tri-County Dental Society.

Enclosed you will find many copies of letters I have written to the Michigan Bulb Co. since 1971.

I placed an order on April 19, 1971 and enclosed my check for $15.90. I received my order in May. On Aug. 24, 1971, I wrote to the company complaining of the merchandise. They sent me a "credit certificate." I have tried to get back my money but they have not answered me except for a "letter to preferred customers" including many pictures of their products.

I could not write to you sooner as I have had a heart attack. Then last January I was taken to the hospital with cirrhosis of the liver. When we received the latest ad from Michigan Bulb my wife was in the hospital.—J.T., Montclair.

A Michigan Bulb advertisement you sent us reveals that the company offers replacement rather than refund for items that do "not develop and flourish to your complete satisfaction."

Nevertheless, the company answered an Action Line letter with a note to us and a copy of a letter sent to you with a refund check.

The firm offered condolences and best wishes in your time of trouble and expressed the hope that your health and your wife's have improved.

Shooting incident jails man, 47

POMONA — Police arrested a Pomona man Tuesday afternoon after a neighbor claimed he shot at him with a rifle as the neighbor was driving his car.

Willie James Suggs, 47, of 915 Hyde Ave., was arrested by police on suspicion of attempted murder after Hank Burkes, 33, of 902 Hyde Ave., told police Suggs had shot at him.

According to police, the incident was an outgrowth of a long-standing dispute between the two men over the way Burkes drives on the street.

As Burkes left his residence for work and made a U-turn in the street, police said, Suggs came out of his residence armed with an M-1 carbine and fired one shot at Burkes' car, striking the car's fender.

Mrs. Burkes summoned police who surrounded Suggs' home and called for him to surrender. He was arrested without further incident.

Police confiscated the carbine and 30 rounds of ammunition from Suggs' house.

Pomona plant now open

Corral idea becomes big business

POMONA — Because a rancher grew tired of digging holes for corrals, a new firm was created in Pomona.

John Thornton began to build portable corrals. "It seemed like such a good idea. I wondered if they were saleable, found they were, and have been building them since."

Thornton, 45, of Diamond Bar, started the T. C. Ranch Co. on March 1, 1967, in an old building near the Pomona Mall.

He moved into a new $100,000 building at 2700 Pomona Blvd. last June. City and Chamber of Commerce officials joined him recently in celebrating its grand opening.

The company produces corrals, shelters, feeders and box stall type barns for recreation horses. It also manufactures tent bases, picnic tables and other products for use in semipermanent type camping.

Products are distributed throughout California, Arizona, Oregon and Hawaii.

"We presently employ 20 people in the manufacture, sale and administration, most of whom are residents of Pomona," said Thornton.

Viewing the future, Thornton said he plans to expand the distribution area and also to develop new products. All of this will require an expansion of the existing plant, he added.

"Like any successful company, our growth is based upon the good loyal people who work for us, for without them there is no way we could succeed."

Thornton, married and with three children, is a native of Illinois. He graduated from the University of Illinois with a degree in banking and finance. He served in the Army during the Korean War where he met his future wife, Carol. They were married after he was discharged.

Thornton worked for United California Bank from 1954 to 1960 as a commercial loan officer, specializing in loans to the entertainment industry in Beverly Hills and Hollywood.

He left the bank in 1960 and worked as assistant treasurer and division manager for A J Industries, a company whose stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1962, Thornton "retired" and became a rancher and farmer in Walnut and Diamond Bar. He continues to operate a cattle ranch of about 4,000 acres.

Thornton expressed appreciation received from Pomona officials.

"At this point, I would like to say I have never entertained the idea of moving this company outside the City of Pomona because of our very happy relations with the administration of the city government, including the building department, fire department, police department, as well as elected officials and the city manager's office," he added.

Police chase, nab robbery suspect

POMONA — Police said a Montclair man led them on a foot chase Tuesday afternoon from the scene of an armed robbery in east Pomona.

Officers said that Larry Donaldson, 19, of 4521 Bonnie Brae Ave., Montclair, was arrested on suspicion of the armed robbery of Beck's Cleaners at 1668 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

According to police, the cleaners was robbed shortly after noon by a man who confronted clerk Susan Naquin with a .38-caliber pistol and demanded all the money in the register. The man then fled.

Police, aided by an observer in a police helicopter, converged on the area.

Donaldson was spotted running along Marellen Avenue, police said, where he was stopped and arrested.

A .38 caliber revolver was found in bushes near the arrest scene, along with about $750.

Donaldson was arrested by Claremont police about one month ago on suspicion of burglarizing a house, and in yet another separate incident on Aug. 3 was hospitalized after he was reportedly shot by his twin brother.

Transportation proposal rapped

POMONA — A Southern California Rapid Transit District proposal for a mixed mode mass transportation system was criticized Tuesday night at a meeting of the Community Redevelopment Commission for neglecting needs of the Pomona Valley-Ontario area.

Although the commission took no formal action, members tacitly agreed to a suggestion that the chairman, Charle Stillinger, appear before the City Council to urge a strong position on the proposal.

Although Pomona is a member of the district, the proposal assigns high priorities to cities west of El Monte, which, said Stillinger, "seems to be the edge of the world."

He said it is essential a mass transit system provide improved transportaion for the Pomona Valley and connect Ontario International Airport with Los Angeles International Airport.

Stillinger said, as he understood the proposal, Pomonans and other citizens in eastern Los Angeles County would be paying increased sales taxes to pay for construction but would not receive the same benefits as cities west of El Monte.

Administrator tells Rotarians

PVCH nursing care is 'superior'

POMONA — The quality of nursing care at Pomona Valley Community Hospital is superior to any hospital he has been connected with, administrator Robert Burwell told members of the Rotary Club on Tuesday in the Elks Lodge.

Because the hospital is doing such a good job in this department, Burwell said, the hospital is expanding its service to patients even after they leave. Burwell came to the Pomona hospital more than a year ago from a large hospital in Michigan. He has been in the hospital administration field for more than 10 years.

He said that the hospital now has a customer relations department whose job is to make a courtesy call on the patient after he has returned home and to probe through questioning how the hospital might have improved, if possible, its service while that person was a patient.

Burwell said this kind of service represents a new approach in management examination of how well the hospital is doing its job in terms of patient care, which is the hospital's top priority.

Burwell admitted that hospital costs are high everywhere but the reason is, he said, the high cost of sophisticated medical equipment, specialized medical sections such as the coronary care unit, and the general improvement in pay in the last decade for hospital employes.

He predicted that some kind of national health insurance will emerge from Congress in the next two years and that government involvement in health care will result in deterioration of hospital finances so that hospitals will need to find new ways of generating funds for capital expenses.

According to Burwell, the hospital plans to be more aggressive in soliciting public gifts but no annual fund drive is contemplated. Instead, he said, the hospital will operate similarly to college development programs and selectively seek out donors.

Burwell said that the cost per patient day had not increased the first six months this year as compared to the same period last year and that hospital prices will only increase slightly more than two per cent for the remainder of the year. This is "an achievement that we can be proud of." "Our prime effort," he stated, "is to be efficient and businesslike in our operations but not at the expense of the quality of care."

Evidence suggests, he said, that the number of doctors in the Pomona area may be in short supply in the future. The assistance of the medical staff and the Chamber of Commerce would be necessary, he said, to recruit the needed practitioners and specialists to meet the helath needs of the community.

Another part of the Rotary program was the induction of four new Rotarians, Lewis Manville, Joe Hermosillo, Larry Arcinage, and Bill Klump. Past president Ellson Smith did the inducting.

New approaches to air pollution

According to glowing reports, engineers with the Honda Motor Company of Japan have solved one of two major problems bugging U.S. automakers.

They've done it by developing a "stratified charge" engine, something that has eluded American know-how, which they claim meets the original 1975 emission standards (now postponed to 1976) for carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons.

The stratified charge engine, utilizing dual combustion chambers in each cylinder, would eliminate the need for fuel-consuming add-on devices like the catalytic converters American technology has been pursuing. U.S. automakers are said to be working out licensing agreements with Honda.

There remains the problem of nitrogen oxides, however. To eliminate or reduce these requires recirculating exhaust fumes for further combustion, again at a penalty in driveability and fuel economy.

Just recently, the Environmental Production Agency, at the behest of the auto industry, also postponed this scheduled standard for another year, from 1976 to 1977.

The interesting thing is that the EPA itself has stated that nitrogen oxides are not presently a significant air pollutant in most parts of the nation. This was one of the points touched on by John K. McKinley, president of Texaco, Inc., during testimony before the Senate Air and Water Pollution Subcommittee.

"A single standard for clean air quality on a nationwide basis may not be defensible," he told the senators. In view of the fuel shortage, which he predicted would continue throughout the decade, he recommended relaxing the nitrogen oxide standards for noncritical areas so that exhaust recycling would not be required.

McKinley also suggested that the legislators consider adopting a "two-car strategy"—one type of car meeting more rigid nitrogen oxide standards for California and certain other critical areas, another type for marketing in the rest of the nation.

This, he argued, would be "a simple and practical approach" since neither type of car would require catalysts or special fuels.

The two-car strategy, combined with a noncatalytic solution to carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons (which Honda seems to have accomplished) would save the nation something like three million barrels of petroleum a day by 1985, McKinley testified.

It is, he offered, an idea "worthy of consideration."

Clothes make the student

School administrators around the country are still trying to arrive at an accommodation with the now generation which strikes a balance between absolute individual freedom in the matter of personal dress and some sort of standards, while permitting everyone concerned to get on with the business of teaching and learning.

One midwestern school has come up with a dress code which, it hopes, will achieve that end. At the Crestwood High School in Mantua, Ohio, the following will be frowned upon during the coming school year:

Undershirts (with nothing over them), tank tops (with nothing under them), sweatshirts or jackets with names of gangs or pictures, shorts, sandals without socks and cleated shoes.

For girls, heavy cosmetics, low-cut dresses, sheer blouses or midriff tops and high heels are banned.

Boys must be clean-shaven with sideburns not to extend beyond the jawbone. Jeans and long hair will be permitted but must be kept neat and clean, and shirts must be buttoned and tucked in at all times.

It's pretty rough, but maybe the kids will be able to live with it.

Best interest

There's a lot of talk today about interst rates. . . talk that baffles most of us. But one item in that category need only please us.

Back in 1956 the State's Pooled Money Investment Board was formed to guide the investment of surplus state funds; to put them to work earning the best possible income on behalf of California taxpayers.

With understandable satisfaction. State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest recently announced the higest single-transaction interest earning rate achieved on such investments since the Board's formation. It was a healthy 9.5 per cent on the purchase of $25 million in U.S. Treasury bonds and bills.

This is an especially good indication of the skilled stewardship of the State Treasurer's Office, which invests an average of $250 million a day in surplus state funds. It illustrates why such investments have earned in excess of $110 million for the people of California during the past fiscal year.

People want right to be done

WASHINGTON — Americans have soaked up many a shock lately; no wonder some are punchy. Our leaders have lied to us about war and peace. A 10-year conflict has been lost, all its hopes in ruins. Atrocities have tarnished the image of our military. A dozen congressional figures have been convicted or censured.

Crime rises while law enforcement at the highest levels is subverted; one prominent prosecution after another fails because the jury finds the government more disreputable than the accused. Our dollar has lost almost as much credibility as the White House.

It is a symbol of a world turned upside down that even the late J. Edgar Hoover is now disparaged by superiors. And lest anyone escape the grim news, Watergate dramatizes and compounds it all.

People come to hate those who destroy their faith. They begin to believe that all politicians are corrupt, that the press is incorrigibly venal, that the nation is diseased — all infected by a system that somehow has ceased to work. So persuaded, millions sink into a funk, or rise into a dudgeon, alike vulnerable to the nostrums of political quacks who never fail to come forward.

Must keep writing

Should the muckraker take a sabbatical? No. Until he is ready to concede that America is sick beyond the cure of truth, he must continue to stalk the incriminating memo and the double-entry ledger.

Strangely, enough, he has more confidence in America than most others. In this season of disillusion, when our national spirit is damp and bedraggled, perhaps he can serve by once in a while writing about how his pursuit of graffers and chiselers has taught him to better respect and love his country.

The muckraker's career hangs upon three attributes of our society. First, the relative scarcity of corruption: If it were the norm, it would not be news. Second, the probity of most citizens: If the majority found official corruption undisturbing, the cry of the reformer would become hollow. Third, the ultimate responsiveness to truth, when forced to the wall, of our governmental system: It has demonstrated a unique toleration, however reluctant, of hostile inquiry.

Tough though his hide gets to be, the investigative reporter is as emotionally needful of emphatic response as a clown or an actor. If his public was unmoved by exposures, if his work did not sometimes cause wrongs to be righted, he would soon lose stomach for it and become a speech writer or an ad man at better pay.

People care

He learns in the most intimate way that the people care deeply that right be done. And he comes to know in his bones that though an individual politician, or a government agency, or even a whole administration may be his adversary the American system is his friend.

There is one comforting thing about the nature of crime — its particularity. A Lee Harvey Oswald or a William Calley or a Charles Manson is not representative of a society or an army or a generation. He is an aberrant. We discover this in the peculiarities of his disturbed life; we know it, too, from looking at the rest of America.

Applied to political crimes, the rule of particularity again puts things in balance. Among the affluent and the privileged, crimes are committed by culpable individuals, calculating, for identifiable motives.

Just as the ideologue will excuse the felon in order to indict society as the criminal, the professional patriot bemoans any exposure of flaws because he is not really sure about the strength and goodness of this land and secretly fears it may crumble if the facade is disturbed.

No doubts

The muckraker has no such doubts. He pounces with unholy zeal on any clue of malfeasance precisely because he is secure in his faith that this country is too good and too strong to be hurt by the truth. The pillars will stand; let the dry rot be blasted out.

Perhaps a reporter, like a prize fighter, is in trouble the moment he gets a bit reflective and sentimental. But when I see this nation scourging itself because it must have the truth, I must rise from my wallowings to say and urge others to say, "I love America."

New ideas needed to meet demand

In part, our economic problems are a result of our successes. In part they're due to repeated economic bungling in Russia, China and other Communist lands. (It's truer now than ever that communism and agriculture don't mix.) And in part they're due to the growing ability of the Arab lands to work in tandem when money is involved. (Our own government's contribution to the inflation horror was described in a recent column.)

More people around the world have of late been able to afford meat, automobiles, TVs, motorcycles, houses and services than ever before.

Huge American investments abroad, and the stimulus these have provided to local industry, the sharing of American high technology, the bountiful aid which has enabled a flock of nations to recover from their war and other wounds — have created new jobs and greater earning power worldwide.

West Europeans are riding high. The Japanese too. So, despite the wide prevalence of poverty, are many Latin Americans, Eastern, South and Southeast Asians, Middle Easterners.

This prosperity has created a demand which has outstretched supply—especially in food and processed fuel.

It is interesting to note that this type of prosperity implies that, despite some glaring exceptions, income in many countries is rising for a wider percentage of the people than ever before. The middle class and even the poor are sharing in the larger gross national products now being recorded.

There are more than a handful of countries in the free world in which the incomes of the lower half of the population have risen at a faster pace than the incomes of the upper half.

Somehow the governments of the world and the private producers as well have failed (in part because of unwise regulations and controls, in part because of lack of imagination and in part because of undue caution) to anticipate this growth.

Some of the confusion has arisen because a considerable portion of the increase in demand has been of a different nature than in the past. The increased market for certain types of food may be unprecedented, for example. Other increases have been well below expectations. As a result, investors, managers and government planners have become confused and uncertain.

The men with the power to make decisions in many countries — both officials and in private business — have in too many cases depended on traditional experience, the experience of a different kind of economic world, for their decisions. The result has been chaos in many cases.

In those countries, such as Japan and West Germany, where an attempt was made to look at world economics the way it is today, the rewards have been great.

Super Sam

If the McCarthy Senate Committee to investigate communism was conducted in a more unfair, high-handed manner than the Ervin-Dash for Democrats committee to investigate Republicans, I would be utterly amazed.

And let me there qualify my position that neither Democrats or Republicans can be trusted. They are, without a Constitutional doubt liars, thieves and murderers (legalizers of unborn-baby killing).

But Supercilious Sam and Dandy Dash along with any of the Sanctimonious Senators are allowed to ask or tell any immaterial or irrelevant infomation. But the witness or his counsel are restricted to whatever Silly Sam deems relevant.

If McCarthy was a tyrant, Sam is a clown.

Since Sam is so proud of his ability to read the English language, I wonder how Super Sam would answer that part of the Constitution which states that, "No State shall make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts."

Does his own state of North Carolina pay its debts with gold and silver coin or do they speak a different language than English. If representatives like Ervin (a so-called Constitutional expert) did not condone the stealing of the people's gold and silver by substituting un-redeemable Federal Reserve Notes for the redeemable Certificates, then every State could uphold that "perfectly clear" demand of the U.S. Constitution. — Clayton Stanhope, Pomona.

Gossip for today

Some things never change! As long ago as 1892 the inhabitants of this disturbed planet were worrying about an energy shortage. So much so that in August of that year the London Financial Times stated:

"Coal has had its day. The fuel of the future will be solidified petroleum."

Well, now that future has come and gone and it is beginning to look as though petroleum, solidified or otherwise, is also about to have had its day. So once again the world is worrying about the energy crisis.

Ah yes, some things never change! In that same year, 1892, newspapers throughout the country were reporting:

"The lawyers got $658,000 of the $923,788 paid by the City of New Orleans to the Myra Clark Gaines estate."

So as you can plainly see, "As it was in the beginning it is now and ever shall be." Let's quit worrying and start enjoying life for a change.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon rejected aide's warning

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Concealed in the deluge of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee is this astonishing fact: President Nixon's immediate response to a warning that his chief aide, H. R. Haldeman, might be criminally prosecuted and should be fired was to give him one of the critically important White House Watergate tapes.

That was not Mr. Nixon's only reaction to the visit paid him—and the ominous warning—on April 15 by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen. While recommending immediate dismissal of Haldeman and top domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman, Petersen gave contrary advice concerning White House counsel John W. Dean III: he should be kept on. In less than 24 hours, Mr. Nixon was demanding Dean's resignation.

This chain of events, forged by the testimony of Petersen and other witnesses before the Ervin committee, is unchallenged. It has only two possible explanations.

The first: Mr. Nixon exercised bad judgment out of misguided loyalty to his two closest aides.

The second, and vastly more sinister: he was party to a clandestine arrangement with them.

The real answer would define the President's overall role in Watergate, and it may lie hidden in the surreptitious White House tapes of April 15 and 16.

The importance of the fateful April 15 was starkly etched last week as a bone-weary committee hurried through Petersen's appearance. He testified that on Sunday afternoon, April 15, he briefed the President on the cracking of the Watergate case.

He informed the President that his two top aides, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, might be criminally prosecuted and that he should "get rid of them immediately" to avoid "vast embarrassment." It might be concluded that a criminal case against Haldeman, he told the President, "was in the offing" from testimony of three potential witnesses—Dean, campaign aide Jeb Magruder and possibly Haldeman aide Gordon Strachan.

The President was "calm," testified Petersen. He asked whether Dean, then supplying information to federal prosecutors, should also be fired. "My goodness, no," Petersen said he told the President. ". . . We don't want to give the impression that he is being subjected to reprisal because of his cooperation." The President did not protest.

But according to Haldeman's own testimony of July 31, after that warning from Petersen, Mr. Nixon asked Haldeman himself to listen to the tape of the surreptitiously recorded March 21 meeting between the President, Dean and, intermittently, Haldeman. It was in that conversation, both Dean and Haldeman testified, that Dean told Mr. Nixon there was "a cancer growing on the presidency." All signs point to Haldeman being given the tape April 15 or 16, just hours after Petersen's warning (although Haldeman testified he could not pinpoint the exact time).

Thus, instead of following the advice of his criminal division chief that Haldeman be fired, Mr. Nixon entrusted to Haldeman material so secret its existence was unknown to the Justice Department. Although senior White House aides now explain that the President reviewed the tapes to check Dean's charges against him, in fact no such charges had been made in mid-April. Dean had not told the prosecutors anything to implicate Mr. Nixon.

On the morning of April 16, according to Dean's undisputed testimony, Mr. Nixon scorned Petersen's other recommendation by asking for Dean's written resignation. Dean testified that the President informed him he had no written resignations from Ehrlichman and Haldeman.

The benign explanation for this presidential behavior is given as follows by his present aides: his Sunday session was his first real meeting with Petersen, a career civil servant and a registered Democrat ("He didn't know me from Adam," Petersen testified). Petersen, appointed by Mr. Nixon, was surely loyal. But was he super-loyal? Given the fetishistic veneration of personal loyalty in the Nixon White House, even a Haldeman subject to federal prosecution was infinitely more trustworthy than the honest investigator trying to protect the presidency. The verdict: abominable judgment by the President but scarcely an impeachable offense.

The malignant explanation is incomparably worse: the President and Haldeman were involved in some dark arrangement which made a mockery of Petersen's recommendations.

Benign or malignant? As he waited outside the Oval Office April 16, Dean testified, "Haldeman and Ehrlichman emerged laughing" but abruptly sobered when they saw him. What had they been saying to the President? What did the President say to Haldeman, April 15 or 16, when he asked him to review the March 21 tape?

The answer may lie in the White House tapes of those two days—tapes not even requested by special prosecutor Archibald Cox or the Ervin committee.

Reserve enlistment terms being reduced

UPLAND — Army reserve units throughout the state are cutting their enlistment terms for men without previous military service from six to four years for the next month and one half, Maj. Dwane E. Mickelson, commanding officer of the 426th Civil Affairs Company here, has announced.

Under a new enlistment option being tried between July 1 and Sept. 20, men without prior military service may join the Army Reserve unit in Upland for four years, and then transfer to an individual ready reserve unit for two additional years. In the past, men without prior service had to sign up for six years of duty with an Army Reserve unit.

"This new four - year unit option should be appealing to recent high school graduates," Maj. Mickeson said. "They will no longer have to committ themselves to active participation in a unit for as long a period of time as in the past, but will benefit still from the up-to-date skill training offered through the Army Reserve," he said.

Mickelson said that the 426th Civil Affairs Company has openings for and is willing to train men to become mechanics, clerk typists, and safety personnel. Since many of those skills have a civilian application, the Army Reserve training can lead toward a profitable civilian career.

After enlisting in the reserve, an individual spends from four to six months at an active Army installation where he takes his basic and advanced individual training.

He returns to his home town and attends meetings with his regular reserve unit, and goes to two weeks of annual training with that unit each year.

The 426th Civil Affairs Company meets one weekend a month at Thrall Army Reserve Center at 1284 E. Seventh St.

Supervisors approve countywide vocational training instruction

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — The Board of Supervisors this week gave unanimous approval to a countywide vocational training plan presented by county Superintendent of Schools Roy C. Hill. Success of the one-year program first instituted at Colton, Redlands and Yucaipa prompted Hill's request to make the program available to all areas in the county.

The Regional Occupation Program, called ROP, was promulgated to provide down-to-earth training for jobs, offering classes to train people as grocery checkers, dental technicians, medical assistants of various kinds, retail sales clerks, welders, service station attendants and many other jobs.

Hill told the supervisors that he was in receipt of many endorsements of the program from school districts all over the county including Barstow, Bear Valley, Fontana, Morongo in Twenty-nine Palms, Needles, Rialto, Rim of the World in Arrowhead and the San Bernardino Unified School District.

The program also makes use of on-the-job training with cooperating businesses and holds evening classes in school rooms. Hill said that anyone can join the classes and as they are "open end" they can drop out of a class when they so desire. Hill emphasized that applicants don't have to be formal students or of any age or sex, just to be interested in learning to work in a job or trade.

The programs will be funded by district school taxes and will result in very minimal increases, the board was told. State funding will be made available in the near future, Hill said, as a recent state mandate requires that all school districts will participate in the program.

Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala expressed great interest in the program, reminding the board that he had tried in vain to foster a program which would allow use of the unused state building at Chino for a similar program designed to train everyone wishing to learn a trade.

Chino dairy wins top honors in Fair milk output contest

POMONA — Bay te Velde & Son, Chino, has won top honors for dairies shipping less than 13,000 pounds daily in the Los Angeles County Fair's annual milk producers contest.

Boersma and Wind Dairy, Corona, won the sweepstakes honors over 312 other producers entered in the event.

Trophies will be given at the fair on Dairy Industry Day, Thursday, Sept. 27, after the thoroughbred horse race named in the producers' honor. Additional recognition will be given at the fourth annual diary industry family barbecue that evening.

John Oord, Ontario, and Ed Swager, Chino, received special recognition awards from the judges.

A total of 103 gold, 66 silver and 33 bronze medals were given. Judges praised the high quality of the milk entered.

Dairy exhibits at the fair, which runs Sept. 14-30, are always a popular attraction. Fair visitors can also see the milking parlor demonstration of the actual production of milk, as well as displays of all types of dairy products.

Permit issued for hospital remodeling job

ONTARIO—Remodeling of a hospital and construction of a new industrial building topped building activity here last month.

City officials issued a building permit to Ontario Community Hospital for expansion of its surgical area plus addition of new air conditioning units. The project is estimated at $240,000.

Another permit was issued to the Kelly-Moore Paint Co. for construction of a 14,400-square-foot machine and maintenance shop at 1400 S. Campus Ave. The project is estimated at $40,000.

For the month, officials reported issuing a total of 89 building permits, representing a valuation of $582,876. This boosts the totals so far this year to 619 permits and an $8.5 million valuation.

No permits were issued for new dwellings. But 43 permits were obtained for alterations to existing dwellings. The projects represented a valuation of $63,857.

Other permits included:

Commercial buildings, four, $81,156; alterations to commercial and industrial buildings, six, $52,363; church additions, one, $35,558; and miscellaneous buildings, 30, $69,942.

In addition, two houses and one other structure were demolished.

SAVING FOR SIGHT

Showing some of the aluminum can tabs that they have collected are, from left, brothers Chon Sandoval, 10, and Jessie 12, and Mike Armijo, 14, of Chino. The boys have collected over five pounds of the tabs to be used toward the purchase of a seeing eye dog for an Upland woman.

West End boys seeking funds for guide dog

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — They haven't been in the West End long, but three young Chino boys have joined the humanitarian efforts of several others trying to obtain a seeing eye dog for an elderly Upland woman.

Mike Armijo, 14, Jessie Armijo, 12, and Chon Sandoval, 10, heard about the collection of aluminum can pull tabs from Mary Leuck, a neighbor. Mrs. Leuck was visiting with the boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Vega, and everyone sat around drinking canned soft drinks.

"As they were about to throw the tabs away, I mentioned that a group of people where I work (Road Ranger Kit Manufacturing), were saving tabs to help this blind lady get a seeing eye dog. We need 10 pounds to get it," said Mrs. Leuck.

"The boys became intrigued about it all and offered to help. They've collected five pounds in less than two weeks," she noted.

Mike explained that he and his two brothers "didn't have anything else to do. Summers are boring, so we decided to help."

Mrs. Leuck was told of the aluminum tab collection by a coworker, Carmyn Solly. After weighing the tabs at the trailer manufacturing plant, a friend of Mrs. Solly's delivers them to Mildred Meadore, a patient at Arlington Convalescent Hospital in Upland. Approximately 15 persons are actively involved in the collection.

"We have a soda pop machine at work that's strictly cans. So we save all the tabs there we can," said Mrs. Leuck.

The three brothers pick up the tabs off the streets, in shopping areas, from parks and from friends. In a sense, their efforts to help have turned into a miniature clean-up campaign for Chino streets.

Both Mrs. Vega, who has five other children, and Mrs. Leuck are quite proud of Mike, Jessie and Chon.

"It's quite nice, I think," said Mrs. Leuck. "That's a lot of tabs, a lot of picking up. This makes a better headlines than some I've seen this week. Everybody's working together, working toward getting someone a seeing eye dog. These kids have put in a lot of effort for this."

Mike will be in the ninth grade in September at either Don Antonio Lugo or Chino High School. Jessie and Chon will repectively enter the sixth and fifth grades at El Rancho School. The family of 10 has lived in Chino for about seven months.

Persons wishing to donate aluminum tabs may take them to the Veja home at 13279 14th St.

Membership expanded by Ontario 500 Association

ONTARIO — The Ontario 500 Festival Association is being expanded.

Once limited to 400, the membership will be enlarged this year to 500.

Cost is $45 a year, which includes admission to the California 500 mile race, plus other events which include twin 100-mile qualifying races. In addition, members will receive tickets to a motorcycle race and the Supernationals.

The association is responsible for all festival events which precede the California 500 race.

These include a queen coronation, mayor's reception for drivers, a fashion show, parade, art show, golf tournaments, and for the first time this year the finals of a soap box-type derby.

The association was formed prior to the first 500-mile race to create a festive atmosphere for people visiting from other parts of the nation and also to involve persons from the local area, said Helen Palmeiri, festival coordinator.

"This type of racing was new to this area, and we wanted to give local people an opportunity to participate."

While most members are from the Pomona Valley, they also extend to Indianapolis, Denver, San Diego, Northern California and the Los Angeles area, said Mrs. Palmieri.

Richard Klein, a local industry owner, is the chairman. The association is operated through the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Persons interested in obtaining membership may call Mrs. Palmieri at 984-2458.

Ontarian, 64, ruled suicide

ONTARIO — Truitt Franklin Ballard, 64, of 564 W. D St., died Monday night in his home of what Ontario police said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head.

Ballard was found near death about 8:17 p.m. in the bedroom of his home. He was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital by ambulance where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Police said that they found a Winchester 32-20 caliber revolver on his bed and a note with his "last will and testament" on a nightstand. Ballard, according to police reports, was in ill health and depressed.

117,993 OIA travelers in July

Passenger record broken in month

ONTARIO — It's up, up and away at Ontario International Airport.

For the second month, a new record has been set on the number of air travelers.

The July total of 117,993 eclipsed the previous June record of 112,986.

And based on past records, a new passenger record could be set during August.

"August is traditionally a peak passenger month here," said AL Dubiel, the aiprort's public relations representative. "We expect to go over 125,000 this month." Besides vacation traffic in August, the airport will receive visitors to the California 500 auto race.

At the present rate of increase, the airport could also set a new yearly record.

The airport recorded 1,029,000 passengers during 1972. "We are running 15 per cent ahead of last year, and our yearly total could reach from 1.12 million to 1.15 million," said Dubiel.

One factor in the passenger increase is the number of charter flights being booked here. "The growth has developed over the past month and a half," he added. Those scheduling the charter flights include various religious groups, Boy Scouts and the Denver Broncos, a professional football team.

The passengers are grouped under "non-scheduled" passengers. The total increased from 494 in July 1872 to 3,639 last month.

The largest number of passengers, however, are those on scheduled flights.

For July 1973, these totaled 101,800, compared to 83,420 the same month last year. The monthly total boosted the commercial passengers so far this year to 575,551, compared to 487,120 the same period last year.

Passengers on scheduled commuter flights reached 12,554 last month, a slight increase over the 12,101 in July 1972.

With a passenger increase over July 1973, the airport last month recorded fewer flight operations — 12,595 compared to 13,145. An "operation" is either a take-off or landing.

Last month's flights included air carrier, 3,160; alternates, 3; air taxi, 1,933; military, 900; and general aviation, 6,599.

During July, the airport also handled 456,635 pound of air cargo, a big jump over last July's total of 310,707 pounds.

Last month's cargo — 422,256 pounds of air freight and 34,379 pounds of air express — boosted the total so far this year to over three million pounds.

The doctor comments

If nausea persists, consult doctor soon

DEAR DR. LAMB — We seek your column as soon as the paper is delivered and have read your helpful advice to others. May I ask you a special favor for a mystifying condition that exists at our home? An early reply may ease our worried minds.

It is now two years since my sister (83 years old) was stricken with this illness. Truthfully, I think it is a case of nerves, due to nothing to occupy her mind. She has lived alone for many years like a cocoon, making no friends and being very suspicious of people wanting to mind her business.

She became fearful of living alone. I am her only sister. She had fallen at times, lost the sight of one eye through glaucoma, and was fearful of falling and breaking an arm or leg.

We belong to a very fine medical plan, got her to join, went to the numerous, thorough tests and came through with a clean slate of health. She has continuous nausea, wakes up with it, and it lasts all day, but she never loses her food. The only thing they found was a hiatal hernia. The doctor said at this age it wasn't advisable to operate.

She wasn't satisfied and feared cancer of the stomach, so we took her to another doctor and he too couldn't find anything wrong. I think it is "psychosomatic."

After reading this description, what is your diagnosis and would you suggest we take her to a stomach specialist?

Dear Reader — Persistent nausea is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be caused by nervous tension and a variety of disorders of the digestive tract, including hiatal hernia, and changes in the brain associated with fatty deposits in the arteries.

Individuals past 80 often have poor circulation to the brain. There are so many changes which can occur in the brain and its control of the personality and functions of the entire body, that it is sometimes difficult to pinpoint them. Your sister may be responding less well to stress, and may be having changes in personality because of changes in her arteries.

It would be wise to have your sister checked carefully by a gastroenterologist, a specialist in stomach problems. He could examine the status of her hiatal hernia to see if it is a contributing factor. If she has a fairly persistent one, lying flat at night may be causing her problems. The acid digestive juices may be spilling back into the lower part of her esophagus, causing irritation of the esophagus and nausea.

It is probably true that surgery isn't indicated in her age group. If the hiatal hernia is a problem, careful attention to medical management may help a great deal. This would include elevation of the head of the bed, small meals, neutralization of any excess acid she might have (this may not be a problem in her age group) avoiding anything tight around her waist, such as belts, clothing, girdles, and avoiding stooping. The doctor could advise her regarding the over-all aspects of living patterns to give her maximum benefit.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's new booklet on hiatal hernia, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Hiatal Hernia" booklet.

Bridge

Which king is unguarded?

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In explanation of the bidding, South was Sir Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player. North was Sir Dinadan, the least adept knight and worst bridge player.

Dinadan's bidding was usually sound, so after the opening two-bid Sir Lancelot used the convention just invented by Sir Easley of the ebony wood to check for aces and went right to seven no-trump.

The wily Mordred opened the three of spades. Lancelot checked dummy quickly. He saw that Didadan would have had a reasonable play at seven spades if he would know enough to try a ruffing finesse in clubs, but that seven no-trump could only succeed if both missing kings were in the same hand.

Lancelot ran off six spades and four hearts without any fanfare. His own discards were the three and queen of clubs and seven-eight-nine of diamonds.

Sir Greeth, sitting East, had no discarding problems and Lancelot decided that Mordred did hold both kings. Mordred's discards in order were the 3-6 diamonds, deuce of clubs, 10 of diamonds and finally a slips painful 10 of clubs.

Which king was now unguarded? If Gawaine had been West there would have been no problem. The club king would be all alone. Against Mordred it probably was the reverse so Lancelot led a dimaond to his ace; dropped the king and had won another victory.

Big jump in Phase IV

Cost of feeding family rises 15%

The Agriculture Department said this week the cost of feeding an American family during the second quarter of 1973 was 15 per cent higher than a year ago, but local surveys indicated that the jump was much greater since the beginning of Phase IV.

A daily United Press International survey of 10 supermarkets in 10 cities across the country since the ending of the food price freeze July 18 showed prices in some categories rising more than 60 per cent.

Agriculture Department economists in Washington said the retail cost to feed the statistical family of 3.2 persons rose in the second quarter—a period when meat prices were controlled but before the June 13 freeze on other food—to an annual rate of $1,497, 6 per cent higher than the first quarter and 15 per cent higher than a year ago.

Prices go up

But in the more than three weeks since the freeze was lifted, the UPI survey showed that most prices that could go up, have gone up. Some, such as poultry and eggs, have increased startlingly.

An uncut chicken that was selling for 59 cents a pound in Columbus, Ohio, during the freeze was selling for 99 cents a pound Friday—a jump of 40 cents. Elsewhere between July 18 and Friday, uncut chicken went up 34 cents in Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, 32 cents in Atlanta and New York, 28 cents in Dallas, 24 cents in Chicago, 21 cents in San Francisco and 20 cents in Washington, D.C.

Eggs showed a similar jump, ranging from up 20 cents a dozen in Dallas to 30 cents in New York. Milk was generally up a few cents everywhere, with the biggest changes registered in Dallas, up 22 cents a half gallon; Atlanta, up 20 cents, and Columbus, up 13 cents.

Bread, despite rising prices for wheat futures on the Chicago market which could be passed on to consumers later in the year, fluctuated on the supermarket shelf, being up six cents a loaf in Washington, but down eight cents in San Francisco.

Chicken legs up

A survey by the Chicago office of Consumer Sales showed that prices in the area supermarkets had increased on 28 of 37 major food items during the past week. Chicken legs went up 40 cents a pound in one week and a lamb roast was 33 cents higher. Other increases showed turkey wings up 17 cents a pound, ham ribs and shank up seven cents, romaine lettuce up 22 cents, celery and corn up six cents a pound and butter up four cents.

Stater Bros. to open market in Claremont

CLAREMONT — Stater Bros. officials are preparing the new market at 1055 W. Foothill Blvd. for a three-day grand opening Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

As officials cut the ribbon at 8 a.m. Thursday they will be opening the 48th market in Southern California for the fast-growing grocery chain.

Store manager Jack Walker reported that during the grand opening celebration, refreshments will be served and that everyone will have an opportunity to win items such as a television set, radios, cameras and toys.

Free bags of groceries will be given away to certain customers during the three days, Walker said.

Walker reported that the new market is designed to bring the finest service at popular prices to its customers.

More than 26,000 square feet of floor space will feature the most advanced designs in merchandising equipment and fixtures.

Easier selection of fresh foods is assured with the modern refrigeration equipment in meat, dairy, delicatessen and produce departments, Walker said.

Customer preference in meat is offered in both prepackaged and service meat, he commented. "Quality is offered with USDA choice and especially selected Stater Bros. certified beef," Walker said.

Walker noted that customers also will find complete shopping in the many nonfood departments, such as plumbing, and electrical supplies, greeting cards, garden items, dry goods and notions and a large health and beauty aids department.

GRAND OPENING SET — The Stater Bros. chain will open its 48th market in Southern California Thursday at 1055 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont. The grand opening will be observed Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The supermarket occupies 26,000 square feet of space and will be managed by Jack Walker.

Disabled vets must sign for clothing aid

LOS ANGELES — Eligible service-disabled military retirees not currently on Veterans Administration rolls should apply now to ensure prompt receipt of their annual $150 clothing allowance.

Gordon R. Elliott, director of the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Regional Office, said checks will be mailed on or about Sept. 1, and pointed out that retirees need not waive any portion of military retirement pay to qualify.

Annual clothing allowances are authorized under Public Law 92-328 for service-disabled veterans whose prosthetic or orthopedic devices (artificial limbs, braces, wheelchairs, etc.) tend to wear out or tear clothing.

Elliott explained that military retirees should take action regarding the clothing allowances because the VA does not maintain current records on retirees who elect military retirement pay in lieu of VA compensation. This means retirees must file annual claims for the benefit, he stressed.

Eligible vetersns (including retirees) on the agency's compensation rolls get annual allowances automatically after initial application.

Claremont youth panel to convene

CLAREMONT — Continued discussion on alcohol at Taylor Hall, fair employment practices for youth, and Brotherhood U.S.A. are items on the agenda for the Youth Commission meeting tonight at 7:30.

At its Aug. 1 meeting, the commission unanimously voted against the drinking of alcohol at Taylor Hall because of the community buildings proximity to the Claremont High School campus.

Youth Commission Chairman Chris Hammond had reported that a local ice cream store was forcing youth workers to work two hours overtime without pay to clean up, and that the city attorney, the employes and employers would be contacted.

Hammond will report on the students who are attending Brotherhood U.S.A. at Camp de Benneville Pines north of Redlands.

Masonic Home for Children to be dedicated

COVINA — A ceremony dedicating the new Masonic Home for Children here will be held Saturday at 2 p.m.

Highlight of the dedication ceremony will be the installation of a cornerstone by William H. Price, grand master of Masons in California and Hawaii.

The newly constructed home is built on the same grounds where the Masons first opened the home in 1915.

Located at 20336 E. Badillo St., the home presently serves as a home for 58 children and has served over 1,750 since it first opened its doors.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Passenger pigeons once were regarded as America's most numerous birds, flying in flocks estimated at between one and two billion. The species became extinct in 1914, when the last specimen died at the Cincinnati Zoo. The World Almanac notes that the passenger pigeon's swift decline is attributed to disease, destruction of its food supply and its ruthless, unrestricted slaughter by man.

He has thing against the tall person

Dear Walt: I have come to suspect that I am prejudiced towards people who are taller than I am. Recently I realized that I don't have one single friend who is over 5'8", and that I don't have one person I really dislike who is under my height of 5'7". Is this a common prejudice? — J.J.

Dear J.J.: It's rather common. Most of us unconsciously feel we can handle folks of our own height or lower, while taller people seem to have an unfair advantage over us. In actual fact this frequently isn't true, but nonetheless the feeling remains, and so we steel ourselves to do battle with the biggies.

When in all likelihood the battle remains unfought, the tension we've accumulated can turn into quite unreasonable "hatred" for the tall person. Perhaps, now that you've realized your prejudice for yourself, you'll be more ready to realistically measure the validity of future height prejudice. — Walt

Dear Ele: This boy gave me a psychological test where he told a story, and I completed blanks he left in it. Because of this he told everyone that I am very sexually experienced. This is not true, although I have read a lot about sex. What should I do? — Mimi.

Dear Mimi: When you hear about the sex researcher's evaluation secondhand, just laugh out loud at how much the guy could be taken in by book learning. The fact that you're not in a range or super defensive, should underscore the nonvalidity of his "study." — Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: Have you ever heard of anyone being addicted to tea? I think my mother is and I'm worried that it might hurt her health. She drinks upwards of 20 cups a day and really freaks out when we run out of the stuff. She is a very nervous person and gets upset very easily. Could these be signs of a tea-addict? (This is not a joke.) — Andy

Dear Andy: According to some researchers, tea packs more caffeine than coffee. If mom is supertwitchy, urge her to see the family MD for a checkup. If you think she won't mention the tea consumption herself, keep an accurate record of her daily quota for a week and phone in the information to the doc.

After seeing her score, he may decide to order mom to replace tea with orange juice, etc. for a few weeks to see if her nerves jangle less. — Ele

Heat hinders N. Y. firemen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fire erupted in a six-story brick apartment building Sunday, forcing all 375 residents to evacuate. Twelve firemen were overcome by smoke and treated at local hospital.

The fire started in a kitchen stove.

"It was just so blazing hot," said Thomas Dregan, one of the evacuated residents. "Just standing there a hundred yards or so away from the fire I felt like I was on fire myself. The smoke was so black and so thick you couldn't see a thing, and it was almost impossible to

Fashion seers say the big, bushy bow tie is the kind that's tops with males who are trendsetters. Despite what's said, that type of tie doesn't seem to be leading any fashion parade. Takes a lot of courage to wear?

Don't jump off the high platform shoes yet, says the American Footwear Institute. There's a lot of happy hoofing left there, especially for the young, who still have their hearts set on the high-rise soles.

Women show concern

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's young women show the usual concerns about clothes, boys, and careers after college.

But they show also deep concern with Watergate and President Nixon, today's more permissive morality, our ecology, and our world involvement to name a few.

They also talk in retrospect about their lives, even though they are just getting out of their teens.

These are some of the topics that emerged from a rap session with eight college women—juniors and seniors—during their week-long visit to New York recently.

The trip, including glamour trappings like the theater and getting hair and makeup done at a famous Fifth Avenue salon, was part of their reward in a Cover Girl contest now in its fourth year.

All also won scholarships.

The sponsor of the annual competition is Masland Duraleather of Philadelphia, producer of upholstery vinyls. Each year, the manufacturer chooses 150 college girls to represent it at major furniture markets and help establish communications between the home furnishings industry and today's youth. The eight finalists were drawn from the 150.

This year's national scholarship winner of $2,000 was Mary Anne Shirley of Macon, Ga., a senior at Agnes Scott College, Atlanta.

Regional winners of $1,000 scholarships each were:

Chrissa Cutrona of Wilmington, Del., senior at High Point, N.C. College; Linda Dyson of Richardson, Tex., a junior at North Texas State University; Kathleen Heckler of Palo Alto, Calif., a junior at Foothill Junior College, Palo Alto; Joyce Jakobczak of Chicago, senior at the University of Illinois; Deborah Misenheimer of Rockwell, N..C, a junior at Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, N.C., Denise Muller of Massapequa, N.Y, senior at Dowling College, Oakdale, N.Y.; and Sue Williams of Long Beach, Calif., senior at Long Beach City College.

Almost all have definite career aims from teaching the mentally retarded to fashion buying to advertising.

Two of the eight are engaged, however, and a third is dating steadily. One definitely was opposed to going "steady" — "I just want to give everyone a chance," she said with a laugh.

Their reactions were mixed on President Nixon's future actions because of the Watergate burglary.

"Though I believe the President's actions were disgraceful, to resign might throw the country into chaos . . .," said Miss Shirley.

"At this point, no (to resignation)," said Miss Cutrona. "I still must say President Nixon has done a lot for the U.S. in his own political way."

"Not yet (to resignation)," said Miss Dyson, "though he needs to appear and testify now . . ."

"Yes (to resignation), said Miss Jakobczak. "The whole Nixon 'reign' has been a sham to the American Public . . ."

Of today's liberalization of moral codes including condoning of couples living together without marriage contract, the consensus was that the matter has to be an individual decision but that it takes a lot of emotional stability to go that route.

Some didn't find this life style was all that widely practiced anyway.

To the question, what are young people's major concerns today, the answers ranged thusly. Women's liberation, job opportunities, "What other people think...what the group is doing", (because) young people have developed a greater consciousness of people all over the world...(their concerns) are in politics, ecology, birth control"..."

One thing that struck me was their already looking to the past. As one of the seniors expressed it: "I wish that I had never wished that I was 16."

LET'S ASK THE COOK by Nan Wiley

I hope you can help me. A long time ago I had a recipe for "shredded wheat bread," which I have lost.

Louise C. Jackson,
Buellton, Calif.

It took a little while, but we finally ran it down. I have never made any, but it sounds so good I am going to give it a try as soon as time permits. You will need two packages dry yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 cups boiling water, four regular-sized shredded wheat biscuits rolled to fine crumbs (about 1 1-3 cups), 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon salt, 1-3 cup honey, and 5 to 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Dissolve the yeast in the warm water. Add 1 teaspoon sugar and set aside and let stand until spongy. Pour boiling water over the shredded wheat crumbs, add butter, honey and the rest of the sugar. Let stand until lukewarm, then stir in the yeast.

Gradually add flour and salt mixing to a smooth dough. Knead lightly on a floured board until smooth and satiny. Shape into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover. Let rise in a warm place until double in bulk.

Knead down and divide in half. Shape each in greased bread pans. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Bake in a preheated hot (425 degrees) oven 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake for another 30 minutes. Brush with melted shortening before removing from pans.

Turn out the loaves to cook on a rack before slicing. Speaking of that detail, I am the world's worst manual bread slicer. I start out so carefully and evenly but somehow the last one-fourth of the loaf is lop-sided. Now I have, at long last, an electric slicer. I had always considered that something of a luxury, but now I don't know how I got along without it all this time.

Mine is the only one that is really a right-handed slicer. All the others are left-handers because they were modeled after some of the old hand slicers.

Of course, you can slice lots of other things; roasts, ham, vegetables, even frozen foods, from paper-thin to he-man thickness. There is a special part to use when you get down to the end pieces of a loaf or roast so you don't slice your fingers along with the meat.

My legal roommate likes ham sliced thick for sandwiches. I like it thin and several layers piled on. Now we're both happy with just a slight, easy adjustment of the slicer. It really does a beautiful job!

HAVE YOU TRIED sourdough bread yet? Nan Wiley gives you her recipe for sourdough starter plus some delicious bread recipes, including whole wheat bread, in her booklet "Sourdough and Other Breads." For your copy send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope with your request for it to Nan Wiley in care of Progress-Moines, Iowa. 50304.

Wendy Ward model program scheduled

Miss Marilyn Sue Pick, former Miss Arcadia Rose Princess, has been named director of Montgomery Ward's Wendy Ward Model and Charm Program and fashion coordinator for the company's store in Covina.

The program has four major groups. They are: model teen classes, stressing the interest and lifestyles of junior and senior high school girls; Crossroads to Charm, a course for girls 8-11 years of age; Sugar and Spice, a charm and manners course for girls and boys 4-7 years of age; and a women's course for those 18 and over.

The first three will include a graduation fashion show.

Miss Pick's credentials include an Associate in Arts degree in fashion coordinating and graduation from Barbizon School of Modeling. She has been modeling professionally for Parkison Promotions.

Miss Pick began her career with the Wendy Ward program.

The model teen course is a six-week program covering modeling, posture, poise, grooming, skin care, hair-styling, figure control and wardrobe coordination. Crossroads to Charm is designed to guide preteens through the transitional years. The elements of etiquette, table manners, wardrobe and nail and hair care are covered. The course has the approval of the Girl Scouts of America for a proficiency badge.

The Model Teen and Crossroads courses are $15, while Sugar and Spice has an enrollment fee of $12.50.

The September classes are filling rapidly and information on the course may be obtained by calling Wendy Ward, 213-966-7411.

Ask Dr. Brothers

What's attraction?

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 44-year-old woman and I've been married three times, each time, to an alcoholic. My first husband died and I saw him go through hell because of his alcoholism. The last thing I needed was another alcoholic husband. But, wouldn't you know, that's exactly what I walked into. After two years of a bad marriage, I divorced him and married a year later. I thought this man did not have a drinking problem, but it seems that he does.

I refuse to believe that I drive these men to drink. I'm not that unusual as a woman, or as a wife. In fact, I've always enjoyed a few drinks myself, but that doesn't mean I'm a drunk. I stop when I've had enough; the men in my life don't seem to know what the word "enough" means. They all end up the same way, unable to take care of themselves either mentally or physically. I love my present husband in spite of his problem and I don't want to divorce him. I also don't want to lose him through alcohol. Do you have any suggestions? —H. S.

Dear H. S.: While it's probably quite impossible "to drive" anyone to drink if they're not already so inclined, you have, either consciously or unconsciously, selected men with drinking problems of a major nature.

Social worker John Rimmer and psychiatrist George Winokur of the University of Iowa discovered through research that many alcoholics often seem to marry spouses whose backgrounds include an unhealthy combination of alcoholism, suicide and depression. Both wives and husbands of alcoholics are often disturbed people themselves. They may marry alcoholics because they have an unusually strong need for security. You would think the alcoholic would be the last person capable of guaranteeing security, but the more dependent a person becomes, the less apt he or she is to leave. The alcoholic is an extremely dependent person and the wives and husbands of alcoholics may unknowingly feed these dependency needs. A wife or husband may complain about the spouse's drinking habits, but as long as the spouse is incapicatated by alcohol, he or she is like a needy child who must be taken care of.

You say that all of the three men you selected to marry ended up in the same way, "unable to take care of themselves either mentally or physically." This means that in all cases you had to carry all the responsibility; it also means that you became the person in power. Some people enjoy taking care of others because it gives them a sense of power and it also gives them an easy excuse or cover for their own shortcomings. This may not apply in your case, but your pattern of marrying alcoholics means that you must be attracted to something in them that you do not see in nonalcoholic men.

Since you're anxious to save your marriage, it's important to find immediate help for your husband. The National Council on Alcoholism could provide information that would help both of you understand the problem of alcohol. They might well refer your husband to a local group of Alcoholics Anonymous. If you contact your local chapter, they will probably refer you to Al-Anon, an organization especially designed to help those living with alcoholics. In this group you will find parents, children, and spouses of alcoholics who all share their common problems and work together to help solve them. This would help you to gain insight into your own problems as well as those of your husband.

Student films offered

This year the outstanding award-winning films of the Broadway's Cinemedia IV student film festival offer sensitive, humorous, educational and provocative entertainment.

The films will be shown in this area Aug. 21 at 8 p.m. at Cinema I Theater, 4955 S. Plaza, Montclair.

Cinemedia IV's first prize of $1,000 went to Lewis Hall, 23, of UCLA for his animated color film, "Anti-Matter." He was also awarded $250 for the best animation and an additional $250 for the best script.

The film deals with the highly educational and scientific aspects of matter and anti-matter. Through the use of animation, Hall has presented material in a lighthearted and enjoyable manner.

Robert Zemeckis, second place winner, received $500 for his absurd comedy, "A Field of Honor." He is a recent graduate of USC's cinema department and won an additional $250 for the best score award.

"Summer Train," presented by Robert Stitzel, and Gilbert Bettman's "Dying Generations" won third places.

Tickets for the film presentations will be available in the University Shop, Junior World and Women's Sportswear departments at the Montclair Plaza Broadway Store.

Puerto Rican status question a perennial problem for U.S.

SAN JUAN, P.R (UPI) — The two things that can always be relied on this Caribbean island are the trade winds and the dispute over Puerto Rico's relationship with the United States.

And in recent years, it has begun to appear that the Puerto Rican status question will also become a perennial one in the United Nations.

The latest development in the dispute, which began in 1898 when the United States took over the island from Spain after defeating that nation in the Spanish-American War, is the creation of a new "ad hoc" committee.

In Puerto Rico, the term "ad hoc" committee is synonymous with "status juggling," and has become so common in both languages that none of the local mass media even bother to explain what it literally means.

While Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, leader of the pro Commonwealth faction, and President Nixon are deciding who will serve on the latest committee, the United Nations decolonization committee, at Cuba's instigation, is set for another round in the debate over whether Puerto Rico's 2.7 million people are under the colonial heel of the United States, and what to do about it if they are.

Wants free hand

The latest "ad hoc" committee will consider what is called here the "culmination of Commonwealth," which has come to mean freeing the island from the federal laws its doesn't like, while leaving it under the jurisdiction of the federal laws it does like.

For example, the present Puerto Rican government likes being within the U.S. tariff zone, but it doesn't like having to comply with the coastwise shipping laws that require Puerto Rico to use costly U.S. bottoms to ship its goods back and forth from the U.S. mainland.

It likes having the U.S. Social Security umbrella, but doesn't want to institute U.S. minimum wages or at least island employers don't.

Puerto Rico apparently would like to be able to vote for the U.S. President and Vice President, but if that would mean having to pay U.S. income taxes—forget it.

At least, those are the positions of the government Popular Democratic Party, which favors permanently maintaining the Commonwealth status.

There are two other major political factions on the island, each with the "raison d'etre" of changing the Commonwealth status. One favors full U.S. statehood. The other, considerably smaller, wants an independent republic.

No agreement

The statehooders, who were in power from 1968 to 1972, and the "independentistas," who elected members to the legislature last year for the first time in 12 years, don't agree among themselves any more than the Commonwealth advocates do.

The Puerto Rican Independence Party, largest by far of the pro-independence groups, is in the midst of an internal dispute that is splitting it to pieces.

And the pro-statehood New Progressive Party of former Gov. Luis A. Ferre keeps losing its bright young liberals while its top leadership remains scarcely on speaking terms.

The concept of the "ad hoc" committees emerged from a 1967 plebiscite when a majority of Puerto Ricans voted, to no one's surprise, to maintain the Commonwealth status. The plebiscite law provided that "ad hoc" committees, named by the governor and the President, would be created to propose improvements in the Commonwealth relationship, established in 1952.

The pro-Commonwealth faction, however, lost power the following year and never had a chance to "culminate" the Commonwealth.

The first "ad hoc" committee was established by Ferre to study the single question of the presidential vote, but after it recommended a referendum on the question, the pro-Commonwealth Senate never got around to passing the necessary legislation stage the vote.

The new ad hoc committee should have no such problems, since it will be permitted to study whatever aspect of status is wishes and can continue working as long as it pleases.

Meanwhile, the independentistas, having converted a proposed superport for the island into a "status" question, were once again taking their contention that the island is an exploited colony to the United Nations, where they have found a ready ally in Cuba.

But, while findings of the decolinization committee on the Puerto Rican question have great local interest, they are not binding on anyone, and are generally ignored by the U.S. government and the U.S. people.

Well-heeled aren't buying French shoes

PARIS (UPI) — The world monetary mess has claimed a victim in France—deluxe high fashion shoes.

The French Footwear Federation said today that some makers of the costly shoes gracing luxury shops on Fifth Avenue and other fashion centers are in trouble.

One reason, shoe industry officials said, is that the oncerich U.S. market can no longer can afford to buy many highpriced French imports with devalued dollars.

Moreover, the delicate shoes worn in the high fashion salon collections are running up against competition from Italian shoes.

The Italian lira is as shaky as the dollar, which means Italian exports cost no more to Americans, and Italian production costs much less than French.

In the town of Romans, for centuries the center of deluxe French shoe-making, the Arnoux Salamander factory announced it is closing.

Another factory in the town, Seducta-Charles Jourdan, which is 75 per cent owned by the American firm Genesco, laid off 78 of its 1,300 workers. Other Jourdan employees went on strike, prompting national headlines of the crisis.

"The deluxe market mainly is in the dollar zone and it is troubled because of the dollar devaluation and the floating Italian lira," said Bernard Calaque, director of the economics department of the French Footwear Federation.

"The prices of French deluxe shoes now are very high for U.S. importers," he said. "There as been at least a 25 per cent drop in deluxe shoe orders in France."

The deluxe shoe industry, about 20 factories, is only one per cent of France's entire shoe industry but it is the cornerstone and pace setter.

A third headache for the French elegant shoe market—and all shoe makers—is the price of leather. Officials said the price soared 100 per cent in 1972.

Other shoe industry sources said Western shoe producers also faced stiff competition from Communist and underdevelopped countries that now developed countries that now export more and more shoes.

13th seaman found guilty for disobeying order

MANILA (UPI) — The 13th crewmember of the USS Ogden charged with disobeying orders while on a minesweeping operation of North Vietnam last March was found guilty as charged today and sentenced to 75 days confinement at hard labor, U.S. Navy officials reported.

Aviation Boatswains Mate H2 Raymond Swanson, 22, of Hastings, Minn., was also demoted to Airman and fined $150 a month for four months.

Swanson was found guilty of violation of Article 86 of the U.S. military code for failure to go to his appointed place of duty, Article 90, wilful disobedience of a lawful command of a superior commissioned officer, and Article 91, wilful disobedience of a lawful command of a superior Petty Officer.

A five-man special court martial headed by Cmdr. Melbourne P. King pronounced sentence on Swanson at the U.S. Subic Bay naval base, 50 miles northwest of Manila.

Swanson had waived his right to trial by jury, elected to be tried by a military judge only and pleaded not guilty.

He is now confined at the Subic Bay naval station correctional center pending review of the courtmartial proceedings by Navy Capt. Robert M. Whiteman Jr., naval station commanding officer, who is also the convening authority.

Swanson was the last of 13 USS Ogden crewmembers facing disobedience charges to be sentenced. The 12 others had either pleaded guilty or had been found guilty and sentenced to confinement for varying periods —from one month to four and a half months.

At last one of the 13, Airman Gerry L. Comier, 20, of Port Neches, Tex., has been released after serving 30 days of his 45 day sentence. The Subic Bay naval station information office could not immediately say whether the 11 others had been released.

U.S. bombs fell 12 years in Indochina

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States slipped into the Indochina air war unnoticed almost 12 years ago when the first bomb dropped by an American pilot fell in total secrecy from a plane with South Vietnamese markings.

What began with a few bombs from a propellor-driven T28 Trojan, ended with B52 bombers pummelling Cambodia one last time Tuesday night.

The first American-released a bomb fell over Indochina on the day after Christmas, 1961.

At that time, the Americans were officially not bombing but merely training South Vietnamese pilots. But the fact was that U. S. pilots were doing the bombing, flying aircraft with South Vietnamese markings and always carrying a South Vietnamese "trainee."

This was reported in the press and, like the "secret" bombing of Cambodia in 1969 and early 1970 and the "secret" ground raids into Laos, it was secret only in the sense that it was not officially admitted when it began.

The regular bombing of Laos and South Vietnam began late in 1964, the continuous bombing of North Vietnam in February, 1965, and the bombing of Cambodia in March, 1969.

The war produced only five American aces because there was very little dogfighting involved in what was mostly a bombing operation. The bombing was not very dramatic either because much of the tonnage was dropped from above the clouds six miles high by B52 pilots who did not see what they were bombing or hear the bombs explode.

In World War II, most of the bombing was "strategic," aimed at industries and cities. But in the Indochina war the bulk of it was "interdiction," aimed at cutting supply routes by pounding the jungle. The plan was to strangle the enemy by denying him the resources needed to fight.

The problem was that the other side fought a simple war and had simple needs.

Although air power undoubtedly destroyed vast quantities of supplies, North Vietnam — with support from its allies — could always pour more down the funnel. When they needed 10,000 tons of supplies, they might send 100,000 into the Ho Chi Minh trail. The United States might destroy 90,000 tons but the Communists would still have their basics.

The U. S. air effort in Indochina vastly eclipsed that of World War II. In that conflict, the allies dropped 3.3 million tons of bombs including 160,000 tons on Japan and 1.4 million tons on Germany.

In the Vietnam war, the United States battered enemy-controlled areas of South Vietnam four times as hard as they did North Vietnam, twice as much as Nazi Germany and 20 times more than Japan.

The United States dropped 6.6 million tons of bombs on Indochina, including 3.1 million tons on South Vietnam, 2.1 million tons on Laos, 840,000 tons on North Vietnam and 510,000 tons on Cambodia. Almost half the Cambodia tonnage was dropped in the last six months.

The United States lost 3,705 fixed wing planes and 4,867 helicopters from both combat and non-combat causes in Indochina. The lost aircraft cost roughly $10 billion and bombs, fuel and other operational costs came to about $20 billion.

Space tourists have pretty view

HOUSTON (UPI) — A space age tourist had a highly unusual view of Mt. Shasta early Tuesday just as dawn was breaking on the 14,162 foot high peak.

"We're just coming over the West Coast and the sun's just coming up," Skylab 2 astronaut Jack Lousma said from his vantage point, 270 miles up in earth orbit.

"The prettiest thing is the sun is just starting to shine on the side of Mt. Shasta, and the rest of the area around it is still in twilight."

Drought remains threat to China's grain harvest

HONG KONG (UPI) — A few weeks ago, Premier Chou Enlai slipped out of Peking and attended a meeting 200 miles to the south concerning China's problems with drought.

The meeting in Shihchiachuang was not widely publicized, and Chou's presence there was never announced. But diplomatic sources based in Peking said he was there.

They also said he apparently spoke "with some gravity" about the serious situation on the farm front in the light of threatened new "natural disasters" this year.

Chou's presence underscored the fact that China's agriculture, which was seriously affected by drought last year, still is in trouble.

There is no threat of famine. Even if there were a poor grain harvest this year, nobody in China is likely to go hungry.

The pinch will be felt in other ways. Since China depends so much on agricultural production for capital accumulation, another poor crop year could mean a slowdown, if not a significant cutback, in capital construction plans.

Then, too, the Chinese will have to dip deeper into their foreign exchange holdings to purchase more grain from abroad.

Last year, large areas of north China experienced what some official Chinese reports called the worst drought of this century. The grain harvest was down from 1971's claimed record yield of 246 million tons. Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien said the drop was a "mere two million tons." Analysts outside China put the decline at four million tons or more.

If there is another year without an increase in production, the impact could be great. The implications of a second successive poor crop year become much more apparent when you consider that China will have acquired at least another 30 million more mouths to feed since 1971—and without an increase in grain production.

The Chinese have been purchasing grain abroad consistently for more than a dozen years. This has served two main purposes. The first was to meet shortages at home or build up reserves. The second was to enable China to sell higher-priced rice abroad to earn foreign exchange and use the cheaper wheat as a supplement or substitute at home.

This year the Chinese already have hedged against the possibility of another poor grain harvest. In March and April they apparently purchased, through third parties, an additional two million tons of wheat and a million tons of corn from the United States.

Agricultural analysts here said the purchase also may have been a hedge against prices, which have risen sharply since the purchase. But the unavoidable fact is that the country still is threatened by drought and flood in many important grain-producing areas. A hedge against this is wise in view of the worldwide grain shortage.

Here is a sampling of recent official reports on flood and drought in China during the late spring and early summer:

—In mid-June, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said a crash program launched after last year's crop decline had resulted in completion of 1.1 million irrigation projects and sinking of 231,000 pump wells beween October, 1972, and April, 1973.

—Hopei province, an important wheat and cotton producing region where Shihchiachung is located, experienced serious drought last year and is having a similar drought this year.

—Kirin province, the leading producer of soybeans and also a major producer of rice, maize and millet, is undergoing a drought in the west; excessive rainfall in the east also adversely affected its crops.

—Liaoning province, mainly a producer of maize, was a major center of sink well activity. "Conspicious achievements have been made by the cadres and commune members in the rural areas of Liaoning province in sinking wells and exploring underground water resources to combat drought," NCNA said.

There were similar reports about all other Chinese provinces, territories and regions, including Inner Mongolia.

Bay Area firemen, police get raises

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors boosted the pay for policemen, firemen and Municipal Railway employes.

Veteran policemen and firemen will get $1,254 a month instead of $1,190 while transit employes will be paid $5.54 hourly instead of $5.32.

Hawk with injured wing will fly again

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Will a bird, in this case a hawk, ever be able to fly again if it has a metal rod put in its broken wing? —M. C.

Dear M. C.: The veterinarian uses the same type of stainless steel pin to repair a bird's fractured wing as he would on a dog or cat with a similar fracture. The wing is immobilized with a leather "braille" which becomes a cast during the weeks the wing is healing. Antibiotics to prevent infections and frequently cortisone to prevent arthritis in the immobilzed wing are also given during this period. Once the bones have knit, the pin is removed. If it were not removed the bird would be unable to fly because the added weight in the one wing would unbalance him. An excellent percentage of the large birds whose wings are repaired in this manner are able to fly once again.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are going to be gone for a month's vacation and will be leaving Ramona, our rat, with a friend. What's the simplest thing they can feed Ramona because they don't want to spend the time with her that we do? They consider her just a rat, of course. — L. Y.

Dear L. Y.: Setting her up with a self-waterer which still should be cleaned at least every other day and a self-feeder supplied with pellet-sized dog food would be the simplest solution. Dog food is an excellent diet for a rat and far simpler than most.

DEAR DR. MILLER: There is no way our dog, when he goes out to do his busines, can get to wherever he is going going to do whatever business he is going to do without walking on some hot pavement. We usually soak his feet in cold water before he leaves and I am sure that helps some, but is there something that would help more? I know sometimes his feet are very tender and I am sure that's the reason—L. O.

Dear O. L.: If your dog can arrange to transact most of his business in the carly morning and late evening hours he will find the going cooler. During the day, the best bet would be to provide him with properly fitted open-toed sandals. (Actually, they are called boots. Besure they are leather, not plastic.)

Beef shortage sparks cattle rustling problem

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — One of the major problems of the California cattleman in the old West—rustling—has been rekindled by the current scarcity of beef and predictions of giant retail price jumps.

"The old vigilante days we don't want to start again," said Will Gill, a major rancher in Central California with headquarters in Madera.

"But you're talking now about a $600 cow, a $300 calf, and it might get to that point."

In the past three months, Gill has experienced several losses.

"In one field with 500 cows, 23 turned up missing. In another field with 225 head, three were missing. In another field with 120, two were not there," Gill said.

"It's as bad as I've seen it in 10 years experience, other than a little flurry every once in awhile," said Hans Van Ness, head of the Food and Agriculture Department's Livestock Identification Bureau.

Very serious

"I think it's very serious," said state agriculture director C. B. Christensen. "We're doing everything we can to protect these people and alert local enforcement agencies."

California ranks seventh in the nation with 4.7 million head of cattle. The industry meant $1.2 billion to the state last year.

Van Ness, who said some ranchers may be forced to hire "persons with professional peace officer qualifications to gurd their herds," listed 124 reported "roadside slaughters" of cattle in the first six months of this year, a 77 per cent jump over 1972.

The total number of lost, strayed or stolen cattle in the state the first half of 1973 was 2,701, a 10 per cent jump over 1972. Arrests for the six month period were 63, compared to 62 for all of 1972.

Have a problem

"Whenever you see a 77 per cent jump you know you have a problem. Rustling always goes parallel with scarcity of beef and high prices," Christensen said.

Christensen, a lifelong cattleman with 2,000 head on his Modoc County ranch, has predicted beef prices will increase 25 per cent when the Sept. 12 price freeze ends.

The state's top agriculture official also disclosed his department had several "real serious cases" of rustling under investigation that were not included in the latest figures.

"We have one with reported losses as high as 400 head in Fresno County and another in the northern part of the state where 69 head are missing. These have to be confirmed but it amounts to a tremendous loss," Christensen said.

Straight popular vote

Way to test confidence in president proposed

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It has been said that if the Watergate had been a building on the banks of the Thames instead of the Potomac, the prime minister of England would be out looking for work.

It does seem plausible that a scandal of Watergate's messiness could topple the government of a country whose chief executive must be prepared daily to answer for his administration's policies and deeds and who can be dismissed instantly if his answers do not satisfy a majority of the Parliament.

The usual purpose of mentioning the likely impact of a Watergate type scandal on a parliamentary government is to dramatize its gravity rather than to suggest that the United States dump its federal system. Some political scientists might be ready to argue for such a switch, but the American electorate probably would regard it in the same light as a proposal to abandon baseball in favor of cricket.

No accountability

Still, the comparison does highlight the fact that there is no way to require an American President to account for his actions and no way within the Constitution to let the people decide whether the President should be dismissed before expiration of his term.

Of course, there is impeachment. But in that process Congress is both the plaintiff and the jury, and conviction forever banishes the defendant from public office. In parliamentary countries, the legislature also can give the chief executive his walking papers, but he can take his case to the country and obtain judgment from the people in the elections that follow the fall of his administration.

Impeachment is the H-bomb of the American political system, a weapon perhaps feared as much by its possessors as its potential victims. Americans take some pride that no President has been removed from office for "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

One member of Congress, Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., regards impeachment as "virtually inoperative." She believes the requirement that actual crimes be alleged "does not lend itself to resolving conflicts which arise when a President subverts the constitutional role of Congress or trespasses upon the rights of the people."

Furthermore, she says, impeachment may remove a President but leave a vice president and an administration devoted to his policies and methods.

Proposes amendment

So Mrs. Green has proposed a constitutional amendment calling for an adaptation of the parliamentary system of requiring a chief executive to undergo a test of confidence. Her proposal would not replace impeachment.

The amendment would permit Congress, by two thirds votes of both House and Senate —upon finding that the President had failed to execute the laws faithfully, exceeded his powers or trespassed upon the rights of citizens —to order a special election within 90 days to fill the offices of President and vice president for the remainder of the current term.

The decision would be on the basis of a straight popular vote. The incumbent President and vice president, if nominated by their party, would be eligible to run in the special election to complete their original term.

Referring to both the Vietnam war and the Watergate affair as the results of "nearly unlimited, unchecked power" residing in the presidency, Mrs. Green said: "There are great lessons to be learned from these tragedies. But if we don't take heed, if we allow both to pass in quiet resignation, the sorrow and misfortune endured by so many will indeed have been in vain."

Geologists estimate there are more than 8 billion tons of iron ore reserves in northern Alabama.

The black bar is the only big game animal originally found in all 48 states of the continental United States.

New scientific tool gives answers to ancient questions

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Atomic absorption spectl rophotometry (AAS) is a new scientific tool providing researchers answers to questions which have puzzled them for generations.

An economist solves the question of what caused widespread inflation in 16th Century Europe. A historian tracks down the anccient silver mines of Persia.

A strand of Martha Washington's hair is studied to determine the quality of the environment in her time. A murder car is identified by the tiny fragments of metal found in a few drops of oil leaked at the scene.

Lead poisoning

City children don't cry so much when blood samples are taken to test for lead poisoning.

Varian Associates, one of the leading makers of exotic research tools, has announced development of the carbon rod atomizer, which makes atomic absorption spectrophotometry much easier.

Previously, a sample being analyzed had to be vaporized in a flame. A significant amount of the material was destroyed in the process. The new atomizer uses electrical resistance to vaporize the sample. Varian says this improves the sensitivity, eliminates the need for elaborate preparation, and permits the use of a very small sample.

The spectrophotometer determines what elements are in a material, and the proportion of each element. It is extremely sensitive—able to detect the presence of an element that makes up only one billionth of the sample.

Inflation hit

In the 16th Century, Western Europe was swept by dramatic inflation. Economic historians speculated that it was caused by great quantities of silver money coined from Spain's Brazilian silver mines.

Spectrophotometry enabled Dr. Adon Gordus of the University of Michigan to determine that very little Brazilian silver was coined into money in Europe. He tested many coins of the period and found they did not have the same proportion of impurity as was found in Brazilia nsilver.

With the new carbon rod atomizer, Gordus did not have to destroy any of the historic coins. He simply rubbed the edge of the test coins with a piece of quartz. The tiny amount of metal left on the quartz was enough to make accurate measurements of the ingredients.

Measures proportion

Because it can measure the precise proportion of elements in a sample, the spectrophotometer is used to authenticate art by comparing the elements in the art work with material related to where it is supposed to have originated.

Although Iranian geologists report there is no silver in Iran, Arabic manuscripts from the 11th Century refer to silver mines. Researchers plan to study samples of soil in the country and believe they can quickly get within 20 miles of the ancient mines.

Spectrophotometry has aided crime solving.. Recently, California detectives investigating a murder found a small oil leak at the site. They learned that the killer had driven off in a late-model Datsun. A driver of a 1971 Datsun became the prime suspect and was arrested, but there was some suspicion of another man who owned a 1972 Datsun.

Chemists found that both cars used the same brand of oil as was found at the murder scene. But when they analyzed the oil with the spectrophotometer they found that the oil in the car of the man who had been arrested contained significant traces of aluminum and more lead than was in the oil leaked at the crime scene. The 1972 Datsun matched the oil leak better, so the first suspect was released and the second man indicted.

Mass killers develop rare ability to ignore guilt, says psychologist

HOUSTON (UPI) — A clinical psychologist states mass murderers often rationalize their actions and avoid all guilt feelings so that one murder can quickly lead to a long series of killings.

"Conscience or feelings of guilt are almost nonexistent (among mass murderers)," said Dr. Jerry Brown of the Baylor College of Medicine. "They almost rarely have consciences and they have developed ways of ignoring or alleviating guilt feelings."

Brown, who often works with police concerning the psychology of criminals, said the actions of mass murders and other perverted criminals are not really unlike less repugnant acts committed by "normal" people.

"I think everyone has the ability to rationalize or compartmentalize activities which may be considered repulsive or abhorrent to a large segment of society," he said. "The old saying that "when you've done it once or twice, the rest come easy' is true."

Brown said there were differing theories on the motivation for mass murders.

"You can't group mass murders or the motivation into one kind of category," he said.

13 million Africans threatened by famine

GENEVA (UPI)—There are now 13 million persons in Africa threatened by famine because of drought, the League of Red Cross Societies said this week.

Half of these people are children less than 15 years old, the League said in launching a new worldwide appeal for aid.

The revised figure of those threatened in the sub-Sahara, or Sahelian, zone is double that of earlier estimates, it said.

Of a total of 24 million persons in the six countries of the Sahelian zone, 12 million are "severely affected" by the drought.

To these are added at least one million drought victims in Ethiopia, which is not actually part of the zone.

"Although the specialized assistance of the Red Cross is thought to be of critical importance in this emergency situation, only governments with the help of the United Nations specialized agencies can hope to find a satisfactory, long-term solution to the problems and the human suffering caused by the drought," the League said.

Various countries

The League gave the following country-by-country figures:

—Chad: of a total population of 3.7 million, two million are affected. Of these, 300,000 are children and 100,000 persons are in immediate danger. Eighty per cent of livestock has been lost.

—Mali: With a population of five million, as many as four million are affected. 95 per cent of the herds of nomadic people have died.

—Mauritania: with 1.2 million inhabitants, the country has at east one million of its population affected. 80 per cent of livestock has died.

—Niger: Of the 4.5 million population, 1.5 million, or one third, need immediate assistance. One half of these 750-000, are children.

Million children

—Senegal: 2.5 million people are threatened, including one million children from one to 15 years old.

—Upper Volta-: Of 5.5 million inhabitants, one million are considered severely affected. 2.4 million out of a total of 2.9 million head of livestock have died.

—Ethiopia: One million people are severely affected out of a total population of 26 million, especialy in the provinces of Wollo, Tigre and Shoa.

Fireman sets fires to earn extra income

KRAMFORS, Sweden (UPI) — A 30-year-old part time fireman has admitted setting 10 fires within a month to earn money putting them out, police said today.

He earned an extra $175 on the fires that caused an estimated $1.5 million in damage.

The fireman was paid $5.50 an hour as a part time fire fighter.

A spokesman for the volunteer fire brigade in this north Swedish community said the fires included three major forest fires and the burning down of the town's biggest wood industry.

Police said the fireman, whose name was withheld pending a preliminary court hearing, set the fires at night or on his days off so that he would not lose his pay as a factory worker.

Poor economy is 'Passing phase,' says India leader

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today broke her long silence on India's faltering economy and said, "it is a passing phase."

"There is no cause for panic," Mrs. Gandhi told a military rally. "We are going through a difficult period, but it is a passing phase.

"The country is in the midst of a big struggle and its future depends on our success in this struggle," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Her comments followed by one day a government decision to slash its annual budget by 12 per cent in a drive to curb the country's mounting inflation.

(Cran)berry good ice cream social

There's nothing perhaps more provcatively nostalgic and truly Americana than the old-fashioned ice cream social. And, when that bouncy cranberry, which grows only in America, is combined in your recipe treats, what a delectably dandy party scene can be set. A wonderous way to entertain for a special occasion—or just a perfect trick to ward off those sticky summer blues on a sizzling afternoon.

Create your own ice cream parlour—a table replete with pretty penny candies such as pastel fortune hearts, miniature candy canes, and strips of sugar dots. Then, bring out a cake to boast about, the Cranberry Upside Down Cake. With its gay topping of captivating cranberries and peaches it's sure to cause oohs and ahhs! Then serve glasses of icy cool and creamy Cranapple Merry-Go-Rounds such as the Peach Tickle or Three Berry Flip. This is one ice cream social you'll want to remember and record for your family album as well as your recipe box.

CRANBERRY UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

¼ cup butter or margarine
6 cling peach halves (16 ounce can), well-drained
1 can (16 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavor gelatin
¾ cup cold water
2-3rds cup salad oil
1 package (18-½ ounces) yellow cake mix
4 eggs

Melt butter in a 10-inch metal flower-shaped pan, 2½ inches deep, or use a 9-inch by 4-inch metal tube pan. Arrange fruit in pan. Cover with batter. Rotate pan so the entire bottom is covered. Place on peach half, hollow side up in pan in the center. Place 1 peach half each, hollow side up, in each petal of the pan.

Mash cranberry sauce; spoon around and over the peach halves. In a bowl mix gelatin and water until well blended. Add oil and cake mix and beat until smooth. Beat in eggs one at a time. Beat until batter is smooth and velvety. Spoon batter over fruit carefully. Spoon in enough batter until pan is filled 1 inch down from the top, Bake remaining batter in cupcake papers (about 4 to 5 cupcakes).

Bake cake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour and 10 minutes or until center feels firm to the touch. The cupcakes should be baked only 20 to 25 minutes. Let cake stand for 15 minutes. Loosen edges of cake, place a large platter on top of pan and invert cake while still warm. Remove pan and serve cake warm or cold.

Flaming dessert for grand finale

Don't let a dinner party become a "drag" before it ever begins because the worry of what to serve handicaps your planning. If you're in the dark about what to serve as a grand finale at that special dinner, light the scene with a dessert flambe'. And don't let the word flambe' scare you. It's simply French for the flaming of food during the preparation or when brought to the table for serving. It's easy to prepare and pays dividends in the elegance and excitement it provides your party dinner.

Cool and Creamy Fruit Flambe' is certain to satisfy those after-dinner appetites as it combines cool and crunchy dessert squares with a warm and saucy topping! Vanilla wafer crumbs, sugar, cinnamon and butter combine and bake to make a crispy crust that carries frozen layers of tangy lemon sherbet and rich vanilla ice cream creating the cool and crunchy. Fresh strawberries, grape halves and pineapple chunks come together in a sweetened strawberry flavored sauce which is famed with brandy creating the warm and saucy.

The Fruit Flambe' is a great dessert choice for any hectic party menu. The frozen portion can be completed a day or two in advance with only the sauce preparation left for last. The sauce preparation is the simple but impressive secret to the elegance of this dessert. It can be combined and cooked in the kitchen in minutes.

Or you can entertain guests at the table: Keep the sauce warm in a small chafing dish. When the heated brandy is flamed it is poured over the saucy fruits.

So, dazzle dinner guests with this dramatic and delicious dessert as the flaming brandy drenches the heated fruit sauce and is spooned over the rich sherbet and ice cream squares.

1 and 1-3rd cups vanilla wafer crumbs (about thirty-five 1¾-inch wafers)
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup (½ stick) butter, melted

FILLING:
1 pint lemon sherbet, softened
2 pints vanilla ice cream, softened

SAUCE:

To prepare sauce: In a 1-quart saucepan blend sugar and cornstarch; gradually stir in water and ½ cup sliced strawberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened; boil 2 additional minutes. Stir in remaining ½ cup strawberries, pineapple and grapes. Heat brandy in small saucepan. Remove ice cream from freezer to refrigerator for a few minutes before serving for easier cutting. Cut into 9 squares. Ladle scant ¼ cup sauce over each serving. Makes 9 servings.

New cookbook something to beef about

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was inevitable in view of the beef shortage. A paperback publisher has just issued "the no-beef cookbook".

"Is the price of beef enough to make you lose your appetite?" asks the blurb on the cover of this "instant" volume by Virginia Coigney and Marion E. Prilook.

Consumers who buy the 150-page book may find something to beef about if they take literally another line on the cover, which says the recipes offer "maximum nutrition for minimum money."

Several recipes call for high-price ingredients in quantities that make the main dishes more expensive than some cuts of beef.

One is a 5 to 6 pound leg of lamb, boned and stuffed with, among other things, ¼ pound each of bacon and boiled ham. Another is a four-serving oyster soup containing two quarts of oysters.

At M. Citarella, a local fish market, fresh oysters are selling for $2.50 per dozen, with about four dozen shucked oysters per quart. Another fish dealer, who won't have oysters until September, said they could be any price by then.

The authors of the beefless cookbook began writing it about two months ago, says their publisher, Bantam Books. Mrs. Coigney, of West Redding, Conn., is a writer and an assistant hospital administrator in nearby Danbury, Conn. Her co-author, Miss Prilook, Ridgefield, Conn., is a medical writer.

Cheering food for the golfer

When the golfers leave the links and head to your house, greet them with hors d'oeuvres that look like the ace they missed. Stuff dimpled pitted prunes with macadamia nuts,wrap with bacon, secure with toothpicks and broil.

Pair of good travelers

Abernathy lifts suspension of western branch

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, has lifted the suspension of the organizations western branch pending an investigation by the national leadership.

Abernathy had announced the suspension last Saturday, saying the local black group had been accused of using "strong arm tactics in collecting advertising revenues from companies which had not authorized the ads in the first place.

"I have gained new information that the local leadership have a willingness to deal adequately with the alleged tactics used by a private firm hired for fund raising purposes, Abernathy said.

"Based on this information and my desire to see the effective work of this chapter continue, I have lifted the suspension but I have not dismissed any charges.

The Rev. H. H. Brookins, head of SCLC-west, declined "in the interests of fairness to name the agency involved.

Now's time for a turkey

The outdoor covered grill makes summer entertaining easy and important, too, when the menu features turkey. Using the grill keeps the kitchen cool and lets the cook be outdoors. Another advantage is that the unstuffed turkey requires less cooking time when prepared in a covered grill rather than in the oven. After about 2½ hours a 12-to 14-pound bird can be checked for doneness. A roast meat thermometer should register 180 to 185 degrees and the thickest portion of the thigh should feel soft.

The outdoor feast can be completed by serving summer vegetables cooked in foil on the grill. A casserole of sliced zucchini squash, tomato and onion will require about 45 minutes. Favorite breads and fresh fruits will balance the meal.

After the feast, leftovers may be no problem since turkey is a summertime favorite for shaping up and slimming down. Besides being flavorful, turkey rates high in protein and low in fat content. A good way to use the leftover meat is in a cucumber cool turkey salad. It makes a refreshing luncheon dish for family or guests.

CUCUMBER COOL TURKEY SALAD

Yield: About 4 cups

- 2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 1 cup chopped cucumber
- ¼ cup sliced pimiento olives
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ¾ cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- Blue cheese, optional

Toss together turkey, cucumber, olives, green pepper and celery in large bowl. In small bowl, blend onion, salt, lemon juice and mayonnaise. Combine with turkey mixture. Add eggs. Chill thoroughly. If desired, before serving crumble blue cheese over the salad.

Snack time doesn't have to stress starchy foods

TV and popcorn are the all-American combination for a Sunday afternoon. But now's the time to replace that starchy snack with a bowl of fresh grapes.

European varieties of table grapes are now ripe and on the markets. The Coachella district is maintaining the grape markets with steady supplies of Thompson Seedless and Cardinal varieties. Harvesting of Perlettes in Coachella finished last week and was expected to begin from Kern County at that time.

In the next two or three weeks harvesting of Thompson Seedless grapes is expected to reach peak volume, so buy now or prepare to. The supply of this seedless variety should last until August 1, as production moves from Arvin-Bakersfield to Delano to the Fresno area. An increase in the Cardinal variety was anticipated last week, and harvest should continue for a few more weeks.

Quality is generally very good for both varieties this year, with large berries in well-formed bunches. Grapes this year have been noted as exceptionally sweet because of the slow growing season capped by very hot weather.

Grape prices are about equal to last year's—from 49 to 69 cents per pound.

To buy grapes choose a medium-sized bunch with fairly loose sections to facilitate easy eating and circulation of air that prevents moisture accumulation and the resulting mildew. Also check the "bloom," or the velvety, powdery look on the skin of nice, fresh grapes. If the grapes look shiny, the bloom has been rubbed off from excessive handling. Finally look for bunches that have a firm, green, healthy stem. Dried stems that are brown or black in color are likely to have grapes that have started to age and lose their flavor.

Grapes are best when eaten fresh, but try these succulent little morsels in a different state—frozen. This versatile fruit is also good with melon balls, grapefruit sections or avocados.

Avocados—or some say, alligator pears—are especially good in the summer salad months. Peak volume for summer varieties of avocados will continue until the first of September, then tail off. Volumes harvested in October are negligible but things start locking up come November. However, next year is not expected to reach this year's prolific harvest. This may result in higher prices for avocados. Presently, the fruit is selling from 34 to 49 cents apiece.

The bulk of production at this time is from Ventura and Santa Barbara counties and will continue for the remainder of summer and fall. Earlier this year, San Diego County supplied markets with the Hass summer variety of avocados.

This rough, dark-skinned avocado now dominating California markets is ready to eat when the skin turns black. These fruits are picked green from the trees where they are "stored" and upon clipping the stem, the fruit begins to mature.

Avocados, with their delicate nutty flavor and buttery texture, can be used as a fruit or vegetable. Try serving fresh avocado slices along with eggs and sausages in the morning, or for an interesting added attraction to eggs, mix and mash avocados and eggs.

If it's too hot to cook, halve an avocado, remove the seed, and fill the center cavity with shrimp or crab meat. For those with a limited budget, try a tuna salad and place the stuffed avocado on some crisp lettuce.

This nutritious and filling dish is not fattening. Half of an avocado has about 150 calories, 11 vitamins, 13 minerals and a trace of protein, and is a very healthy food.

The University of California has reported that milk is one of the most important food items in anybody's diet. Milk and milk products, including butter, provide 22 per cent of our intake of protein and 76 per cent of the calcium. Energy, fat, magnesium, riboflavin, vitamins D, B-12, and numerous additional vitamins and minerals are also supplied.

Although fluid milk still remains one of the most consumed beverages in the country today, surpassed only by water and equaled by coffee, there is a rapid rise of much less nutritious drinks in the past few years. For example, soft-drink consumption has jumped 100 per cent in 12 years.

It is a dangerous trend that poor foods are substituted at the expense of extremely valuable foods like milk products, meat, poultry and eggs, legumes, fruits and vegetables.

Brand new idea-- barbecuing liver

Barbeduing beef liver over hot coals may be a new idea to you but one which is well worth trying. Most often consumers think of liver as being sliced and have no idea that it may be purchased by the piece or chunk as well as by the slice.

This good-looking, great-tasting chunk of barbecued beef liver is marinated in a savory combination of beef broth, wine and popular herbs. It's served in fine style with skewered canned potatoes and partially cooked bacon. These go on the grill too, to brown the potatoes and crisp the bacon.

The liver steak takes about 10 minutes per side for rare and a little longer if you prefer it medium rare. Our recommendation is to never go beyond the medium rare stage in cooking liver because the fibers are sure to toughen with overcooking. Take a peek at the inside color of the liver steak by making a small slit in the center of the piece.

One of the interesting points about this marinade is that it is heated first to meld the good flavors of the herbs and onion with the base made of beef broth, wine and lemon juice. This marinade also has a bit of oil in it to aid in browning the liver while it's on the grill.

Some of the nutritional bonuses liver brings to your diet are that first of all it is a top quality protein. It is also rich in vitamin A. Actually liver is the only meat which does contain vitamin A. Liver also has a good supply of the B vitamins. And last but not least, the fact which everyone should know is that liver is indeed the very best food source of iron.

BARBECUED BEEF LIVER STEAK

2 pounds beef liver in one piece, about 2-inches thick
1 cup beef broth
1½ cups dry red wine
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup minced parsley
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon tarragon
½ teaspoon salt

Marinate beef liver overnight. To make marinade combine beef broth, wine, oil, lemon juice, onion, parsley, thyme, oregano, tarragon and salt. Bring to boil then simmer 2 minutes. Pour over liver, cover and refrigerate overnight.

Remove liver from marinade and place over hot coals. Cook 10 to 12 minutes per side for rare (approximately 15 minutes per side for medium-well). Turn once and baste once or twice with marinade. To check if liver is done, make a slit at center of steak and look at color. Carve into crosswise slices, about ¼-inch thick. Makes 6 servings.

Fruit desserts good hot or cold

Fruit deserts — serve them hot or cold. Make them from fresh ingredients or canned.

Peach pudding is a fresh fruit desert that's best when it comes to the table straight from the oven. The batter poured over the hot fruit rises to the top during baking so there's no time-consuming pastry to make.

Peaches grow abundantly in the orchard country near Eugene, Ore., from where this pudding recipe comes. When you shop for the ingredients, select peaches that are fairly firm or just a bit soft. Avoid hard peaches or very soft overripe ones. A pale tan spot indicates the beginning of decay.

If your family and your schedule prefer a cold, make-ahead dessert, Snob Hill Cherries is the answer. This recipe uses canned cherry pie filling as a convenient time-saver for you. Layer the graham crackers, cream cheese and cherries early in the day so the mixture can be refrigerated until serving time.

Top it all off with a layer of whipped cream for a cool dessert.

PEACH PUDDING

4 cups sliced, fresh peaches
½ cup water
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Combine above ingredients and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and set aside. Prepare batter.

BATTER

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoon melted shortening
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and pour into a greased 8-inch baking pan or dish. Pour hot fruit over batter and bake at 350 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes. The batter rises to the top during baking. Serves 6 to 8.

SNOB HILL CHERRIES

2 cups graham cracker crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup (8-ounce package) cream cheese
1 cup sugar
4 cups (2-1 pound, 6 ounce cans) cherry pie filling
1 cup (½ pint) whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix cracker crumbs and margarine, reserving 3 tablespoons for topping. Pat crumb mixture into an ungreased 9x13 inch pan. Mix cream cheese and sugar together. Spread on top of crumb layer. Pour cherry pie filling over cream cheese layer. Whip cream; add sugar and vanilla. Put layer of whipped cream over cherry pie filling. Sprinkle lightly with reserved crumb mixture. Serves 12.

Vegetable main dishes are standbys for summer

Summer's here, with its vegetable bounty. With more plentiful supplies, prices will probably go lower. So cue your menus to main dishes made with vegetables for economy, variety and eye-appeal.

Nature's palette of rich vegetable colors—from the neon red of tomatoes to the sunny gold of squash—look as fine as they taste on the dinner plate.

Tomatoes stuffed with tuna is an extra tasty dish because the tuna mixture is zesty with spicy seasoning mix for Sloppy Joes. This recipe gives you twin savings. Tomatoes, being in season, are a good buy; so is tuna, a fine source of protein. Put them together and you have a food-budget booster. Most main vegetable dishes are cooking quickies, another advantage.

Another idea is Squash and Bacon, using yellow squash or zucchini—whichever is plentiful. This novel, tasty skillet dish weds squash, rice, bacon and mayonnaise. A snappy cheese and mustard melange is the final touch of saucery.

TUNA STUFFED TOMATOES

MATOES

6 tomatoes
1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 envelope 1½ ounces) seasoning mix for sloppy joes
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup oil
1 tablespoon butter, melted
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cut tops off tomatoes; hollow out centers. Combine tuna, celery, contents of seasoning mix envelope, vinegar, and oil; spoon into tomatoes. Combine butter and bread crumbs; sprinkle over tomatoes. Bake in 400 degress for 15 to 20 minutes, until hot. Makes 6 servings.

SQUASH AND BACON ONE DISH DINNER

4 slices bacon
4 to 6 yellow crookneck squash or zucchini
1½ cups water
1½ cups packaged pre-cooked rice
½ cup shredded Cheddar or American cheese
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt

Cook bacon in large skillet until crisp, saving drippings. Remove bacon, crumble, and set aside. Add squash to drippings; cover and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add water, rice, cheese, mustard, mayonnaise, and salt. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Sprinkle with crumbled bacon.

New pears on way to the market now

All you shoppers get on your carts—get set—go—for those Bartlett pears! This week Bartletts are beginning to make their appearance in the fresh market. Good volumes from the Sacramento River district and Upper Sacramento Valley are on the way.

This year growers are looking at a much larger crop of fresh Bartletts than last year. As far as that goes, the biggest within the past decade! This brings good values and buys to consumers.

The early season pears, now in peak volumes, are noted as quite good; however, sizes are not as large as last year's. Because of the heavy fruit set, pears are smaller, but they are just as juicy and succulent as ever.

Harvest in California, which began several weeks ago, should run to September, and supply markets with fresh pears until mid-October. The fact that pears must be stored in "ripening rooms" before going on display at the grocer's explains the availability of pears into October.

From the Sacramento River district to the northern Sacramento Valley to Mendocino County to Lake County, California fresh Bartlett pears will be running in large volumes through the summer, after which winter pears start coming in from the Pacific Northwest. Even though a greater percentage of these summer pears goes into canned pear halves and fruit cocktail, the volume for the fresh market is still one of the highest!

So beginning this week, pears should be included on the menu, whether eaten as an accompaniment to broiled fish, stuffed with blue cheese, sliced and diced in a salad, or just eaten fresh out of hand—the way Mother Nature intended.

Peaches

Peaches, the queen of summer soft fruits, are off and running. They should last through September. The two varieties now on the market are Elbertas and Suncrest.

The Fay Elberta variety, which should soon reach peak production, is especially good for home canning. Gem peaches are running a little behind schedule, but should be coming to market very soon. This variety is popular for home freezing because it holds color so well when thawed. Also, the texture and soluble solids withstand the freezing process better than some other varieties.

Well into the season now, these multipurpose freestone peaches should be selected on the basis of creamy yellow skins with no hint of green—and not so much by the blush. Blushes vary with the variety. Look for well-rounded cheeks and a well-defined crease or fold.

Ready-to-eat peaches feel barely soft and have a good peachy fragrance, not to mention flavor! So give your taste buds a treat—buy a peach or two while they're good, fresh and plentiful.

Nectarines

From China by camel caravan to the Near East to Greece, and finally to America, the nectarine proves to be one of the world's oldest fruits. A relative of the peach, nectarines from the southern San Joaquin Valley should hit another peak this week. This delectable fruit is expectel to last through September.

The mid-season variety, now being harvested, is of particular good quality and in good volume, consequently reasonable prices. Look for nectarines that are firm, plump and well-formed. Slight softening along the seam indicates ripeness.

Cook booklet

A new 48-page, four-color cook booklet emphasizing summer fruits from California is available free from the California Tree Fruit Agreement.

The cook booklet contains more than 100 dessert, salad and main dish recipes and serving suggestions, as well as various nutritional information and canning and freezing tips.

Send a stamped, self-addressed, 4-inch by 9½-inch envelope to Fruits of Summer, P.O Box 4640, Sacramento, California 95825.

Crime panel gets first policeman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — San Jose Police Sgt. Hal K. Ratliff Monday was appointed to the California Council on Criminal Justice by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti.

The council is the states agency for administrating federal anticrime funds. Ratliff, 37, is the first policeman to be appointed to the council since its creation in 1969.

"Considering the millions of dollars administered by the council to improve our law enforcement capabilities, it is important to have the viewpoint of the working law enforcement officers represented, said Moretti, D-Van Nuys.

Tea sandwiches after golfing

Ladies' day at the golf club, and here's a quickie for tea sandwiches off the tee. Spread nut bread slices with jam and a blend of cream cheese and snipped pitted prunes. Cut into triangles.

Prunes store well in galley

Make no waves in the galley this summer. Stow airtight cans of moist pitted prunes under the bulkhead for easy snacking and instant energy.

Holidays and summer scuttle diet plans

DEAR SELMA:

I have a terrible time with the holidays and summertime. Kids are home—it s picnics, barbecue, etc. And I have gained 12 pounds since school is out and the little darlings are home—and I am in the kitchen constantly it seems. Any sympathy for a mother of three? Mrs. B. E.

Dear Mrs. B.E.:

Let me tell you something, darling. Your stomach does not know it's a holiday or summertime or that the kids are home. You sound as though this time of the year gives you a license to eat yourself into a stupor. Your mind is the only thing that knows it's that time of the year and it stays the same size. Why struggle by gazing hypnotically at cake, candy, ice cream, pizza and other fattening foods? You become a slave to these foods only if you surrender. Chart your future with the right decisions. Prepare enough of the right food for yourself for the tempting moment. Care enough about yourself to become your best friend.

Questions to be answered in this column should be sent to Selma Rifkin, Weight Watchers, 2360 S. Garfield Ave., Monterey Park, Calif. 91754. Persons desiring a personal reply should include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Low-fat product on cheese makers' drawing boards

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — University of Wyoming dairy specialists are developing a low-fat cheese-making process that could put tasty cheese on the dinner tables of dieters.

Dr. Darrell D. Deane, professor of dairy manufacturing, and Edward T. Dolan, superintendent of the UW dairy plant, are in their second year of developing the process. They expect the project to take four years.

"We can make the cheese," Deane said. "Our big hangup at the present time is it takes eight months or so to cure it."

Deane said the secret to making low-fat cheese was increasing the water content from about 40 per cent to nearly 50 per cent as a replacement for the fat removed.

"We're really basing the process on the usual commercial process except that we're trying to introduce more moisture," Deane said. "When you reduce the fat content, the cheese becomes quite corky and has a very harsh taste. We call it crumbly."

Deane said if the curing time of the process could be reduced, the method could produce the first low-fat cheeses on the commercial market.

"What we'd like to do is come up with a curing process of four to six months at the most," Deane said. "It costs money to store cheese."

The batch of cheese on which the two are presently working takes about eight months to cure.

Deane, who said he had "worked in cheese for 30 years," became interested in producing low-fat cheese because of the increased interest in low-fat foods of all types.

"I think cheese is one of the dairy products that is increasing in sales all the time," he said. "And this would add more variety to dairy products."

The cheese under development is an American variety that uses a cheddar process with a couple of steps altered.

In the first attempts, Deane said the cheddar process was used, but that removal of fat caused the acid content to increase, creating a bitter taste.

The most recent attempts have used a similar process but dropped the cheddar process, in which the curd is allowed to sit after cooking and begins to knit together. The acid taste developed during the cheddar process.

Deane said to eliminate the acid taste, the curd of low-fat cheese is washed, the cheddar process eliminated and the cheese immediately salted and placed in forms.

"It'll be more mild in flavor than your cheddar cheeses," Deane said. However, he said consumer had shown a preference for mild cheeses and that the cheese would sell if the process can be perfected.

"It shouldn't cost any more," he said. "Since there's less butter fat, there wouldn't be any more charge."

The two presented a paper on their project at the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at Washington State University.

Serve hearty salad in patty shells

Hearty salads make good main dishes for summer picnics. And any picnic salad becomes very special when served in a rich puff pastry patty shell.

If made in your own kitchen, puff pastry is a time-consuming activity. But convenient, frozen, ready-to-bake patty shells will save time. The shells consist of thin layers of dough rolled with vegetable shortening. Within 20 to 25 minutes' baking time, the patty shells are golden brown and ready to serve.

Vegetable Frankfurter Salad is one delicious warm weather combination to serve atop cooled baked patty shells. Combining colorful chopped fresh cucumbers, tomatoes, onions and celery with sliced frankfurters in an oil and vinegar dressing, it is an ideal main dish salad to pack in picnic baskets. For peak flavor, store the salad mixture in a chilled food carrier until served. When meal time arrives, take out the golden brown patty shells and spoon the hearty salad over all.

Whether served to adults or children, Frankfurter Vegetable Salad in tender patty shells is an eye-appealing and tasty salad that will win compliments for the cook.

VEGETABLE FRANKFURTER SALAD

- package (10-ounces) frozen patty shells
- pound frankfurters, sliced into round ½-inch thick slices
- tomatoes, chopped
- cup chopped celery
- cup chopped onion
- cucumber, peeled and diced
- cup oil
- tablespoons cider vinegar
- teaspoon salt
- teaspoon pepper
- teaspoon garlic powder

Prepare patty shells as directed on package. Remove centers of shells and set aside. Combine remaining ingredients and chill for at least 1 hour. When ready to serve, place patty shells on a platter. Spoon vegetable salad into patty shells and serve at once. Serve crispy centers with a cream cheese spread or serve as a topping for salad. Serves 6.

State plants catfish by thousands

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Fish and Game suggests that consumers eat catfish to beat high meat prices.

The department Tuesday said it had planted nearly 500,000 yearling channel catfish throughout the state in this year alone. Most of the fish were raised at the department's new Imperial Valley Warmwater Hatchery near Niland.

Department Biologist James St. Amant said he was surprised more persons did not take advantage of the catfishing opportunities available.

A bulletin listing 21 ways to prepare catfish is available at no charge by writing to "Catfish Recipes," California Department of Fish and Game, 350 Golden Shore, Long Beach, Calif. 90802, St. Amant said.

Think light, think summer think salads

The key word for summer is — light. Salads are the menu cue, then. As main course at luncheon or supper, salads cater to the general interest in healthful, lower calorie foods.

With salad days in mind, here are two new ones. Easy to prepare, economical — both look as good as they taste.

Molded Potato Salad is made quickly from instant mashed potato granules with plain gelatin added. Hard-cooked eggs and diced green pepper add color and crunch. For extra effect, you could fill the center of the ring with bacon curls. This is an easy garnish to make. Just partially cook bacon strips, roll each strip around the tines of a fork. Slide them off when cool and the curls will keep their shape.

Another main-course salad is a new version of popular chicken salad. Here, you add refreshing, tingling lime-flavor gelatin, whipped up to make the salad lighter and fluffier. Sour cream and yellow prepared mustard add zing. Celery and slivered almonds lend texture interest.

Salads have priority when the mercury rises. Serve yours with hot rolls and vegetable relishes. Iced tea in tall, frosty glasses is an ideal beverage, with a dessert of frosted cupcakes.

MOLDED POTATO SALAD

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- 1 envelope (5 servings) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 cup finely diced green pepper
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
- 3 strips bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled
- 1-3rd cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- bacon curls, if desired

Soften gelatin in cold water. Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package, but increase water to 1 ¾ cups; stir in softened gelatin. Add green pepper, eggs, bacon, mayonnaise and vinegar. Spoon into lightly oiled 1 quart mold. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with bacon curls if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

BREEZY SUMMER SALAD

- 1 package (3 ounces) lime-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- ¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- cup diced cooked chicken
- ½ cup diced celery
- ½ cup slivered almonds

Prepare gelatin as directed on package, reducing cold water to ½ cup. Add sour cream, mustard, and mayonnaise; stir until smooth. Chill until partially thickened; whip until light and fluffy. Fold in chicken, celery, and almonds. Spoon into oiled 5 or 6 cup mold. Chill until set. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

A little touch of the grape can enliven mealtime

Take a look at the produce section of your supermarket to see some pleasant surprises. It's the time of good supplies of grapes, both the seeded Ribier grapes, purple-black, firm and luscious, and the Thompson Seedless green grapes. They both have so many roles to play at the table.

Of course, the most popular way to eat grapes is out of hand, enjoying every juicy bite. But with good supplies it's fun to make desserts using grapes as ingredients. A Fresh Grape Cottage Pudding with an Orange Grape Sauce is a real inspiration for this season. It's refreshing and so original in its use of fresh fruit that it will earn you real appreciation from family and guests.

Fresh plums are also in excellent supply right now. Combine them with seedless green grapes in a delightful compote. It has a sophisticated touch of wine and more than a dash of spice. It's really gourmet, and so easy to make.

Tips on buying grapes at their best are offered by the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. All grapes are as ripe when you buy them as they will ever be, so don't buy them with the thought of holding them to ripen.

Only ready-to-eat grapes are shipped. Grapes should be firmly attached to the stem. If the stem is dry and brittle, the grapes tend to fall off. The fruit should appear fresh, smooth, plump, not sticky, and the grapes should be well-colored for the variety. That means amber green for the Thompson Seedless green variety and purple-black for Ribiers.

FRESH GRAPE COTTAGE PUDDING

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt

- 1 egg
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda and salt into medium bowl. Stir in orange rind. In small bowl beat egg with milk and melted butter. Add all at once to dry ingredients; stir only until moistened. Turn into greased 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 400-degree oven 35 minutes. Cool slightly. Cut into squares, then split to make two layers. Spoon Orange Grape Sauce between layers and on top of each serving. If desired, serve with sour cream.

Makes 9 servings

ORANGE GRAPE SAUCE

2 casseroles for your camping trip

Tenting tonight—or over the weekend? These one-dish meals combine convenience foods such as packaged potatoes, and instant gravy mixes with canned meats and vegetables or precooked packaged rice.

They take only a few minutes to prepare giving you more leisure to enjoy the great outdoors. Also, as they require few ingredients, you have less to pack and tote. Besides their good taste, these dishes are hearty and filling, packed with nourishment for vigorous outdoor appetites.

An ideal one-dish dinner for campers is made from a package of scalloped potatoes, quickly cooked on a camp stove. The packaged potato slices come with seasoning for the sauce and all you do is add cans of lima beans, luncheon meat and tomato sauce. Result: a richly satisfying dish, which takes only 15 or 20 minutes, start to finish.

Another easy camp-out recipe is a quick rice and beef dish, done in only 10 minutes. Starting with pre-cooked rice, you use an envelope of instant onion gravy mix to supply zippy seasoning and sauce. Combine the seasoned rice with cans of corned beef and green beans for another satisfying one-disher.

CAMPERS ONE-DISH DINNER

- 3 cups water
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 can (1 pound) lima beans, undrained
- 1 package (5⅝ ounces) scalloped potatoes
- 1 can (12 ounces) pork luncheon meat, cubed
- 1 can (3½ ounces) French fried onion rings, if desired

Combine in large saucepan water, tomato sauce, undrained lima beans, potato slices and contents of seasoning mix envelope from package of scalloped potatoes. Cover, bring to a boil, and simmer 10 to 15 minues, until potatoes are tender. Add luncheon meat; simmer 5 minutes longer. Garnish with onion rings, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

QUICK CAMPERS RICE AND BEEF

- 1½ cups packaged precooked rice
- 1 envelope (⅞ ounces) onion gravy mix
- 2 cups water
- 1 can (1 lb.) green beans, undrained
- 1 can (12 ounces) corned beef, cut in large chunks

Combine rice, contents of gravy mix envelope, water, and undrained beans in large skillet. Bring to a boil. Add corned beef; simmer uncovered for 5 minutes or until rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

Garnish your burger from the inside out

Summer's lively outdoor sports stimulate hearty appetites that provide a perpetual challenge to the cook-shopper all season. Faced with satisfying these stepped up dining demands within the limits of a static food budget, many women tourn to ground beef more and more frequently. Ground beef is, in fact, America's favorite meat for budgeters, edging out all competition with its delicious flavor at a nominal price.

Most often it's thick, juicy beefburgers, broiled indoors or out, that provide the necessary nourishment to keep active people on the go. Although burgers find a welcome at the table again and again, a surprise will provide a happy change, especially when it's sandwiched in that popular burger itself. Although Barbecued Surprise Beefburgers may look like everday fare while broiling on the grill, one bite reveals the tasty surprise—onion, cheese and dill pickles—packed and sealed in the center of two stacked burgers for added eating enjoyment. More flavor in the form of barbecue sauce is included both inside and out. Some of the spicy sauce is incorporated in the ground beef mixture and more is brushed on the burgers while they broil.

The surprise in each patty makes a big burger bigger. Two and a half pounds of ground beef make six of these satisfying double burgers. Sized for active people, they make ideal food for an outdoor meal. Potato chips and fresh vegetable relishes will often be enough. But if the gang's appetities are soaring, furnish corn on the cob or a second burger. Watermelon slices furnish a refreshing finish.

BARBECUED SURPRISE

- 2½ pounds ground beef
- ¾ cup barbecue sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 thin onion slices
- 6 slices (¾ ounce each) American cheese
- 12 round dill pickle slices
- 6 hamburger buns, if desired

Lightly mix ground beef with ¼ cup barbecue sauce and salt. Reserve remaining barbecue sauce. Divide beef mixture into 12 equal portions and shape each into a patty 4 inches in diameter. In the center of each of six patties place: 1 slice onion, 1 slice cheese (quartered to make 4 equal squares and stacked) and 2 dill pickle slices. Top each with a remaining patty and press edges together carefully to seal in filling. Place burgers on rack in broiler 3 to 4 inches from heat or on grill top over ash-covered coals.

Brush with reserved barbecue sauce and broil at moderate temperature 6 to 8 minutes; turn, brush with barbecue sauce and broil 6 to 8 minutes, depending on doneness desired. Brush tops with remaining sauce and serve on buns, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Food cops watch out for Vienna

VIENNA (UPI) — The butcher watched nervously as Franz Kopecky lifted a sausage to his nose. "Okay." Kopecky said. The butcher smiled.

Nearby, Johann Horvath measured an apple, watched by a fidgeting green grocer.

Kopecky and Horvath are part of a 100-man team of plainclothes "food policemen"— specialists who sniff, taste, sip and analyze the goods sold in Vienna's markets, stores and restaurants.

"You've got to have a pretty strong stomach to do the things we have to," said Kopecky, a 23-year-old food cop whose beat is at Iznersdorf, Europe's second-largest wholesale market in the south of Vienna.

"I begin my testing with a sniff," Kopecky said. "The smell of the sausage tells me if the substance is correct — if there's enough meat, not too much fat etc.—then I take a taste. That's enough to tell me if the sausage is good or not. If it's suspicious, I send it away for analysis and very often that piece ends up as exhibit 'A' in a court case against the salesman."

Four years training

The food inspectors spend four years training for the job at city markets and in laboratories. They are taught the correct smell of fresh meat and fat, the right weight of a large egg or how to detect poisonous fungus on fruit and vegetables.

Kopecky said the 100-man team is enough to police Vienna's 16,000 food producers and restaurants.

"We know our people," he said. "We know the good places and the bad—and we visit the bad places at least once a month."

Kopecky recalled a time he was on restaurant duty and came across a suspicious "grammelknoedl" —a Viennese specialty made from pork crackling.

"The stuff tasted okay, but I had a funny feeling," he said. "After an investigation, we found out the knoedls were being made from leftover meals—scraped off the plates and used again. I doubt if a customer would have noticed."

No warning

Unlike many countries where the food is only tested at the wholesalers, Vienna's food policemen go directly to the retailer without warning, show their identification cards and start sniffing and tasting.

Kopecky and his colleagues made 56,920 tests last year and found 14,883 items suspicious enough to have them laborator - analyzed. More than 1,000 food purveyors were prosecuted.

Food cops cannot fine shopkeepers on the spot. The case goes to court and the offending salesman is fined up to 25,000 schillings ($1,250) or, in extreme cases, his license is revoked and he is imprisoned.

"There's no question of an officer taking a bribe," said Kopecky. "The penalties are too stiff. We're not even allowed to buy from the shops we test."

Find liquid bomb under patrol car

RED BLUFF (UPI) — A Tehama County sheriffs deputy found a burning liquid dynamite bomb in a plastic bag Monday under a patrol car parked in front of the jail.

Undersheriff Bill Gonzalez said Deputy Marvin Stroing doused the device with a bucket of water. Army ordenance men later removed it.

Gonzalez said the bomb would have been "devastating had it gone off.

New office for Indian legal rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Deparament announced this week creation of a new office to deal with legal rights of American Indians.

Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Potinger told a news conference the concept was an outgrowth of a special task force that has been studying Indian legal problems since last January. The task force was set up as the result of the lengthy confrontation at Wounded Knee, S.D., last winter between the federal government and militant Sioux Indians.

Pottinger said the section would be under jurisdiction of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division and would focus on Indian citizens who by law are protected from violations of constitutional rights by their own tribal council.

The office also will have responsibility of conducting litigation and coordinating civil rights activities involving Indians.

Carl Stoiber, a senior trial attorney in the civil rights division and head of the Indian Rights task force, was named as director of the new office, Pottinger said. R. Dennis Ickles will serve as deputy director.

Pottinger said the new section will coordinate its activities with other federal agencies with responsibilities for the rights of Indians.

Meet a man who beat Bobby Riggs

How would you like to take tennis lessons from a guy who can and did beat Bobby Riggs (and recently)?

Cool, huh? Well it can be done. Just pick up your 'phone and call Bob Sherman at the new Claremont Tennis Club. Bob is the head professional and manager of the new facility which is soon to have its formal opening.

The man's credentials are outstanding. He is the number one ranked player in singles in the senior (45) division in Southern California and number three nationally. He is ranked number three nationally in doubles.

In the senior (50) division, he is ranked number one nationally in both singles and doubles.

Last year Bob beat Bobby Riggs in straight sets for the Southern California Championships at the Los Angeles Tennis Club. The score was 6-4, 7-6.

"I'd like to challenge Bobby now," Sherman grinned, "But I don't think he'd play me. He's got his thing going with the women now."

Sherman is quick to credit Riggs with helping the sport grow. "Bobby Riggs has given more publicity to tennis than anyone in the last five years," he said. "For the first time the man in the street is asking me about tennis."

Now he says television is causing the popularity of the sport to continue to burgeoning.

Took it up at 30

Sherman himself is a refutation of the lifelong commitment is supposed to be required of a tennis champion. He never took it up until he was 30 years old.

"I was a basketball player and trackman (hurdler) at the University of Santa Barbara," he explained. "After graduation (he also played professional basketball with Syracuse in the NBA) I went into teaching (El Rancho School District for 20 years)."

"Every year, he continued, I'd spend my vacation in Santa Barbara and would play a lot of volleyball on the beach. One day there was no one playing volleyball, so I wandered over to the tennis courts. I was playing barefoot and in swim trunks."

"The champion, whom I knew, came by and he told me I looked terrible and should stick to basketball," Thomas went on. "Well, that was like kicking sand in the face of a 97 pound weakling, I bought the equipment and began to practice three to four hours a day."

Dedication pays off

The dedication of Bob Sherman once he sets his mind to something is revealed in what followed. Two years later he won the Santa Barbara City Championship from the same player who had scorned his ability earlier.

Five year's after that he won the Southern California Junior Veterans (35) Championship. He went on to win ot seven times.

He has played at Wimbledon eight times, the first at the age of 37.

The Claremont Tennis Club, 2225 Padua in Claremont, is befitting of one with such impressive background. When complete it will have 10 championship quality courts with windscreens. Four will be lighted with four more to be lighted as the demand requires.

L.A.'s Komeback Kids still at it

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGLES — In San Francisco they have the "Young Giants." Los Angeles fans can watch the "Komeback Kids!"

The Dodgers have won 75 games this season. In 31 of them, they have come from in back to notch the victory. It happened again Tuesday night at Dodger Stadium as the come-from-in-backers did it for the third game in a row.

Trailing 3-2 with two out in the ninth inning, the Dodgers treated what remained of the 23,448 attendance to an incredible comeback.

The Dodgers were down not only in runs but also in spirit. Cincinnati had won again and a loss would cut the Dodgers lead back to 1½ games. It also would have put them under .500 for the current homestand with a 3-4 mark.

There was only slight stirring when Bill Russell beat out an infield dribbler, Manager Walter Alston sent Ken McMullen up to hit for Doug Rau.

In that moment the game changed direction. McMullen slammed a Balor Moore fastball over the fence to give the Dodgers a 4-3 victory.

The come-from-in-backers had struck again! Of such things pennants are woven.

Dodger players exploded from the dugout and ran jumping and yelling for the plate to greet the two baserunners. Even the usually phlegmatic manager showed his elation in the clubhouse.

"I'll tell you one thing gentlemen," he grinned. "For as few times as Mac has swung a bat he sure as hell has done his job."

McMullen was deeply moved by the display of emotion his blow inspried. "I've never received a reception like that," he told writers as they gathered around him. "It took me three or four minutes to get over it."

"It was my biggest home run ever," he continued, "one of my all-time great thrills. There was so much yelling and screaming I didn't realize it was a game-winner until I rounded first I didn't know whether it was the to the plate, but when I was running to first I didn't know whether it was the eighth or ninth inning or what."

The veteran third baseman admitted he was looking for a fastball. "If it had been a curve I probably would have taken the pitch," he said.

As for playing regularly McMullen's only comment was, "I just want to be part of the team and I don't care what part it is."

The Dodgers scored single runs in the first and seventh innings off Moore (6-12). Starter Tommy John was tagged for three runs on seven hits before being taken out for a seventh inning pinch hitter. But of the 21 putouts during John's stint, 14 were in the infield and he struck out the other seven.

Doug Rau (4-1) picked up the win. Although tagged for four hits in two innings, Rau pitched his way out of jams in both the eighth and ninth without allowing a run to score. The Expos left five of their 10 stranded runners during that span.

Don Sutton (14-7) against Ernie McAnally (7-6) in the series and homestand windup tonight. The Dodgers won't be back until August 30.

DODGER NOTES — Alston held a post-game meeting with John and Davis. There were two balls hit over Willie Crawford's head in the game. At one point John wanted Willie to move back and Willie D also got into the situation. "If anybody is going to move players around on this club, it is going to be me," said Alston. "But it was all settled before I got there."

Rookie Jerry Royster started at third base, explained Alston, "I wanted him to get his feet wet right away. I also wanted to see what he could do in the field so I would know whether I could hit for Cey or McMullen and put him in to play. He got to a couple of balls that neither of the other two would reach. I think he did a hell of a job."

In a sudden switch of thinking, the Dodgers announced that they will keep Charlie Hough and was optioning Greg Shanahan back to Albuquerque.

Shanahan was with the club four days but did not appear in a single game. The club will go with nine pitchers and Royster who will be eligible for the playoffs.

Vice President Al Campanis explained the Hough-Shanahan juggling act this way. "We discovered Hough's options had expired a couple of days ago and we had to obtain waivers in order to send him down. When another club claimed him, we withdrew the waivers and sent Shanahan, who could be optioned without waivers, back down."

Hough reportedly flew to Albuquerque, turned right around and flew back to Los Angeles. He was in the bullpen warming up in the late innings Tuesday night.

Steve Garvey's trial as cleanup hitter apparently is over. In 33 at-bats in the number four position, Garvey batted only .152 (5-for-33) and his average dropped 26 points to .306.

Inter-loop play looks doubtful

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Major league baseball owners met today to discuss a question that may have already been settled—will there be interleague play next year?

The answer right now looks like no.

National League officials met for more than two hours Tuesday in a session that was supposed to have been secret and, when they came away, the majority still were opposed to the American League-backed proposal.

"The general feeling is that it would be best not to disturb the type of divisional play we have now," said Walter O'Malley, board chairman of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Nothing much was accomplished," said John McHale, president of the Montreal Expos. "Everything is status quo."

That meant that when Allan H. "Bud" Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers, got up today to recommend strongly a plan by which American League clubs would oppose National League clubs in regular season play, he was already starting under a handicap.

Selig, American League President Joe Cronin, National League President Chub Feeney and Francis Dale, board chairman of the Cincinnati Reds, are members of the special inter-league committee.

Selig and Cronin favor interleague games. Dale and Feeney oppose them.

The leagues were scheduled to meet in joint session this morning and then adjourn to separate rooms for individual meetings. While inter-league play was high on the agenda, the owners were also expected to attend to certain "housekeeping chores" and pay more than passing notice to the San Diego situation.

San Diego area officials were scheduled to go to the California Supreme Court today to seek an injunction against the sale and movement of the Padres to Washington. Similar requests have been turned down in two lower courts.

Feeney did not say that the National League did not talk about the situation Tuesday, but he did say, "San Diego was not on the agenda." He said the discussions centered on interleague play and the designated hitter.

Dale "read the essence of my report" to the National League owners Tuesday and both he and Selig were to talk to the combined leagues today.

William C. Bartholomay, board chairman of the Atlanta Braves, said, "Several plans were advanced, but none of them captured my imagination."

Pittsburgh Pirates' General Manager Joe Brown said the officials will consider several proposals before voting.

Asked whether he felt it was fair to say the National League has not retreated from its original position, he replied: "I think that's fair enough to say."

Bad Henry's pace will leave him three short

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hank Aaron, homerless since July 31, is on a course which will make his final career home run total at the end of the current season 711 —three fewer than Babe Ruth's all-time record.

Aaron went 0-for-2 in the Atlanta Braves' 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday and now has hit 28 homers in Atlanta's 117 games. Should he continue that pace in the Braves' remaining 46 games, he will hit 10 more homers this season for a career toal of 711.

The Braves play the second game of a three-game series with the Cubs today with righthander Dick Reuschel, 12-10, scheduled to pitch for the Cubs. Aaron has hit more career homers at Wrigley Field (48) than at any other parks except Milwaukee's County Stadium and Atlanta Stadium.

Pomonan Seagren on way to second Superstars crown

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — Barring serious injury, champion pole vaulter Bob Seagren should be well on his way to capturing the latest phase of the $82,000 Superstars competition.

Seagren won the first Superstars event earlier this year, and held a substantial 4.5 point lead over the Boston Celtics' John Havlicek in Division One of the competition Tuesday.

But Seagren is entered in both the one-mile bike race and the track and field obstacle course—two events right up his alley — while Havlicek has completed his five events.

In Division Two, professional skier Ard Schenk has shown his versatility as an athlete by leading the pack with Yvan Cournoyer of the Montreal Canadiens 1.5 points behind. But the hockey star also has completed his events with Schenk having two remaining today. Karl Schranz could possibly catch his colleague on the pro ski tour.

Will Anaya play hide and seek?

By JIM COUR
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Romeo Anaya, the vicious puncher from Mexico, knows what to expect when he defends his World Boxing Association Bantamweight Championship Saturday night.

"He will run and I will chase him," he said. "I am prepared to go 15 rounds but I don't think he can hide that long."

Anaya, who has 28 knockouts in 41 fights, puts his title on the line against Panamanian Enrique Pinder at The Forum in Inglewood. The hard-hitting Mexican 118-pounder won the crown on a third round knockout of Pinder, a slick boxer, at Panama Jan. 20.

For the first fight with Pinder, Anaya earned $10,000. His share of the purse will be $50,000 this time.

"I am much more confident this time," said the 26-year-old champion. "This time I'm the champion and he's the challenger. That makes a great deal of difference."

Another factor in his favor, Anaya said, is the location of the rematch. The Saturday night crowd will be predominantly Mexican Nationals and Mexican-Americans.

"This will be my third fight in Los Angeles and I think I've become popular here now," the rugged titleholder offered. "In Panama, it takes a knockout to win. In Los Angeles, I can win a decision."

Anaya, who was painting cars in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, only 10 months ago, made his first title defense at The Forum before a throng of 18,552 April 28. He came away with an unimpressive split decision over countryman Rogelio Lara.

Cristobal Rosas, Anaya's manager, sat at a table with his fighter after a hard workout.

"Lara's style made Romeo look bad at times," Rosas assessed. "He will look better aagainst Pinder, much better."

Rosas, a fat, bald man with an easy smile, said he was surprised Pinder sought a rematch.

Montclair cyclist Chris Deeton

Mission: a gold medal for America

Montclair cyclist Chris Deeton plans to end the European dominance in his sport . . .

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

MONTCLAIR — The last time an American rider took a gold medal in Olympic Cycling was so long ago that nobody on this side of the Atlantic really wants to think about it.

But one Pomona Valley resident who is only halfway through high school thinks that the long-standing tradition of European dominance may be broken before long.

More importantly, he is his own candidate for the job.

Chris Deeton may only be a junior at Montclair High, but his name is rising quickly in the world of competitive cycling.

Earlier this month, Chris competed in the half-mile in the Junior Men's category in the National Championship Track Races at Northbrook, Illinois.

Chris didn't win.

Gilbert Hatton, who made the trip to the meet from El Monte, edged him — by one width of the wheel.

Chris' age prevented him from making the American team for the World Junior Championships, but his defeat at the hands of Hatton hasn't fazed his confidence.

"I'm pretty optimistic about making the team next year," Chris says with an air of confidence that is anything but boastful. "After that, my goal in life is winning an Olympic gold medal."

Chris primes for his opportunity to unseat the Europeans by riding anywhere from two to three hours every day, and competing in cycle races at a specially prepared track in Encino.

All of this takes place under the eye of Claremont Men's College professor Harry Jaffa, who has been Chris' trainer almost from the time he first got serious about bike riding a little over a year ago.

"He's like a swimming coach or a running coach," Chris says of Jaffa. "He doesn't plan a schedule or anything. I discuss with him what I should do. When we go down to Encino, he does things like blow the whistle and run the clock for me."

Jaffa's record in coaching riders makes him a source worth listening to. Among his protegees was Steve Maararenen, the national 10-mile champion for 1967-68.

As for Chris' initial motivation to get into biking, even he is open to suggestion. "I really don't know why I did it," he admits. "I knew a P.E. coach (Montclair's Jack Simpson) who had good racing cycles, and knew what to do to get into racing. I don't know what gave me the idea."

Chris makes one quick addition to his explanation, "I know now why I'm doing it, that's for sure."

Whatever his reason for starting, Chris shows no sign of stopping.

"I'm a bike racer . . . that's it," he asserts. "it's not like a hobby; it's morelike, well, a part of me."

Few performers, of any ability, make the Olympics without that kind of single-minded dedication.

As far as Chris is concerned, it's the only way to go.

"If you go into something like this, with only the idea of making the team in mind, you won't have much success, even if you get there. I say shoot for the top, and even beyond."

Despite his youth, Chris has some pretty sharp words for the American cycling establishment, and its contributions to the U.S. record of consistent loss.

"They don't hold international races here," Chris explains. "They do what they've always done by American measurement, and just haven't bothered to change it."

The American-type racing is more entertaining, Chris admits, but hardly prepares a rider for the sometimes bizarre methods of racing in Europe.

In a European sprint race, for instance, the race's distance may officially be 1,000 meters, but only the last 200 meters are timed.

Under the dictates of an extremely complicated form of strategy, riders may creep the first 800 meters, and have been known to come to points of near-motionlessness, sometimes for hours.

The four-man riding team races, another European concept, involve a form of aerodynamic manipulation much like "drafting" in auto racing in which a quartet of riders inches along the track in file.

American competition is more conventional, but no real training ground for potential international champions.

Professional riders make up to $40,000 on the international trail, but Chris isn't looking even that far ahead.

"I'm kind of confused, he says. "I don't feel pressured about anything right now, not even school. I have no real goals beyond being a cyclist."

And with a start like Chris Deeton has, who needs much more beyond that?

National League roundup

Cards snap losing streak

By United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals have learned to live with their mistakes and are a better team because of it.

The Cardinals, stretching their lead in the National League's Eastern Division to three-games, snapped out of an eight-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 9-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

St. Louis, plagued by mental errors and poor fielding during its losing streak, has rebounded from adversity before. After dropping 12 of their first 13 games, the Cardinals went on a tear and finally took over first place on July 22 despite their horrendous start.

Manager Red Schoendienst wasn't overly concerned when the Cards faltered earlier in the season and he wasn't about to shake up the St. Louis lineup after the latest string of defeats.

"There was no pressure, we were just losing," Schoendienst said, relaxing after his club's come-from-behind victory. "It was a little bit of everything. We weren't playing good ball and we were playing good teams. There are no excuses about losing."

Bernie Carbo, Ted Simmons and Joe Torre drove in two runs apiece to lead the Cardinal attack. The Cards had one hit off starter James Rodney Richard until the sixth when they scored five runs on five hits and two walks to tie the game at 5-5.

Carbo doubled home the winning run as the Cardinals wrapped up the contest with four runs in the seventh.

In other National League games, Atlanta beat Chicago 6-2, San Diego blanked New York 9-0, Los Angeles edged Montreal 4-3, Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 4-3 and Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5-4.

Ferguson Jenkins dropped his sixth game in his last seven decisions as the Braves handed the Cubs their ninth straight defeat. Jenkins was roundly booed by the home crowd after being taken out by Manager Whitey Lockman in a three-run fifth inning by the Braves.

Jenkins, frustrated at the disappointing season he's been having after winning 20 games for six the past six years, exploded as he entered the Cubs' dugout.

"I don't know," Jenkins said, "it just seemed everything had built up since the beginning of the year, and I had to let off steam."

He displayed his feelings by throwing four bats, one at a time, onto the playing field to indicate his disgust at being removed from the game after he walked three of the six batters he faced in the fifth inning and yielded a two-run single to Mike Lum.

"I wanted the bat boy to have a chance to do a little work," said Jenkins, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1971. "It was just something I did and the result of a whole lot of things."

Andy Kosco and Pete Rose singled home two runs in the ninth inning as the streaking Reds beat Pittsburgh for their sixth victory in the last seven games. Johnny Bench opened the ninth with a double and took third on an error. Kosco singled, scoring pinch-runner Cesar Geronimo to snap a 3-3 tie, and after a sacrifice, Rose singled home the fifth run.

Knowles hurls distance

A's get some relief

By United Press International

Dick Williams looked to his bullpen and was greatly relieved.

The Oakland manager had a change of mind and started relief pitcher Darold Knowles, who turned in a nifty six-hitter and his first complete game in an eight-year career as the A's nipped the Boston Red Sox 1-0 Tuesday night.

"I had planned to start Horacio Pina but I got to thinking more and more about it," said Williams, whose team remained a half game behind the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

"Pina hasn't gone much more than two innings in a long while and five or six weeks ago he got a sore elbow. So, I said, 'Hell, if I can get five or six good innings out of Knowles, then I can come in with Pina'."

But Knowles, whose longest previous stint was a 10-inning, no-decision relief appearance with Washington several years ago, pitched a remarkably strong game for a lefty hurler in Fenway Park with its renowned "Green Monster" in left. Knowles also was tough with men on base, forcing three double plays in the first four innings.

"I didn't know I was going to start until two hours before the game," said Knowles, who hiked his mark to 6-5. "So I went out and pitched the only way I know how, as long and as hard as I could."

The A's opened the decisive sixth inning with a single by Gene Tenace. Ray Fosse, who had three hits, then doubled Tenace to third.

Dick Green, an excellent bunter, tapped Bill Lee's third pitch back toward the mound as Tenace roared toward the plate. Lee attempted to barehand the bouncing ball but missed, permitting the run to score.

"That's one thing I can do ... bunt," said Green. "It was a beautiful pitch, right down the middle of the plate. I didn't try to hit it back up the middle. I was just concentrating on hitting it."

In other American League games, Kansas City tripped Cleveland 8-5, New York downed slammed California 7-2, Milwaukee downed Chicago 5-4, Minnesota routed Detroit 12-1 and Baltimore upended Texas 12-10.

In National League games, Atlanta stopped Chicago 6-2, St. Louis beat Houston 9-5, Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 5-4, Philadelphia shaded San Francisco 4-3, Los Angeles beat Montreal 4-3 and San Diego downed New York 9-0.

Graig Nettles belted a two-run homer to trigger a five-run eighth inning rally in the Yanks' win over the Angels. Nettles' 17th homer kayoed starter Clyde Wright and resulted in a rare relief stint by Nolan Ryan, who was rocked for three more runs.

American League batting leader Rod Carew crashed four singles and a double, good for three RBI and his 1,000th major league hit in leading Minnesota over Detroit. The five hits raised Carew's batting average to .360.

George Scott slashed a one-out ninth inning homer to lift Milwaukee over Chicago, the Brewers' seventh triumph in eight games with the White Sox.

FAVORITE PLAYER — Ed Muir of Upland, the visiting team bat boy at Dodger Stadium, rates Terry Harmon of the Phillies as one of his favorite players. Muir attends Upland High.

Jenkins' (bat) fling may cost him

CHICAGO (UPI) — The possibility of punishment didn't enter into the thoughts of frustrated pitcher Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs when he disgustedly threw four bats onto the playing field when he was taken out of the game.

But he could pay the price, yet to be determined, when National League President Chub Feeney reads the umpires' report.

Tom Gorman, in charge of the crew of umpires, said Tuesday's bat throwing would be reported, but added there would be no recommendation for punishment.

Jenkins, quiet in the locker room after his display of temper, first said he fired the bats because "I wanted the bat boy to have a chance to do a little work."

Later, though, he said his disgusted reaction was the result of "a lot of things building up since the beginning of the year."

The things building up included an earlier pronouncement of disgust over his record and the number of home run balls he pitched when compared to his record of winning 20 games or more for the last six seasons and winning the Cy Young award in 1971.

It came to a head when he gave up three runs in the fifth inning against the Atlanta Braves, to make his yield in 4 1-3 innings seven hits, five runs and five walks, setting up a 6-2 win for the Braves. The loss was Jenkins' 12th against 10 win this year, his third straight defeat and his sixth in the last seven games.

He left to the accompaniment of loud boos from the home crowd of 24,553, a fact which was annoying. There was speculation that he was annoyed too at the ball and strike calls by plate umpire Jerry Dale. Dale, though, discounted this.

"We had no words," he said. "He didn't say anything to me."

Jenkins in fact said little to anybody, umpires or teammates, and had nothing to say even to Billy Williams, who ran in from left field when the bats started flying, to help convince Jenkins he should go to the locker room.

"He didn't say anything," Williams said. "It wasn't the strike calls. The booing might have had something to do with it.

Taiwan undefeated after no-hit gem

GARY, Ind. (UPI) — Huang Chih-hsiung fired a no-hitter Tuesday night to lead Taiwan to its third victory by defeating Windsor, Ont., 1-0 in the Senior Little League World Series.

The Canadians got three-hit pitching from Steve Zack, the loser. The game was called after six innings because of a curfew.

Huang was the first to throw a no-hitter in this year's series. Taiwan remained unbeaten in the double elimination tournament.

In earlier games Tuesday, Rio Pierras, Puerto Rico, swamped Saltillo, Mexico, 14-2 after Oxon Hill, Md., beat Chicago Clear Ridge, 8-2.

The losses eliminated Mexico and the Illinois team from the tourney which winds up Saturday.

Chih-Hsiung, a right-hander, struck out four while walking two. Zack fanned five.

Li-Wen-Jui scored the only run in the game in the third inning. He led off with a single and raced home on a misjudged flyball double by Tun Kou-Hua.

Taiwan pitchers in their three wins have given up two hits in 19 innings.

Canada remains in the action with one win and one loss.

Top athletes open Games in Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nearly 4,200 athletes will begin carrying the colors of 73 countries today at the opening ceremonies of the seventh edition of the World University Games, an event that the host Russians are calling "the greatest sports spectacular" in this country' history.

Eighteen-year old Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M,. a twotime gold medal winner in the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich, will carry the Stars and Stripes of the United States, which boasts the games' largest delegation—over 300 student-athletes.

Eligibility for the games, which originated at Turin, Italy, in 1959 and have been held at four-year intervals ever since, is ~~restricted to~~ college, junior college and graduate students not past the age of 28. The U.S. participation has been restricted to the last three editions.

There are nine different sports—with the U.S. is entered in all—basketball, track and field, swimming, fencing, volleyball, water polo, gymnatsics. wrestling and tennis.

Typically, the U.S. will bear its strongest aggregations in basketball (led by North Carolina State All America David Thompson), track and swimming (led by Miss Carr and AAU champions Mark Chatfield of Glendale, Calif., and Steve McFarland of Amarillo, Tex.

The U.S. gymnastics team suffered a costly blow early in the week when John Crosby, an NCAA champion from Southern Connecticut State, was felled by an appendix attack.

Three straight days of rain over this capital city dampened any hopes the athletes had of training outdoors under normal conditions.

The 103,000-seat Lenin Stadium, where the opening ceremonies will be held, was practically empty Tuesday. Only a handful of uniformed soldiers were there finishing up the final maintenance before the games begin.

The U.S. track team, minus the usual glamour names (Marty Liquori, Dave Wottle, Rod Milburn, etc.) held a light workout inside the grounds of the University of Moscow. Members of the press were still banned from the grounds by Soviet officials.

Ed Muir's summer job might be tough, but it's interesting

UPLAND — Ed Muir , who will be a senior at Upland High, puts in a long day when he goes to work.

It's also a tough job with many different duties. Some aren't so pleasant but most of them are delightful.

You see, Muir knows almost every National League baseball player.

He is the visiting team bat boy at Dodger Stadium.

"I was very surprised to get this job," Muir said. "My father is a good friend of Jim Muhe, the visiting team clubhouse attendant. One day last year, Muhe called me and asked if I would like to be a bat boy."

It's quite an experience for a teenager to be so close to major leaguers. While Muir likes them all, he does have his favorites.

The Philadelphia Phillies are his special friends, especially Terry Harmon, Cesar Tovar and Tom Hutton.

"They are something special to me," Muir said. "The Phillies let me hit along with them when we're playing pepper and they call me by my first name."

Obviously, one player Muir will never forget is Henry Aaron. Muir would love to be the bat boy congratulating Aaron when he crosses the plate on his 715th home run.

"Aaron is a nice guy but I leave him alone because he has so many people around him all the time," Muir said.

While Muir has had to drop any summer baseball plans because of his job, he was able to bat .302 for the Upland junior varsity last year. He hopes to make the varsity next season.

"This job has helped my baseball," Muir explained. "You learn so much just watching the major leaguers."

While the job during the game is fun, Muir is also quick to point out there is hard work involved in his duties.

He reports to Dodger Stadium about 3 p.m. before night games and doesn't leave for at least an hour after the game.

Among his duties are preparing clean towels, fresh food and soft drinks for the players, carrying the bats and helmets to the dugout and shining shoes after the game.

"The hard work is after the game," he explained. "Even though the hours are sometimes long and the work difficult, I feel I have the funnest job in the world."

Muir moved to Upland from Pomona after fifth grade.

Before he was able to get his driver's license on his 16th birthday, Muir took the bus into Los Angeles to report to work with his parents picking him up after the game, listening to Vin Scully to determine what time to meet their son.

"It was quite a sacrifice," Muir's mother explained, "but well worth it."

There will be a drinking fountain on each court, a play area with playground equipment for small children, a swimming pool, pro shop, clubhouse lounges, men's and women's locker rooms, mens and women's saunas, a hydrotherapy pool, and a snack shop.

When the membership reaches 250, four additional courts wil be built.

When it reaches 390, indoor air-conditioned handball and badminton courts, two platform tennis courts, and a gym are to be constructed.

Finally, if requested by a sufficient number of members, a small bar will also be installed.

Sherman currently is taking memberships and giving lessons. And you don't have to be a member to take lessons from him. The former Alhambra resident gives private lessons and currently has people from as far away as San Bernardino and Pasadena taking lessons from him.

As for the upcoming Bobby Riggs-Billie Jean King match, Thomas predicts another Riggs victory. "Riggs will win," he said, "but I'd still like to challenge him. But he won't play me or his bubble bursts."

It's pretty hard to argue with a man who has proven he can do just about anything he sets his mind to.

Crenshaw makes pro debut in USI Classic Thursday

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Young Ben Crenshaw, winner of just about everything the amateur ranks had to offer, takes aim on the professional jackpot Thursday when 144 golfers tee off in the $200,000 USI Classic at Pleasant Valley County Club.

Crenshaw, 21, who won three NCAA national titles while playing for the University of Texas, makes his pro debut here in a field that includes defending champion Bruce Devlin, tour money leader Bruce Crampton and popular Lee Trevino.

"I don't think I'll feel any different here than any other pro in the tourney," Crenshaw said after a practice round on the hilly and winding 7,212-yard, par 72 course.

"I'll just try to forget the money and concentrate on golf," he said.

Crenshaw had originally planned to hold off on his professional career and play in the Walker Cut amateur match between the U.S. and Britain next week in Brookline, Mas.

But he felt that would delay his career start until next year, so he chose instead to join the Professional Golfers Association tour.

"It's a relief," Crenshaw said. "All kinds of people were asking me what I planned to do. Now I've made the decision."

Crampton and Trevino were rated as co-favorites heading into the second USI Classic, sponsored by U.S. Industries. The winner will take home $40,000 — enough to put Crampton over the $300,000 mark in earnings for 1973.

Deke Houlgate

Motor sport today

His public image and Mark Donohue's estimation of himself don't mesh.

"Everybody says, 'He's so good developing race cars because he is a graduate engineer,' but the truth is I get a lot of credit because I listen to a lot of people and try not to think I know everything," Donohue said.

Donohue was talking during a break between dynamometer test runs of his American Motors formula 5000 racing engine at Traco Engineering in Culver City. He was as relaxed as anyone could be during a frantic schedule that finds him crisscrossing the country as racing team manager as well as driver for the Roger Penske team.

That night Donohue hopped a "redeye" flight to Cleveland for a Can-Am race at Mid-Ohio. He was scheduled to go next to Reading, Pa., for skid pad tests of his formula 5000 car, then to Road Atlanta for an L&M series formula 5000 race and back to Pocono, Pa., for more testing before returning to Ontario for the opening of practice for the California 500 USAC championship race, where he will drive the Sunoco McLaren.

..."I don't get paid extra for coming out here," Donohue said, "but I wouldn't be satisfied if I didn't. My problem is I take racing too seriously. If things go well and we win, I have the double satisfaction of knowing I won as a driver and contributed to making the car right.

"If I lose, I have to accept the blame. There is tremendous pressure to pull things together. American Motors doesn't understand why we don't win L&M races. Roger doesn't understand. The mechanics don't understand. I can't just walk away if the car doesn't run well."

Donohue hastened to add that he wasn't complaining. He likes what he does for a living. He ought to be pleased with the fact that he has won more major road races than any other American driver or that he is the Indianapolis 500 winner, but he isn't satisfied.

"I just haven't had that much success this year to be satisfied," Donohue said. "There's only one measure of success — to win. If you don't win, it's not fun, it's not profitable. I was hurt and missed a lot of races last year, but my income this year will be half of what it was last year.

"I don't think I've ever said my goal is to be the world champion or the Indianapolis winner or champion of anything. It's so easy for things to go against you that you can come away from a whole career disappointed. I follow a rule: Do your best from day to day and life will take care of you."

Donohue still hurts from the severe knee injury suffered 13 months ago in the ferocious crash of his Porsche Can-Am car at Road Atlanta during a test.

"Pain is a small price to pay," he said. "I'm lucky to have a leg. It does get me down once in awhile, expecially after I have been walking around on a cement floor. But the human mind tends to forget things you don't like, especially if you've been hurt physically."

This week in Indianapolis the U. S. Auto Club board of directors will make a decision on driver interchange that may determine if Donohue will ever be able to run a USAC race again, because he has resigned the club. Many in racing have expected him to make an issue and defy USAC, but Donohue hasn't so far and apparently doesn't plan to.

"The only thing I can do," Donohue said, "is to punch 'em in the ribs, and that would make them mad at me. They are going to be around a long time after I'm gone. USAC leaned over backwards to let us run at Pocono (after publicly proclaiming Donohue could not), but we treated them like gentlemen and they treated us he same. I believe racing is the better for it."

Gordon Johncock is one racing driver who doesn't care if he makes a million dollars out of his sport or not. He's a rarity.

The little known Indianapolis 500 winner was reflecting on his futrue the other day.

"If I had to quit racing and do something else for a living," he said, "I think I would like to be a truck driver. To be behind the wheel is a kind of job that gives me a great amount of pleasure and satisfaction."

Johncock just turned 37, has been at the wheel of some kind of vehicle since the age of 5. His first "ride" was aboard a John Deere tractor on his father's Michigan farm.

"My dad rigged a board and a rope to operate the hand clutch," said Johncock. "If I couldn't reach the board with my foot, he would be walking along behind and pull the rope to operate the clutch.

"It was real funny when I would drive the tractor down the road, because the tractor was so high I couldn't see over the hood. I had to lean over to see around it. People driving the other direction would get real panicky, because to them it looked like a runaway tractor with nobody driving it."

Johncock is uncomfortable working the rubber chicken circuit so familiar to other Indy 500 winners, but he doesn't express his anxiety in public.

"The saying is that when you win the Indianapolis 500 you are going to be a millionaire, but the price you pay to do that isn't worth it to me," he said privately.

Johncock explained tht earning the money that goes with an Indy victory carries a cost he doesn't like to pay. It interferes with his private life. For example, his annual visit with two sons — he is divorced from the mother of his five children — was interrupted by a promotional job he accepted on behalf of Ontario Motor Speedway.

"I didn't do it for the money," said the STP Eagle driver. "I want to do everything I can to help this place (OMS) make a go of it. But when I told my boys I had to leave them, my oldest boy asked, 'Dad, why do you have to end our vacation?' I just couldn't explain it to him right."

Johncock admits he hasn't been as successful in his personal life as he has been on the track. He is in the process of getting a divorce from his second wife, and he recently settled a court fight over his Indianapolis winnings.

The race driver had declared bankruptcy over an unsuccessful venture in lumbering, and creditors attached his Indy purse even though it had nothing to do with the business failure. He decided to settle rather than to fight the legal action, just to get rid of the aggravation.

At one of his public appearances the toastmaster prefaced his introduction with the comment: "A few years ago people were saying, 'Gordon who?' but now they know who Gordon Johncock is. . ."

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised," Johncock said, "if they were still saying, 'Gordon who?' "

Outside the restaurant, on the sidewalk where all the celebrities present were before the TV cameras, Merlin Olsen, Happy Hairston and others were ignored as two little boys walked up to the Indy champ.

"Mr. Johncock," one of them asked, "may we have your autograph?"

They knew who he was.

OCIR offers racing twinbill

EAST IRVINE — Orange County International Raceway will present its Invitational Tournament of Funny Cars and the American Hot Rod Association's Grand American Regional Points meet on Saturday.

The funny car half of the twin bill will feature a Southwest versus West theme with eight of Texas' and Arizona's most powerful entries dueling eight Western all-stars.

Leading the Southwest team will be 18 year old Billy Meyer of Waco, Texas who will be returning to the scene of his greatest triumph.

It was the youthful Meyer who entered last years rich Manufacturers Funny Car Championships a virtual unknown and waded through a field of the sports most notorious funny cars including the feared "Chi-Town Hustler" in the championship race.

Meyer, making his first OCIR appearance since that monumental victory, hopes to duplicate last November's performance with a win next Saturday.

Joining the Texas teenager on the Southwest All Star Team will be Cecil Lankford in the "Brand X" Mustang, the "Banchee Barracuda" of Linford McLemore, the "Grim Reaper" of Larry Reap, Larry Christopherson's "Arizona Wildcat", John Powers, III "Winemaker", professor Kelly Chadwick's Chevrolet and Ron Southerland in the "Arizona Vulture."

The West team will include Danny Ongais in the "Vels-Parnelli Jones Barracuda," Pisano & Matsubara, Dunn & Reath, the "Warhorse," Plueger & Gyger, Pete's "Lil Demon," Lill John Lombardo and Stone, Woods & Cooke.

Sharing the program, with the funny, cars will be many of drag racings top sportsmen racers competing for valuable American Hot Rod Association points as well as trying to set world records in their respective classes.

Gates open at noon Saturday with eliminations beginning at 7 p.m. that evening.

Road America Can-Am

Events added at Elkhart Lake

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. — Confirming a two-heat format for the Road America Can-Am, President Clif Tufte of the midwestern road-racing circuit today announced the schedule for the $91,000 August 24-26 race weekend.

Not only will there be the famed Canadian-American Challenge Cup headliner but two other top-drawer events involving formula cars to make for a spectacular session of competition. An 80-mile formula B race will be held Saturday, a 60-mile VW Gold Cup series race for Super Vees on Sunday.

Easily the richest road-racing series in North America with more than a million dollars in purses, the Can-Am is also the only series in the world boasting cars of unlimited horsepower. Boosting already powerful engines with turbocharging, the cars rev up to 900-plus "horses" capable of fully 200-mile-an-hour speeds. While there are a number of McLarens and Lolas as formidable threats, the new turbo Porsches have been dominant thus far in the 1973 campaign.

Brilliant international racing stars are being challenged vigorously by crack Americans with so much money and prestige at stake, the field including such men as Mark Donohue, George Follmer, David Hobbs, Jody Scheckter, Jackie Oliver, Mario Andretti, and a score more of top motorsports stature. With such drivers, with faster cars, with a wider track the 115-plus mph record set by New Zealand's Denis Hulme two years ago is likely to be shattered either in qualifying or racing.

The Road America Can-Am will consist of two phases of 100 miles each—the first slated for 1:15 and the second at 3:30 on Sunday (Aug. 26). Cumulative finishes will determine the overall winner, with the second heat undoubtedly producing some spirited racing that should make for one of the finest races ever staged at this serpentine course.

Leaders may change in Riverside Regionals

RIVERSIDE — Close races in regional points standings may see new leaders emerge in 17 of 23 classes during next weekends Riverside Regional Championships at Riverside International Raceway.

Sponsored and organized by the California Sports Car Club Region of the Sports Car Club of America, Saturday and Sundays races wil be conducted over Riversides 2.55-mile, eight-turn sports car road course.

One class that may well see a new points leader after the Riverside Regionals is C Production where Costa Mesas Grey Egerton leads Dan Parkinson of Glendale by a scant three points for the season.

Parkinson, driving a Datsun 240Z, has been virtually unbeatable since March, winning two straight regional and three national events conducted by Cal Club while Egerton in a Porsche, piled up his 21 points in the early part of the year.

Formula A competition sees John McDonald of Encino leading David Eshleman of Cucamona by three points, 18-15, while Mickey Fowler of Glendale is within striking distance with nine points.

Olney Mairs of Malibu leads the Formula B standings by three points over James Hall of Sunset Beach while three other drivers — John Milledge of Mt. View, Bill Cooper of Mt. Herman and Russ Mayberry of Woodland Hills—trail by only four points.

Other tight races that may witness a shakeup in the standings this weekend include those in Formula C, Formula Super Vee, D Production, Formula Vee, E Production, F Production, G Production, H Production, B Sports Racing, C Sports Racing, C Sedan, Showroom Stock Sedan and Showroom Stock Production.

Action gets under way Saturday at 8 a.m. with practice and qualifying to be followed by seven qualifying races starting at 12 noon.

On Sunday, warmup practice begins at 8 a.m. and seven 30-minute championship races start at 11:30 a.m. Gates open at 7 a.m. both days.

Paddock passes are available at the course for $3, good for admission both Saturday and Sunday. Children under 12 are admitted free when with an adult. There will be no advance ticket sales and no overnight camping.

Cav coach - GM sees his job as easier this year

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Bill Fitch, general manager-coach of the Cleveland Cavaliers, thinks his job may be a bit easier this year.

In three years of battle in the tough National Basketball Association, the Cavaliers have lost 176 games while winning only 70.

Two talented rookies, Larry Farmer from U.C.L.A. and Jim Brewer of Minnesota, are the reasons for Fitchs optimism. Farmer, a 6-foot-5 forward, "knows less about losing than anyone who's associated with the team, said Fitch, while getting ready for the start of rookie camp Thursday at Lakeland Community College in nearby Mentor.

"You dont have to tell him about winning like Ive been trying to tell my guys. In his four years in college they didn't do anything but win.

Brewer, the clubs first draft pick ,is 6-foot-9 and 220 pounds. Fitch expects the giant forward-center to provide much needed help at the defensive end of the court on rebounds.

"Im going to go over Brewer with a fine tooth comb and work hard with him behim to log a lot of time as a cause he can handle the spot, Fitch said. "I expect rookie and hold his own at the other end of the court.

The former Minnesota star, also a center-forward on the 1972 U.S. Olympic team, is no stranger to Fitch. He recruited the all-Big Ten choice while still a head coach at the University of Minnesota.

Although he does expect big things from Farmer and Brewer, Fitch is a realist when it comes to evaluating a first-year mans worth. "I hope all 12 rookies coming to the camp are around when the vets come in (Sept. 10), but I know it won't be that way, he said.

Only 27 rookies stayed on all the teams in the NBA all or last year and the Cavaliers had only one. According to Fitch, their playing time together wouldn't average four minutes.

"You're here to win and you can't do it with rookies playing all the time, says Fitch. "We have the veterans who can outperform the kids coming out of college.

"Of course, there are exceptions to the rule, just like our own Austin Carr. When you draft, you go after the best man at the position you need most and youre lucky if it works out. But Im still waiting for my silver lining in the sky.

Brewer and Farmer aren't going to get jobs handed to them. Fitch says they'll have to battle it out with the other 10 players invited to the camp.

They include guard Allen Hornyak and center Luke Witte, both from Ohio State; guard-forward Dean Martin of Baldwin-Wallace College in nearby Berea; forward Jim OBrien of Maryland; guard Les Taylor of Murray State; forward John Coughran of the University of California at Berkley; forward Willie Calvert of Abilene Christian; and forward-guard John Ritter of Indiana.

Gordon takes NASCAR lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Surprising Cecil Gordon of Horse Shoe, N.C, has jumped into the lead with just one race remaining in the second leg of the $120,000 NASCAR Winston Cub series.

Gordon vaulted into the lead with an eighth place finish in Sunday's Talladega 500 when Benny Parsons of Detroit, the former leader, dropped out early with mechanical problems.

Gordon has an 84.25-point margin over James Hylton of Roanoke, Va., 2,655.25 points to 2,571.00. Parsons holds down third place with 2,506.75, with Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C, fourth at 2,501.25.

Pinder's workouts shift odds to even

INGLEWOOD — The odds on Saturday nights world bantam weight title showdown between champion Romeo Anaya and ex-titleholder Enrique Pinder have shifted to even money.

Earlier, the heavy hitting Anaya was listed as a 10-8 favorite to retain the 118-pound crown he took from Pinder this Past January 20 in Panama City.

However, Pineds flashy workouts at the Elks Building gym have overshadowed Anayas training efforts causing the switch in odds.

In their January meeting in Panama, Anaya scored a clean cut third round knockout. Pinder claims he took the fight to the rugged Mexican and got careless.

In supporting bantamweight 10-rounders, Rodolfo Martinez, the No. 2 contender, is a 12-5 choice over French champion Guy Caudron; Rogelio Lara, the No. 4 challenger, is a 10-7 pick over Benny (Memin) Rodriguez of Los Angeles and young prospects Davey Pierson and Rafael Gonzalez are rated as a toss-up.

Bullets hire Bickerstaff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Capitol Bullets have hired Bernie Bickerstaff, head coach at the University of San Diego, as assistant coach for the 1973-74 season, the club announced Monday.

Bickerstaff, 29, led San Diego to a 19-9 record last year and compiled a 55-49 record during his four-year tenure as head coach.

A native of Benham, Ky., Bickerstaff played college basketball at San Diego and was captain and most valuable player during the 1966-67 season. After a tryout with the Harlem Globetrotters, Bickerstaff decided to return to the University of San Diego as assistant coach, becoming head coach two years later.

"I met Bernie last year when I coached at San Diego (ABA Conquistadors) and was very impressed with him as a teacher," said Bullets head coach K.C. Jones. "He has a good mind for the game and should be an important addition to the Bullets."

Coaches begin overseas clinics

DENVER (UPI) — Three members of the National Association of Basketbal Coaches will be spreading their knowledge overseas this month.

Barry Dowd, head coach at the University of Texas at Arlington, and Arizona State mentor Ned Wulk will be giving clinics in Denmark, Sweden and at the World University Games in Moscow. Joe Vancisin of Yale, the 1973 NABC President, will be in Argentina presenting basketball seminars.

Football teams seek players

POMONA — The Pomona Pop Warner Association still has a need for boys for its two Junior Pee Wee teams.

Boys in the 8-10 age group and weighing 50 to 80 pounds are welcome to join either team at the practice sessions, held every evening Monday through Friday at Palomares Junior High beginning at 6 p.m.

Pomona schools hold physicals

POMONA — Physical examinations for all varsity, junior varsity and sophomore athletes who are interested in going out for cross country or football at either Ganesha, Pomona or Garey High will be held Monday, Aug. 27 and Tuesday Aug. 28.

Pro football roundup

Johnny U. sues Baltimore

By United Press International

John Unitas hasn't forgiven the Colts for the treatment he received during his final season in Baltimore last year.

Unitas, traded to the San Diego Chargers after spending the last two-thirds of the 1972 season on the bench, Tuesday filed a $725,000 suit against the Colts for "malicious breach of a 10-year contract" and "publicly humiliating" him.

Unitas, who helped the Colts to three National Football League titles and holds many of the league's passing records, filed a suit in Baltimore Superior Court charging that Joe Thomas, the Colts' vice president and general manager, "engaged in a course of conduct which was designed to and did in fact embarrass and humilate Unitas ... and make it impossible for him to carry out his obligations under the contract."

Unitas had a personal services contract with the Colts which called for a $30,000 front office job after his career was over. Unitas, in the suit, said that Thomas made it clear he did not want him with the Colts in any capacity.

Thomas was unavailable for comment and a Colt spokesman would say only that the case was being referred to attorneys.

Elsewhere, Gloster Richardson, veteran wide receiver of the Cleveland Browns, was arrested last weekend for a variety of traffic violations and for possession of marijuana, police said Tuesday. Richardson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and the drug charge. He was freed on a personal bond.

The Browns, meanwhile, acquired tight end Jan White, who announced his retirement from football two weeks ago, from Buffalo for a draft choice.

Joe Woolley, fired as head coach of the Ball High School team in Galveston, Tex., for altering transcripts of two Oklahoma freshmen, was hired as an assistant coach by the Houston Oilers. Woolley was hired by General Manager Sid Gillman as quality control coach, replacing Garland Boyette, who came out of retirement Monday to play linebacker again.

"All I asked for was an opportunity," Woolley said. "I made a mistake. I admitted it. Now I want to get to work and prove myself."

The Denver Broncos obtained veteran linebacker Bill Laskey from the Colts for a draft choice and fullback Eddie Ray, who missed three weeks of practice with the Atlanta Falcons, was fined $2,100 when he finally reported Monday.

The New York Giants said that star running back Ron Johnson, held out of the club's first two pre-season games, would play against the New York Jets Sunday. Johnson gained 1,182 yards last season. Joe Namath, used sparingly by the Jets thus far, is expected to see considerable action at quarterback Sunday in the battle for football supremacy in New York.

Miami Coach Don Shula said that fullback Larry Csonka, still bothered by an calf injury, would miss Saturday's preseason game with the Chicago Bears. Csonka has not played since the College All-Star game.

In pre-season action this week, Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia Thursday night and Washington is at Buffalo on Friday. In Saturday games, Baltimore plays Detroit at Memphis, St. Louis is at Denver, Houston takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee, Minnesota is at Kansas City, Chicago at Miami, New England at Atlanta, New Orleans at Dallas and Oakland plays Los Angeles at Berkeley, Calif.

On Sunday the Jets and Giants meet in New Haven, Conn., Cleveland takes on Cincinnati at Columbus, Ohio, and San Diego is at San Francisco.

Indiana University has won the last six NCAA National Collegiate Swimming Championships. The Hoosiers were second each of the three years, before that too.

Smoke restriciton bill going too far

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — By an 8-1 vote, the Board of Supervisors has tabled a bill which would have prohibited smoking in their chambers, in all the city's elevators and in hospital waiting rooms.

"I've gone along with a lot of things that abridge personal freedoms, but this is going too far," Supervisor Dorothy von Beroldingen argued against the bill. She's a smoker.

BUENA PARK — Television and recording star Bobby Goldsboro will perform in the John Wayne Theater at Knott's Berry Farm Aug. 23-28.

Tommy Cash and the Tomcats will appear there Aug. 29-31.

Performances are at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, and at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Goldsboro came into prominence with his own nationally syndicated television show, The Bobby Goldsboro Show, seen in over 100 major television markets.

Goldsboro achieved international recognition in 1968 when he recorded "Honey," a song that became the best-seller in the world that year. He is kept busy year around with television appearances, concerts and recording sessions.

Since his first national hit single, "See the Funny Clown," in 1964, Goldsboro has recorded such songs as "Little Things," "Voodoo Woman," "Autumn of My Life," "I'm a Drifter" and "With Pen in Hand."

Go'dsboro is capable of captivating "pop," "easy listening" or "country" audiences with equal success, as proven by his record sales and radio airplay. He has chalked up 21 songwriter awards in his career as well as five gold singles and four gold albums.

Cash and the Tomcats provide solid country sounds. Organized in 1970, the group already has a list of recordings and concert appearances.

Tommy, brother of country music great Johnny Cash, has a long string of hits including "Six White Horses," "Listen," "Rise and Shine," "So This Is Love" and "Workin' on a Feelin'."

Folklorico scheduled at Ahmanson

Miss Tapia's career has taken her on tours throughout Europe, Russia, China, South and Central America and the United States. She was commissioned by the Mexican government to teach dance in this country.

In 1962, Mexico's cultural ambassador Miguel Alvarez Acosta sent Miss Tapia to San Francisco to head the cultural program at the Mexican Consulate General. She was transferred to Los Angeles in 1965, where she became director of the dance department of the North American Mexican Institute of Cultural Exchange, sponsored by the Mexican government.

Butz resignation urged

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., called Tuesday for the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and his replacement by a man "who will represent both the consumer and farmer.

Cranston, meeting with members of "Fight Inflation Together, accused Butz of responsibility for "the worst bungling of the American agricultural and food economy in the nations history.

He said that Butz, "more than any other man, must bear the responsibility for the shocking rise in food prices and shortages which are wrecking family budgets and imposing cruel hardships on the elderly and poor.

Cranston said that President Nixon should nominate as Butz successor a secretary who will represent farmers and consumers as well.

"Farmers deserve a fair profit and, at the same time, they should be allowed to produce as much food as they can, he said. "Both consumers and farmers would benefit.

Murder charges filed against rioting cons

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Murder charges were filed Thursday against seven inmates in connection with three slayings during the recent McAlister prison riot, Gov. David Hall's office announced today.

Golf pros and cons

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Golf is, by and large, an expensive game. You can pay a wad for clubs, bags and balls, then add greens fees, cart rentals, and incidentals like gloves, tees and martinis at the 19th hole.

But one thing in the agonizing game is absolutely free—advice.

As a newcomer to the game, I am like a virgin lump of clay and my partners and opponents, the caddies and casual passerbys are lined up with an endless supply of hints, tips, suggestions and counsel——all of it conflicting.

For the novitiate, a round of golf is group therapy. With the best intentions, your fellow players cause you topped drives, lost balls, shots into bunkers and over greens and three-and-four-putt holes. A naked aborigine, armed with a round-headed war club, would do better than I — if no one gave him any advice.

"Keep your shoulder down,' Joe," says fellow player A. "That way you can —"

I keep my shoulder down and squirrel the shot out of bounds.

"You kept your shoulder down, Firman," says fellow player B. "Try to keep your shoulder up, so when you swing, the ball will . . . "

A few holes later, fellow player C suggests, "Stand further back from the ball. That way you get the full power of the swing."

I belt the ball 20 yards into a toolshed.

"You're standing too far from the ball, Joe," says fellow player A. Stand closer and use a wider stance. That way you'll get the full power of you swing."

Later, fellow player B says, "Your stance is too wide. Try a more closed stance. That way . . ."

One tries to be discerning about whose advice to take, naturally, like Nixon and the White House staff. You note player A is an 11-handicap man, and player C is a scratch player. You tip toward C's tips.

One is ill-advised to follow the advice of an opponent, of course. Does Egypt take suggestions from Israel? Playing recently against a red-headed opponent of modest golfing talent I was doing quite well, for me, until he gave me a friendly hint.

"Your arms are too close to your body, Joe," he said. "Try to keep them out further, that way you get, etc."

I did. I got my arms out further. I was in the rough on the first stroke, in a bunker the second, and out of bounds the third. My fourth shot dented a panel truck passing on Ganesha Boulevard 150 yards to my right.

Feet closer. Open stance. Slow backswing. Relax right elbow. Hands forward. Body still. Lean into shot. Fast. Slow. Don't. Do. Etaoin Shrdlu.

Some home loan rates hit 9.5%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal home loan experts say home loan interest rates have exceeded 9.5 per cent in some housing markets.

William J. Popejoy, president of the Home Loan Mortgage Corp., said at a news conference Thursday that "we've heard of 9.5 per cent plus points."

"Money for mortgages is in short supply," he said. "We've seen dramatic increases in the last two months.

Thomas R. Bomar, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said money was still available "but at a higher rate." He said he hoped mortgage lending rates would drop by the end of the year.

Skylab rescue launch date set back 15 days

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency Tuesday set back by 15 days the launch date for an unprecedented rescue flight if the Skylab 2 astronauts can't come home in their disabled Apollo ferry ship.

Launch teams at Cape Kennedy were directed to be ready by Sept. 25, which also is the scheduled splashdown day for Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma.

"Thats good, Bean said when mission control reported the new launch date. "Looks like they got a new boost of confidence.

An around-the-clock rescue effort was started last week after a second steering rocket developed a leak aboard the Apollo. A possible rescue ship launch date first was set for Sept. 10.

The Saturn 1B rocket and an Apollo command ship to carry out the rescue were loaded onto a 90-foot wide tractor early Tuesday and slowly moved to the ocean-side firing site.

The Apollo that carried Beans crew to Skylab developed a thruster rocket leak shortly after launch. The second leak was discovered a few days later but officials were confident the mishaps were not related and the crew could fly the Apollo home with the ships remaining propulsion system.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma were taking turns peering at the sun through their complex set of solar observation devices, storing the data on film to be brought back at the end of the two-month mission, or beaming it back on television.

The research pilots have already seen three major solar eruptions of radiation and gaseous material and are giving scientists more information than has been collected in years of ground research.

Overcoming cancer

Courage is the beginning of the cure

By JOHN HENRY JONES

What do Jack Pardee, Super Bowl star and defensive linebacker of the Washington Redskins, and Mrs. Ida Fleming, a young black mother of three from north Philadelphia, have in common?

Courage.

Both had the courage to face the fact that they had cancer. And both had the courage to beat it in time.

John Henry Jones is a science writer with the American Cancer Society.

Pardee, who was honored by President and Mrs. Nixon at a recent White House ceremony launching the American Cancer Society 1973's Crusade, not only overcame an often fatal form of cancer, melanoma, but has also dedicated a lot of time and effort to educate others to have regular checkups. So has Mrs. Fleming.

REDSKIN STAR Jack Pardee — a profile in courage.

Pardee traces his life-saving experience to a conversation with a doctor friend after he'd read a newspaper story about the death of Jim Umbricht, a Houston baseball pitcher. Umbritcht had died of cancer in 1964, the first sign of which was a mole on his leg.

"I noticed I had a mole like that on my right arm. My wife, Phyllis, urged me to have it looked at" Pardee recalls. "I had a checkup the next day and it was malignant. The doctors told me to have my affairs in order. They promised me nothing.'

In April, 1965, Pardee underwent an 11-hour operation, involving his right bicep and the lymph glands of his right arm and chest.

"I was lucky," Pardee says. "The cancer was caught in time. Had I waited much longer, it probably would have spread too far to be stopped."

Pardee got himself ready for July training camp in time, but somehow his 1965 season was a poor one and he decided to retire from pro football. He joined the coaching staff of Texas A & M College.

But football was still in Pardee's blood and when George Allen became coach of the Los Angeles Rams, he had little trouble in persuading Pardee to give it another try.

Last year, Pardee, under Allen, led the Washington Redskins all the way to the Super Bowl.

Mrs. Fleming found out through a Pap test during one of her regular visits to the birth control service of the Mothers' Health Center in North Philadelphia. After one visit, the clinic asked her to come in for further tests.

"I was really scared. What if the test was positive? What chance did I have if it was cancer? I asked myself this question over and over before I made up my mind to go back to the clinic," she recalls.

AFTER SURGERY — Mrs. Ida Fleming (shown with sons Anthony and Tracy) was back home two weeks after surgery, living a normal life as mother and wife.

Following more tests, Mrs. Fleming checked into University Presbyterian Hospital for a biopsy. The malignant diagnosis was confirmed and she underwent surgery.

"When I woke up I had a feeling that everything would be fine. First I had confidence in God and my doctor, and then I realized I had done the right thing in having the tests and the operation."

After about two weeks, Mrs. Fleming returned home to resume a normal life as a wife and mother.

Since then, she has encouraged her friends and neighbors to have Pap tests regularly. "I urge every woman to take a little time out periodically to have a test," says Mrs. Fleming. "Look at me. I'm living proof that it pays."

And Pardee? He, too, has been spreading the word. Honorary Chairman of this year's Cancer Society Crusade in Washington, D.C., Pardee has been active in cancer education for the last eight years.

"I try to stress not putting off that regular physical even if there aren't any warning signs. Give the doctors a chance to find it. It saved my life and it can save yours too."

Women help each other heal scars

VOLUNTEERS WHO SHARE—The trauma of breast removal has been eased for thousands of women by volunteers like Susan Shack who share their experiences and offer rehabilitation advice.

Susan Shack had been pregnant for four months with her second child when she noticed the lump in her breast.

"I could feel that the lump had begun to grow. My doctor decided I'd better have a biopsy. That's when they take out a small piece of tissue for microscopic examination. I went into the Jewish Memorial Hospital and when I woke up they had removed my left breast. The lump had been cancer," recalls Mrs. Shack, who was 24 at the time.

"My first reaction was hysteria, said Mrs. Shack, a Bronx housewife. "But I knew it had been a life and death situation. My husband's sympathy and understanding helped a lot. Besides, I still had to have my baby."

Five months later, Mrs. Shack gave birth to a five-and-a-half pound girl, Stacy. That was seven years ago.

Although tens of thousands of American women undergo breast removals every year, the subject has only recently received national publicity since Shirley Temple Black underwent the same surgery earlier this year.

Previously, women like Mrs. Shack have had to deal with the emotional and physical problems resulting from breast removal in the privacy of their own families. But two years ago the American Cancer Society sponsored a program called Reach to Recovery which provides emotional counseling and practical suggestions for exercises and grooming that help speed patients' lives back to normal.

Recently, Mrs. Shack appeared on a nationally aired TV panel show, along with Mrs. Terese Lasser, coordinator of Reach to Recovery, and several cancer specialists.

The show focused on the public debate about whether or not the more extensive breast operation, called radical mastectomy, which is favored by many doctors, is necessary since, according to some reports, similar results are possible with less extreme procedures.

Both Mrs. Lasser and Mrs. Shack vigorously defended their "radicals."

Mrs. Shack, herself, became a Reach to Recovery volunteer last year. "When I read Mrs. Lasser's book (Reach to Recovery), I knew it was what every woman who's had breast surgery would like to know and I wanted to help." Last year, Reach to Recovery volunteers visited with 27,000 patients who were recovering from breast surgery.

What do these women want to know? "Mainly they're anxious about how their children, their friends or relatives will react, or how their clothes will look on them.

Mrs. Shack recalls how quickly she worked her way back into a full active routine.

"As soon as I got home, I began doing the reaching exercises my doctor recommended, like the 'wall climbing' exercise with my left arm. If there was any limitation on my activities, I guess the natural one of getting back into everything after childbirth was the one I felt the most."

Fire damages youth center

RICHMOND (UPI) — Fire burned through much of the Richmond Memorial Youth Center causing an estimated $110,000 damage to the main administration offices, the fire department reported Monday.

The auditorium, gym and swimming pool were undamaged by the early Sunday morning blaze which started in a recreational equipment storeroom.
